Fashionable Watering Places.

SHANNONDALE SPRINGS.

A Cure Warranted or no Charge.

SHANNONDALE SPRINGS. THIS health-giving and beautiful Watering Place will be under the personal superintendence of the undersigned during the coming Summer, who will use every effort in his power to render it one of the most attractive and agreeable watering places in Vir-ginia. It is situated on an elevation or spur of the majestic Blue Ridge Mountain, in the county of Jef-ferson, five miles south of Charlestown the county seat. Passengers leaving Baltimore or Washington by the morning train of cars, will arrive at Harpers-Ferry at half-past 11 A. M., from thence, in the Winchester and Potomac Railroad cars, ten miles to Charlestown, where a twelve-passenger Coach will receive and con-Young MEN especially, who have become the vic-tims of Solitary Vice, that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of young men of the most exalted talents, and brilliant intellect, who might otherwise have en-tranced listening Scnates with the thunders of eloquence, or waked to ecstacy the living lyre, may call with full confidence.

Married persons, or those contemplating marriage, being aware of physical weakness, should immediately consult Dr. J., and be restored to perfect health. and Potomac Railroad cars, ten miles to Charlestown, where a twelve-passenger Coach will receive and con-vey them into Charlestown, and if desired to the Springs to dinner, over a good road and through a lovely country. The Analysis made by the late Dr. De Butts from 100 grains of the water from the main fountain, affor-ded 63 grs. of Sulphate of Lime, 10¹₂ grs. Carbonata of Lime, 23; gra. of Sulphate of Magnesia (Epsom salts,) 1 gr. of Muriate of Magnesia, 1 gr. Muriate of Soda, 3-10 grs. Sulphate of Iron, and 7-10 grs. Carbonate of Iron. Dr. Johnston, Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, Graduate from one of the most eminent Colleges of the United States, and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the Hospitals of London, Paris, Philadel-phia and elsewhere, has effected some of the most as-tonishing cures that were ever known. Many troubled with a ringing in the ears and head when asleep, great nervousness, b ing alarmed at sudden sounds, and bashfuiness, with frequent blushing, attended some-times with derangement of mind, were cured immedi-ately. 3-10 grs. Sulphate of Iron, and 7-10 grs. Carbonate of Iron.
From the above analysis the waters of Shannondale may very properly be classed among the Saline Chalybeates—a combination of the most valuable description in the whole range of Mineral waters. It may therefore be positively asserted, without exaggeration or fear of contradiction, that no mineral water within the limits of the United States, possesses the same constituent parts, or is a more salutary and efficient purgative than the waters of Shannondale Springs. This water acts as gently as the mildest aperient, without giving rise to those unpleasant sensations of pain and debility so often occasioned by ordinary cathartics, prepared by the most skillful physicians.
The free use of this water, acts almost immediately upon the skin and kidneys, removes worms, relieves the convalescent from bilhous or other fevers, dyspepsia, dropsical swellings, calculous affections, hemorrhoids, scrofula, indigestion, rheumatism, loss of appetite, exhaustion, general debility, gravelly concretions, strictures, and a variety of other diseases to which man is subject, and it is freely acknowledged by all who have been afflicted with any of the above diseases that the free use of Shannondale waters have effected permanent cures.

Take Particular Notice.

Take Particular Notice. Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured themselves by private and improper indulgences, that secret and solitary habit, which ruin both body and mind, unfiting them for either business or society. These are some of the sad and melancholy effects pro-duced by early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the Back and limbs, Pains in the Head, Dinness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Palpitation of the Heart, Dis-pepsia, Nervous Irritability, Derangement of the Diges-tive Functions, General Debility, Symptoms of Con-sumption, &c. tion. &c.

sumption, &c. MENTALLY.—The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion to society, self distrust, love of solitude, timidity, &c., and some of the evils produced.

Nervous Debility.

