It has been confidently and avowedly expected, by the federal faction, that with the pressure of war, the weight of opposition would be encreased. It has been said that the people, who so loudly called for a martial effort to protect their rights would soon be tired of the pecessary burthens and sacrifices, for which that effort must call. But, by estimating the fortitude and the good sense of the people at too low a rate, (their common mistake,) culations. As the war progresses; 28 the arrangements connected with it rejects of it appear in direct and nearer view; the people are more and more engaged in the propriety of its prosecution, and convinced of the brilliancy of its prospects. Waged not for ambition, but from necessity; postponed as long as even protracted patience could permit; its object important, and its means competent, nothing but system and energy were wanting to ensure for it, the most vigorous and hearty support from the peo-ple. System and energy have become apparent in their results; and, now, every election gives the seal of popular applause to the just and righteous conflict. Obvious indeed is it, that the enemies of this war, like the enemies of the war of the revolution, have made the love of peace, the cover to conceal two reprehensible propensities. The one, an improper attachment to the cause of the enemy | Gazette: urged by them, when they thought the | twelve persons in the ruins. men in power would sink under the attempt to wage it. Seeing and knowingthis, the people of the Union, by an immense majority, are determined to support their rulers, in supporting their own rights and honor. The cheering triumphs of our arms are now responded by the encreasing zeal of our citizens. Foreign influence begins to disappear; and we may yet hope, that the "clouds of thick darkness," which have hung over a portion of the East, will yet be dissipated by the wholesome blasts of victory, from the North and the West .- [Balt. Extract of a letter from Col. Clark to Brigadier General Parker, dated.

Camp Chazy-Landing,

It is with great pleasure I can inform you of a successful attack upon the enemy at Massesquoi bay on the morning of the 12th inst. (After detailing his approach o the enemy which evinces an excellent knowledge of the country, the Colonel states:) - At this time I had only the riflemen with me, the artillery moving slow and the militia protecting their rear. We proceeded to the village (Massesquoi) & arrived within fifteen rods of the enemy before we were discovered. We found them drawn up under Major Powel in a manner that would have annoyed us much had we attacked them by water, but wholly unprepared to defend themselves on the land side; they commenced a fire on the left flank, but in ten minutes after the first attack they laid down their arms and surrendered themselves prison-

Understanding that a force of 200 men inder Col. Lock was marching to attack us, I dispatched Capt. Finch with his company to reconnoitre them and ascertain their course. He proceeded with such promptness and ability as to surprise and capture the advanced guard, consisting of cavalry, excepting one man who escaped, and, giving information, the enemy retreated. The prisoners were then put on board our boats and sent to Burlington.

Our whole force engaged was one hundred and two-the number of prisoners taken is one hundred and one, their killed nine and wounded fourteen.

"We are now on Queenstown Heights, on the anniversary of Van Renssalaer's battle! On the 11th I wrote you from 12 mile creek ; the next day we took a circuit through the country. We found that the enemy had retreated to their entrenchments at Burlington, and that pursuit would avail but little, as the last accounts informed us that Harrison was nearer the enemy than we were. We therefore left him the care of Viscent, and took a circuit through the swe the inhabitants. We have obtained

CHARLES-TOWN, NOVEMBER 4.

MR PRINTER.

With the view to ridicule the claim set up in England to the nativity of the late gallant Captain Lawrence, (which, by the bye, has never ye seen refuted to my satisfaction) a paragraphist in your last paper states, in substance, that Mojn Croghan who repulsed General Proctor and near five hundred British troops at Sandusky, is a Russian General, and his one hundred and forty fire men all Cossucks, who had been taken prisoners by the French and sent over to this country, in the frigate Lu Invisible, to aid our wicked rulers n this disastrous and iniquitous war.

From the manner of the scribbler, I fear you will hardly believe, Sir, that these are facts "beyoud the possibility of a doubt" : As I have spared no pains, however, to cotlect the opinions upon the subject, of some of the ablest men of that party which unquestionably possesses "all the talent and integrity" of America-men, whose steady habits will, if ever Justice shall resume her ancient sway in this distracted and unhappy country, exalt the very dust on their feet far atude," I flatter myself that with these and my own arguments, I shall be able to prove their reality to the satisfaction of every well inclined

In the first place it is extremely probable that the real name of our major General is Crohanzoff.* The factitious one which has been designedly given him since his arrival here, is that of an old revolutionary officer of the true Boston stamp, and from this circumstance, as well as from its similarity to the original name, it was Gen. The enemy left confidence. We took 2000 prisoners, one standard, and several pieces of canuon.

This morning at 4 o'clock, the emperor was upon the field. It rained in torrents, and the Marshals Dukes of Ragusa and B-lluno, passed over the bridges with their corps. At 8 o'clock our attack commenced with a lively cannonading. The extreme left of the enemy was commanded by the Austrian Generals Ignatius Giulay and Klenau, and was separated from the rest of their army by the valley of Planen. The Emperor caused it to be attacked by the duke of Belluno, The enemy have lost according to the and by the cavalry of Gen. Latour-Maubourg, under the command of the king of Naples.
