The federal tocsins ring with the noise of French burnings after the unfortunate gale at Cadiz Bay. Captain Folger of the brig Young Soldier, stated this day on 'Change, that the American vessels driven on shore were boarded by boats from the British fleet, and all that had naval stores or provisions on board were set on fire by the sailors of the British navy-the remainder were burnt by the French. Give the devil his due, say I; but both French and English are the devil towards us -our neutrality with both is a Columbian.

On the authority of a respectable merchant in this city, we are informed that the ships burned at Cadiz after the disaster of being driven by a gale on the St. Mary's shore in Cadiz bay, was effected by the English, in order to pre-vent their falling in the hands of the French army, who are in possession of Port St. Mary. MILITARY TACTICKS.

The following article has been pubdicule the farcical, careless manner in which militia parades are generally conducted. As the spring musters are approaching, perhaps a re-publica-cation of this article at this time, may have a tendency to excite our militia, officers as well as privates, to be more attentive to the purpose for which they are professedly assembled on days of West. Tele.

[From the Georgia Monitor.]

I happened not long since to be present at the muster of a captain's company in a remote part of one of the counties, and as no general description could convey an accurate idea of the achievements of that day, I must be permitted to go a little into the detail, as well as my recollection will serve

The men had been notified to meet at nine o'clock, "armed and equipped as the law directs," that is to say, with a gun and cartridge box at least, but, as directed by law of the U. States "with a good firelock, a sufficient bayonet and belt, and a pouch with a box to contain not less than twenty-four sufficient cartridges of powder and

At twelve, about one third, perhaps one half of the men, had collected, and an inspectors return of the number present, and of their arms, would have nearly stood thus: 1 capt. 1 lieut .- ensign, none; fifers, none; privates present, 15, ditto absent, 30: guns 14; gunlocks, 12; ramrods, 10; rifle pouches, 3, bayonets, none; belts, none, spare flints, none; cartridges, none; horsewhips, walking canes, and umbrellas, 10. A little before one, the captain whom I shall distinguish by the name of Clodpole, gave directions for forming the line of parade. In obedience to this order, one of the sergegeants whose lungs had long supplied the place of a drum & fife, placed himself in front of the house, and began to bawl with great vehemence "all capt. Clodpole's company to parade here! Come Gentlemen, parade here!" says the lower end." He might have bawled till this time with as little success, as the Syrens sung to Ulysses, had he not changed his post to a neighbouring shade. There he was immediately joined by all who were then at leisure, the others were at that time engaged, as parties or spectators, at a game of fives, and could not just then attend. However, in less than half an hour the game was finished, and the captain enabled to form his company and proceed in the duties of the day. Look to the right, and dress! They were soon by the help of the non-commissioned officers, placed in a straight line, but as every man was anxious to see how the rest stood, those on the wings pressed forward for that purpose till the whole line assumed nearly the form of a crescent.

Why look at'em, says the captainwhy gentlemen, you are all a crooking the said Ferdinando Fairfax in the at both ends so that you will get untp me Distillery and Ferry Lots, and the #15 | by and by, come, gentlemen dress!

-I am going to carry you through the revolutions of manual exercise, and I want you gentlemen, if you please, to pay particular attention to the word of command, just exactly as I give it out to you. I hope you will have a little leading from Charles town to Beemill, a man's saddle about half obliged to any of you gentlemen to put worn, with plated stirrips and leather girth. Whoever has found said sadbest, and I hope you will excuse me if you please. And one thing gentlemen I caution you against, in particular-and that is this-not to make any mistakes, if you possibly can help it, and the best way to do this will be to do all the motions right at first and that will help us to get along so much the faster, and I will try to have it over as

They objected to going into the revolutions at all, inasmuch as the weather was extremely hot, and they had already been kept in the field upwards of three quarters of an hour.
