It has been said by Machiavel, that here is little difficulty in the accomplish what is good.—Attempts have been anade for several Attempts have been anade for several vender its government consistent with the principles of the receiver and the very next day after the declaration of independence in Philadelphia, that they no means disparaging to those who established the Virginia constitution at that period, that they should in the effort to guard against such evils as their experence had made them best acquainted with have stept over or never have taken into view, the only basis upon which freedom can exist. The discussions which arose out of our revolution, and which tended so much to produce that in France, developed truths that had been long forgotten, and made the world better acquainted with human rights.

The abuses of the executive power, both under the monarch and this representative, the colonial governor, were the objects of apprehension as they were the points which had aggrieved them before. Prior to the American revolution, republican sentiments were familiar to Virginia, and it is not surprising that seeing all the measures of tyranny against the colonies assuming the shape of acts of parliament, that the dislike should be undivided, though the policy bad been attributed to the arbitrary principles imbibed by the British ty-rant.

the then members of the legislature. The papers relate the story of an ensounter between James Allen, a Kentuckian, and Thomas Fuller, an Englishman, between the Saline and Fort Massac. Faller declaring in dispute, that one Englishman could drive five Kentuckians in case of war, Allen alledged that one Englishman could not drive one Keniuckian, and proposed a trial of the question. Fuller would fight with pistols one pace apart-Allen agreed. Fuller changed the distance to ten paces - Allen agreed to it. Then Fuller requested time to step side, just to write a line to his wife! Allen agreed to it.—They next took their stations, and fired; Fuller fell.— He rose, and insisted on a second fire : he fell again, being twice struck on the breast with Allen's shors. A stritagem was suspected; and Allen swore he would kill his aptagonist unless he fought again or acknowledged himself a coward. Fuller submitted : " His jucket, (says John Ross, the second of A. who publishes the statement) was then unbuttoned, and to the astonishment of the beholders a Dutch blanket was cerns of the state. discovered in eight tolds and our quire of paper opened and spread under the shirt, and upon lifting up the blanket the two balls were found, having peblanket and were lodged on the paper. | purposes. The question of peace or war, or rather, as far as it relates to Russia, of submission or war, is on the eve of being decided, if it has not already been. Bonaparte, whose torrent of military force has been for some months rolling Northward, increasing as it rolled, is now giving a more rapid direction to that force; and having by menaces and deceitful promises prevailed upon Dencretion to prorogue the assembly and is to concentrate in the hands of a few 6000 cavalry; that is, he has permissistein and Schleswig, from whence it is But these considerations become less supposed a considerable body will pro-

Such are the accounts which have just been received from the North and which, in all probability, will be immediately followed by events of the utmost importance. A Mail from Heligoland arrived this morning. It has not brought such late intelligence as we received yesterday from Gottenburg; but prayers are said to have been ordered to be put up in Saxony for the success of the French arms!-There is a story of Bonaparte having given his Austrian consort a beating and sent her back to Vienna!! Moniteurs and other Paris papers arrived last night to the 1st inst. They contain, we are sorry to state, another instance of treachery in the surrender in giving up the place, offers his enthusiastic services to the French. The execrable traitor ! There is no other intelligence from the Peninsula, and not a word is said of any movements in the North.

On account of there being a show in the Scheldt of re-equipping the Scheldt fleet, lord Beauclerk has been ordered to proceed from Portsmouth, with five sail of the line-They were to sail this

The Danes have fitted out a number of privateers in the Elb and Eyder; they are also said to be forming a large camp in the neighborhood of Rinsburg, with a view to make their neutrality respected in case of a rupture. Gottenburgh, March 6.

Every day brings us some political news. Report states, that the king of Prussia has entered into a treaty with Napoleon, and has consented, that all the Prussian scaports, except Colberg, Memel and Konigsberg, shall be garri-soned by French with an equal number of Prussian troops. It is also said, that the Prussians are to furnish 50,000 men to France in case of hostilities with Russia. The following places in Prussian Pomerania are already in the possession of them, Schweinemunde, Anclam and Usedero. Bernadotte is on a visit to all the ports in Sweden; and wherever a person is found in favor of France, he is sent immediately out of the country.

Matters are fast accommodating between Sweden and England. It is said that Russia is to join in the treaty, as France is making vigorous preparati-ons against her. Napoleon is marching troops in large bodies northwards through Holstein and has already a very considerable army likewise close upon Colberg.

Rugenwalde, Feb. 24. The French troops have began their march through the Prussian dominions. Their destination is Poland, and they are not to remain in Prussian Pomerania. A treaty has been positively