Weakness of the system, nervous debility and prema-ture decay, generally arising from the destructive habit of youth, that sultary practice so fatal to the healthful existence of man, and it is the young who are most apt to became its victims from an ignorance of the dangers to which they subject themselves. Parents and guar-dians are often misled with respect to the cause or source of disease in their sons and wards. Alas! how often do they ascribe to other causes the wasting of the frame. Palpitation of the heart, dysnessia, indigestion often do they ascribe to other causes the wasting of the frame, Palpitation of the heart, dyspepsia, indigestion, derangement of the nervous system, cough, and symp-toms of consumption, also those serious mental effects, such as loss of memory, depression of spirits or peculiar fits of melancholy, when the truth is they have been in-dulging in pernicious but alluring practices, destruc-tive to both body and mind. Thus are swept from existence, thousands who might have been of use to their country, a pleasure to their friends, and ornaments to society

LIBERTY TREE.

In a chariot of light, from the regions of day,

A fair budding branch from the gardens above,

Where millions with millions agree, She brought in her hand, as a pledge of her love, And the plant she named Liberty Tree,

The celestial exotic struck deep in the grounds Like a native it flourished and bore; The fame of its fruit drew the nations around,

To seek out this peaceable shore. Unmindful of names or distinctions they came

Beneath this fair tree, like the patriots of old,

Their bread in contentment they ate, Unvexed with the troubles of silver and gold,

The cares of the grand and the great, With timber and tar they old England supplied,

And supported her power on the sea; Her battles they fought, without getting a groat, For the honor of Liberty Tree.

But hear, oh ye swains, ('tis a tale most profane,) morality, or the reckless depravity of the hu-man heart? It is on such occasions as the present, that vice too often receives the approving smile of wealth, fashion and influence, and virtue her deepest wounds." "Mivs Carson, I fear you place more stress on the influence of your sex than the subject will justly warrant."

"Not at all, sir. Tell me, if any of the present company of young men shall be laid in a drunkard's grave, to whose influence may it in reason be attributed ? Will you tell me the influence of her who fills his glass to-night will not add weight and speed to his descent ?" Irving and Emma were standing apart from the company. Their conversation being in a low tone of voice was not overheard among the general confusion of tongues and dishes. A couple of ladies passed over to them and chided them for being unsociable. Irving had set the wine untasted on the window-seat, which, one of the ladies observing, inquired why their glasses were not empty. Irving laughingly re-marked that he had just discovered Miss Carson had conscientious scruples, when one said, "wait till I get another glass, and Kate and I will drink with you." The glass was brought, and the three drank with great glee, twitting Emma on her " puritanism." The conversation changed, and nothing further was said on the subject that night. Enough had been said to awaken Irving from his dream of happiness and reveal to him a barrier to the consummation of his

Could he yield Emma without a struggle with his enemy--ruthlessly demolish that bright structure of the future on which he loved to gaze-wantonly crush the blossom of hope strewn along his pathway, and which, if kindly nourished would return a harvest of sweet joys?

His better feeling turned with proud contempt from such a picture, and met-the cold sneer, the taunts and ridicule of his evil genius -Hawkins.- How true is it that "There is a time-we know not when, A point—we know not where, That marks the destiny of men, And leads to glory or despair."

Henry Irving's destiny was poised on such a point. His moral integrity had become par-tially deadened under the influence of vicious associations, and now when the hour had come in which he was to choose his future, he was THE BLIND GIRL AND HER MOTHER.

The following thrilling incident-the meetng of a mother and her child—is from a report by Dr. Howe, Principal of the Perkins' Institu-tion for the Blind at Boston, concerning Laura Bridgman, the deaf, dumb and blind girl, whose only means of communication with the objects around her is by the touch, which is remarkably acute:

"During the last year, and six months after she had left her home, her mother came to visit her, and the scene at their meeting was an nteresting one.

The mother stood some time, gazing with overflowing eyes upon her unfortunate child, who, all unconscious of her presence, was playing about the room. Presence, was play-ing about the room. Presently Laura ran against her, and at once began feeling of her hands, examining her dress, and trying to find out if she knew her; but not succeeding here, she turned away as from a stranger, and the poor woman could not conceal the pangs she felt that her beloved child did not know her. She then gave Laura a string of beads which she used to wear at home, which was recognized by the child at once, who, with much joy put them around her neck, and sought eager! to say she knew the string was from her home. The mother now tried to caress her; but poor Laura repelled her, preferring to be with her acquaintances.

