WHEN I AM OLD. When I am old-and, oh! how soon Will life's sweet morning yield to acco; And acco's broad, fervid, carne t light, Be shrouded in the solemn night, Till like a story well-nigh told Will seem my fife when I am old.

When I am old this breezy earth
Will lose for me its voice of mirth;
The streams will have an under-tone
Of sadness, not by right their own,
And Spring's sweet pow'r in vain un
Its rosy charms when I am old. When I am old I shall not care
To deck with flowers my faded hair;
'Twill be no vain desire of mine,
In rich and costly dress to shine;
Bright jewels and the brightest gold.
Will charm me not when I am old. When I am old my friends will be Old and infirm and buyers, like also Or else, their body's 'neath the sod. Their spirits dwelling safe with God! The old church-bell will then have tolled Above the rest when I am old. When I am old I'd RATHER bend, Thus sadly o'er each buried friend,
Than see them lose the earnest truth
That marks the friendship of our you'h;
'Twill be so sad to have them cold,

Or strange to me, when I am old. Miscellaneous.

The second one in appearance followed, and the bidders gratified themselves with handsome wives, according to the length of their purses.—But slas! it seems there were some laden for whom no money was likely to be offered; yet these were Babylonians. When all these beautiful virgins, says the historian, were sold, the crier ordered the most deformed to stand up, and after he had openly demanded who would marry her with a small sum she was at length adjudyed to the man who would be satisfied with the least. In this way the money arising from the handsome served as a portion to those who were either of diagreeable tooks or who had other imperfections. Now, Gentlemen, in those matters, these encomies of the Col. are certainly reckoning without their host. Yes, they are doing him injustics—

Gentlemen: I cannot for the life of me see the use of a single Democrat in our whole Congressional District refusing to vote for Col. Bedinger. To illustrate this position:

Suppose, gentlemen, that you have in your employ an agricultural operative who is honest, industrious, and does his work well—will you turn him off, without a cause, and forthwith employ a new operative? Would you act thus foolishly in matters of a private character? I think not—for it you did, you would be laughed at most leavill.

As was very pertinently said at our State Con vention, Virginia is about entering upon a new era, and old manners, customs and things must give place to the progressive spirit of the age .-We for one, have no tears to shed at the consummation of these predictions. Virginia is about to arouse from her torpor, and infusing new en ergy and vigor into her people, Republicanism into her Constitution, enter upon that race for su. premacy, with her sister States of the Confedera cy.
