There is room in the world for the wealthy and great, For Princes to reign in magnificent state; For the courtier to bend, for the noble to sue, If the hearts of all these are but honest and true

And there is room in the world for the lowly and meek For the hard horny hand, and the toil furrow'd check For the scholar to think, for the merchant to trade, So these are found upright and just in their grade. But room there is none for the wicked; and naught, For the souls that with teeming corruption are fraught. The world would be small were it oceans all land, To harbor and feed such a pestilent band.

A bear, for some time past carrying on an improper intimacy with the young hogs belonging to the settlers in the Queen's Brush, closed his career last week in rather a singular manuer .-From a litter of nine, in an industrious man's sty, the bear had at divers times abstracted four, and one night on repeating his visit, the hogs screamed so furiously at the abstraction of one of their brethren, that the settler became alarmof their brethren, that the settler became alarmed, and loading his gun in all trepidation, hastened out to the sty, and seeing the grizzly monster a few paces from him, with the porker in his tusks, he let fly with his musket, and the recoil was so violent that it threw him several feet backward, with his head under the fence. Believing that the blow had been dealt by the bear and that the monster was upon him he roared out hideously, and was of course immediately joined by his wife who disabused him of the idea that any thing else but herself was near him. He then got up and found, his monster antagonist pierced through the neck to the hog sty by the ramrod of the gun, he having forgotten in his hurry to abstract it from the weapon, and thus the recoil became so great as to upset him.-The bear died immediately, and his case amply repaid for the loss of the pigs, and the fright of