Another article was now given her, and she began to look much interested ; she examined the stranger much closer, and gave me to understand that she came from Hanover; she even endured her caresses, but would leave her with indifference at the slightest signal. The distress of the mother was now painful to behold; for although she had feared that she could not be recognized, the painful reality of being treated with cold indifference by a darling child, was too much for woman's nature to bear.

After a while, on the mother's taking hold of her again, a vague idea seemed to flit across Laura's mind, that this could not be a stranger, she therefore felt of her hands very eagerly, while her countenance assumed an expression of intense interest-she became very pale, and then suddenly red-hope seemed struggling with doubt and anxiety, and never were contending emotions more strongly painted upon the human face. At this moment of painful uncertainty, the mother drew her close to her wanting in that strength of soul that would | side, and kissed her fondly, when at once the

NO. 28

The following extract from the New York Sunday Times, a no-party paper with Federal leanings, we think answers and definitely settles the question : "Henceforth this (the Whig) party is to be spoken of in the past tense. Daniel Webster, in his last illness, prophesied its dissolution; the Tribune pronounces it dead. The truth is, that its "great issues" have been dead ever since the reign of "Captain Tyler." The exchequer cheme, that was to stand in the place of a United States Bank, was one of its last kicks. The Mexican war knocked it into a cocked hat. General Taylor was elected on the hat. General Taylor was elected on the strength of his own eminent services, not as the representative of Whig principles, and the Whig party would have fallen to pieces even before the close of Mr. Fillmore's administration, had it not been sustained, with all its sins of omission and commission, on the Atlas shoul-ders of that noble-hearted and magnanimous statesman,-Henry Clay, whom it treated with more ingratitude than ever before repaid high service, with the chivalry that belonged to his glorious soul, bore it up in storm and tempest as aithful as if it had been worthy of support .---WithMr. Clay died the whig party; Mr. Webster composed its epitaph, and Gen. Scott and his friends buried it so deeply, that it is doubtful whether the hand of resurrection will ever reach it. It is thought by many persons that the Tri-bune, which endeavored to revive it when in articulo mortis, and has since, after applying a looking glass to its mouth, pronounced it " a gener," was accessary to the "deep damnation of its taking off." Upon this delicate point we should not hazard an opinion. Others suppose that Gen. Scott's western speeches gave it the coup de grace, and there are some who assert it was stabbed in the back by the Unionists of the party. The prevailing notion seems to be that it furnished the means of its own destruction, and all by an arrow drawn from its own quiver.

"So the struck eagle streched upon the plain, No more through rolling clouds to soar again. Viewed his own feather in the fatal dart, And winged the shaft that quivered in his heart. Keen were his pangs, but keener far to feel He nursed the pinion that impelled the steel: While the same plumage that had warmed his nest; Drank the last life-blood of his bleeding breast."

THE RIGHTS OF WOMEN.

On Monday evening last (says the Winchester Republican.) we took occasion to examine at the Depot one of Aulick's Improved Car-Couplings, Potomac Railroad for seven weeks, and has been found to answer, in a highly satisfactory manner, the useful purpose for which it is designed. The the useful purpose for which it is designed. The contrivance is so simple that any humber of cars may be connected by the engineer alone, and it un-couples with equal facility and safety. The con-struction of the coupling is cheap, and it can sel-dom get out of order, whilst it is easily repaired whenever such a thing does occur. The cost can-not exceed ten dollars, and when we consider the labor that will be saved daily; and remember the number of hands, arms, and even lives, that have heen lost by the old and dangerous mode of coupling, the cost becomes comparatively nothing in connexion with the benefits that will arise from the use of the improvement. A description of the in-vention will be read with interest by those who have not yet seen it work. On one end of the first car is attached a cast iron plate, with a projecting funnel, at the small end of which is a slide weighing twenty pounds, placed in a groove, and acting perpendicularl forced up by a wrought iron pin or bolt, f stened to the second car, and bevilled on the apper side with a notch, up in the principle of a door-catch. The bolt is caught and held by the slide as soon as is forces its way in. This bolt has a collar sufficiently large to prevent it passing through the small end of the funnel, and this is the point of collision between the cars. On the other end of the bolt is a large knob of ome four inches square and one and a half inches thick, resting in a cast iron box attached to the second car. In this box are placed two pieces of India rubber, one before and one behind the knob. thus affording an elasticity either way, and destroying to a very great extent the concussions that con-tribute so much to the percentage on the wear and tear of the cars. This part of the contrivance is exceedingly ingenious, and it may be mentioned that it will obviate the necessity for, and consequently the expense of, the draw bars in use noon some roads. The bolt and gum springs are confined in their place by a cast-iron slide or lid, which runs in a groove, and is confined to its place by a screw. A duplicate of the perpendicular slide is fur-nished. The one for the locomotives is so con-structed as to separate when turned on the side. The other, intended for passenger cars, is so arranged as to hold on in any position.

SABBATH SCHOOL CELEBRATION.

The Sabbath School connected with the Methodist Episcopal Church, of this place, celebrated the Anni-versary of Americans Independence in a very becom-ing and delightful manner, on Monday last. At 10 ing and delightful manner, on Monday last. At 10 o'clock, the teachers and scholars, and a great many vis-itors, numbering in all between three and four hundred, were formed in procession by Mr. WM. P. HENSON, as Chief Marshal, and JOHN C. HUNTER, EDWARD HUNT and THOMAS P. BEALL, as assistant Marshals, and marched to a beautiful grove near town (the fair gr where necessary preparations were made for the accommodation of all. After the crowd were seated, the services were opened by singing, and prayer by the Rev. JOHN W. LANDLEY. The Declaration of Independence was then read by Master WILLIAM M. LOCK, with a lew very appropriate and happy remarks 3 Mr. JOHN S. SULLIVAN, then made a very impres-sive address to the large andience. After which, all were invited to partake of refreshments prepared for were invited to partake or retreatments prepared for the occasion, which were gotten up in a very fine style, and ample justice was done them. After the cloth had been removed, the scholars were called to order and very appropriate addresses were delivered by Mr. Huon GILLEECE, of Harpers-Ferry, and Revs. A. W. Wilsow and JOHN W. LANGLEY. The services at the grove being over, they were formed in procession and marched back. through town, to the Methodist Church.

This was a most magnificent affair, and the com-mittee of arrangements deserve great credit for their untiring exertions to make every thing pleasant.

The female scholars were dressed in white, with a pink badge on the left shoulder, and the males, generally, were dressed in white pants and black roundabouts with a pink badge. After the procession had returned to the Church in the evening—having spent the day most delightfally, the Rev. A. W. WILSON was called to the chair, when a vote of thanks was given to the speakers of the day, to the reader of the Declaration of Independence and also to the Committee of Arrangements. On motion of W. P. HENSON, a special vote of thanks was passed to Mrs. LOUISA BEALL, Mrs. ANS RILEY. and to Mr. JOHN F. BLESSING, who were unwearied in their efforts to contribute to the comfert and pleasure of all who were in attendance upon the ground. The 'feachers and Officers, desire to express the gratification they feel, and the obligations they are under to the friends of the school, for the very liberal assistance and substantial aid afforded them in getting up this entertainment. There were in the procession, some 203 children be-sides teachers and visitors, and nothing occurred during the whole day to mar the pleasure of any one present. The school is in a very flourishing condition, and it is hoped, that with the co-operation of its frierds and the untiring efforts of the teachers, that it will continue to tertainment.

AULICK'S CAR-COUPLING.

This grand and important Remedy has restored strength and vigor to thousands of the most debilitated individuals, many who had lost all hopes, and been abandoned to die. By its complete invigoration of the nervous system, the whole faculties become restored to their proper power and functions, and the fallen fabric of life is raised up to beauty, consistency and duration, of the is faised up to beauty, consistency and duration, up on the ruins of an amaciated and premature decline, to sound and pristine health. Oh, how happy have hundreds of misguided youths been made, who have been suddenly restored to health from the devastations of those terrific maladies which result from indiscretion. Such persons before contemplating should reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote connubial happiness. Indeed, without this, the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrinage; the prospect hourly darkens to the view; the mind b comes shadowed with despair, and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another becomes blighted with our own.-Let no false delicacy prevent you, but apply immedi-ataly. He who places himself under the care of Dr. Johnston may religiously confide in his honor as a Gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a Physician.

To Strangers.

The many thousands cured at this institution within the last ten years, and the numerous important Surgical Operations performed by Dr. Johnston, witnessed by the reporters of the papers and many other persons notices of which have appeared again and again before the public, is a suffici at guarantee that the afflicted will find a skillful and honorable physician.

N. B. There are so many ignorant and worthless Quacks advertising themselves as physicians, running the health of the already Afflicted, that Dr. Johnston deems it necessary to say to those accuainted with his reputation that his credentials or diplomas always hang in his Office.

To bliss unknown to kings.

Henry Irving was a native of Eastern Virginia. His only inheritance-a warm heart, medium intellect a sociable nature, fine personal appearance, and a liberal share of that peculiar feeling generally conceded as experienced by none but descendants from the "first. families" of the Old Dominion. At the age of twenty-four he left his native

State, and in the fall of 1829, engaged as salesman in the largest dry goods house in P-, a flourishing town on the Ohio river. Having acquired a liberal education, a cultivated taste, and gentlemanly deportment, he became a fa-vorite in the social circle. Although possessed of some of the private and social virtues of human nature, Irving was not free from its vices; he loved the wine-cup and the card table-vices not then as responsible as now. Custom, the great sanctioner of human error, at that day recognized these as the bonds of fraternal brotherhood, and public sentiment had not yet elevated the standard of social morality above them; consequently, Irving's fondness for these vicious pleasures, instead of operating against his popularity served as an introduction to the highest circles. His companions were of that wild, reckless, whole-souled, pleasure-seeking class of youn men, who throw cares to the dogs, and with mirth, wit and jollity, drift smoothly, yet rapidly down that stream whose source is crowned with choicest flowers and perfumes of sensual pleasures, and, with a dark and wailing surge, plunges into eternity. His most intimate and confidential friend was John Hawkins, a young lawyer of promising talent and pleasant address, but destitute of correct moral principle; was an avowed infidel, and entertained what he considered a manly contempt for virtue and piety, was fond of whist, euchre and good brandy, and was withal what the world denominated a "elever fellow." It was about a year, I think, after Irving came to P----, that Emma Carson returned from Philadelphia, where she had been sent to complete her education-one too, that had well developed her natural strength of mind; she now stood ready to make her debut with credit alike to herself, her teachers, and friends,-With a fine form, expressive features, a cultivated mind and most bewitching hazle eye, it was not strange that Emma soon became the envy and admiration of society, nor that Irving, before many months, paid frequent visits to

Mr. Carson's. An intimacy was formed, which, on Irving's part, soon ripened into a strong attachment.-Emma was made conscious of the fact by his marked attentions, and hints thrown out by some of her friends; it was to her, under the circumstances, a source of deep regret. She had treated him with etiquette and kindness, enable him to rise above those influences that hung like an incubus about him. If he had then possessed what every young man so much needs, in the hour of trial and temptation-the counsel and sympathy of virtuous friendship, how different would have been his fate, but he did not. He sought counsel and sympathy from Hawkins.

"Why, Irving," said Hawkins, one evening as they sat in their room talking the matter over, "it isn't possible you'd make such a d-d fool of yourself as to give up to the whining of of a school girl? A pretty how-d'ye do, indeed, when a man must renounce his manhood. acknowledge his inability to govern hims h and all for a woman's caprice! These saintly philanthropists must have an exalted opinion of our self-respect and virtue, as they term it, they generously offer to prop us up with written contracts and pledges! Are we to have our social intercourse circumscribed, cut and cornered to meet the views of every stiff-necked religionist?" "What a most exemplary pattern of human meckness you would make, Irving, to place your leading strings into the hands of Emma Car son, surrender all claims to independence and say-"Emma, dear, I cheerfully submit to your superior wisdom and experience; whatever you say is right. What in the d-l is there about that girl to make such a fuss about? There's plenty as good looking, as smart and not troubled with such saintly notions."

And thus with ridiculo and sneers was the last hope of reformation destroyed. That night Irving and Hawkins attended an oyster suppe at the "Globe Coffee House," where they met some half-dozen boon companions. Wine and wit flowed freely. Irving drank deep to drown the voice of conscience and the conflicting emotions that stirred his soul, and that night for the first time in his life Henry Irving was put to bed drunk !

From that hour his career was downward. His visits at Mr. Carson's were soon discontinued. At the last interview Emma urged him by all she held dear and sacred-by his hopes for time and eternity-by every argument and inducement that a warm and earnest heart could command-to change his course of life, and for a moment it roused the remains of manhood within him, but there was a chain of influences-a power of indulgence that even the eloquence of his heart's love could not sever. He left her with a promise of reformation, and shortly after left P---- for the South. About six years after this the foregoing incidents, two merchants from P---- were returning from New Orleans, where they had been purchasing groceries. The day before the boat arrived at Louisville, as they were seated on the guards, engaged in conversation, an unusual commotion was observed among the hands on the main deck. The two gentlemen alluded to, with several others went below to ascertain the cause of the disturbance. They were told that one of the firemen had a fit of delirium tremens, and that the hands were trying to confine him. They stepped back into the engine-room, and there, reader, lay Henry Irving tied to a bale of cotton, writhing and foaming in all the agonies of that dreadful malady. When the boat reached Louisville he was placed on a dray and conveyed to the hospital, where the next day he ended his life, calling down the most bitter curses on him whose ridicule and sneers had silenced the pleadings of virtue and love, and drove him to ruin.

After this, the beads were all unheeded ; the playthings which was offered to her were utterly disregarded; her playmates, for whom but a moment before, she gladly left the stranger, now vainly strove to pull her from her mother ; and tho' she yielded her usual instantaneous obedience to my signal to follow me, it was evidently with painful reluctance. GIRLS WHO WANT HUSBANDS.

A writer in one of our exchanges, over the signature of "Nelly Gray," gives the follow-ing excellent advice to such girls as are in "want of husbands." We know not that there are any in this city who want husbands; but supposing it at least probable, that there are a few such, we have determined to publish the article in our columns.

Girls, you want to get married, don't you ? Ah, what a natural thing it is for young ladies who have such a hankering for the sterner sex! It is a weakness that woman has and for this reason, she is called the weaker sex! Well, if you want to get married. don't for conscience sake act like fools about it. Don't go into a fit of the nips every time you see a hat and pair of whiskers .-Dou't get the idea into your heads that you must put yourself in the way of every young man in the neighborhood, in order to attract notice, for if you don't run after the men they will run after you. Mark that.

A husband hunter is the most detestable of all young ladies. She is full of starch and puckers, she puts on so many false airs, and she is so nice that she appears ridicu-ing in, of course, about the last one, always at social parties, and invariably takes a front seat at concerts. She tries to be the belle of the place, and thinks she is. Poor girl!-You are fitting yourself for an old maid, just as sure as the Sabbath comes on Sunday .-Men will flirt with you; and flatter you simply because they love to do it, but they have no more idea of making you a wife than they have of committing suicide. If I was a young man, I would have no more to do with such fancy women than I would with a rattlesnake. Now girls, let Nelly give you a piece of her advice, and she knows from experience that if you practice it you will gain the reputation of being worthy girls, and stand a fair chance of getting respectable husbands. It is all well enough that you learn to finger the piano, work embroidery, studdy grammar, &c., but don't neglect gran-ma or your dear mother teach you how to make bread and get a meal of victuals good enough for a king. No part of a house keeper's duties should be neglected; if you do not marry a wealthy husband you will need to know how to do such work, and if you do, it will be no disadvantage for you to know how to oversee a servant girl, and instruct her to do these things as you would have them done: In

" Woman's Rights" is triumphant in Maine. At a recent election for Register of Deeds, in the Eastern District of Lincoln county, in that State, a certain Miss Olive Rose was the successful candidate over one hapless Sylvester, by a majority of 260 votes. Thus, has the question of the capacity of ladies for office been de-cided, once for all. If women can be register of deeds why can she not be member of the General Assembly or Governor ? Perhaps Miss Olive will make the office to which she has just been elected, only the stepping stone to others of greater dignity and power, and her friends may even now regard her as a future Senator or Chief Magistrate--"The expectancy and Ross of the fair State."

Some of the wits have amused themselves in conjecturing what effect would be produced upon Miss Olive's status in office, by her marriage. A Philadelphia Editor (he of the Bulletin) asks, if the event of her becoming Mrs. Simpkins, who would be Register of Deeds?-Oliver Simpkins could not be be, he thinks, for the moment she is made a feme covert, she sinks all her rights, interests, emoluments, even her legal individuality in the conjugal Simpkins. Would he then be Register in right of his wife ? Sylvester certainly would disapprove such an arrangement, and no one could allege that Simpkins had any derivative authority from the sovereign electors of Lincoln. Miss Olive then must remain single or forfeit the Registry of Deeds. But a difficulty at once arises out of this decision, for her election would then operate in prevention of marriage, and all arrangements which tend to interfere with Hymen have long since been declared illegal. The whole question is full of embarrassments and is quite intricate enough to puzzle the ingenuity of a Philadelphia lawyerhow much more that of a Philadelphia editor who has attempted to unravel it !

To our mind, there are difficulties, quite apart from any legal perplexity, in the case presented by Miss Olive's election. It is well known that official business, of all others, should never be interrupted, by the intrusion of parties who have no concern in it. The Secretary of War for example, cannot receive, during official hours, any gentleman whose only object is to smoke a cigar with him and discuss topics of general interest. "No admittance except 'on business" is the rule in such cases. Clerks of Courts, and Registers of Deeds too, must deny an audience to all who have not some immediate cause to consult them, and cannot resist in their usual occupations to listen even to an agent of the Tract Society .----Now, suppose some young fellow to fall in love with Miss Olive, and take advantage of pretended business in the office of Deeds, to urge his suit to the fair Register, and with such address, that she should seriously incline thereto -how shockingly would the Registration of the county of Lincoln suffer in consequence !--Or, suppose the fair Olive to marry in face of all the obstacles of law above suggested, and become in due time, "as ladies wish to be who love their lords"-should the duties of the office be cast wholly upon clerks? What if these clerks were also ladies, and similarly situated ? Again, this little domestic event safely over; must the public business be deferred when the baby wants nursing, and could the office of Deeds be conveniently converted into a nursery without detriment to the public interest? We read in Boswell that the question of women's rights" having at one time been discussed in presence of the great Samuel Johnson, that wonderful man disposed of it in his customary oracular way. "It is plain, ma-

HIGH-HANDLD VILLAINY .---- A RARE EXAMPLE OF FEMALE COURAGE.

A German, named Henry Coleman, an ugly looking customer, was arraigned in the police court in this city, on Monday, on a charge of at-tempting to rob Mrs. Elthina Barker and her two daughters, Lucy Ann and Angelina, on the highway between Fitzburg and Westminster, on Saturday last The circumstances of this bold outrage are briefly these : The three females were proceeding from Fitzburg homeward toward Gardner in a one horse wagon, and while riding through a by-part of the town of Westminster, the prisoner came out of the bushes by the road-side, and serzing the horse by the bridle, demanded their money. They told him they had none; but he still persisted in his demands, and turned the horse to the side of he road, when one of the daughters, an intelligent and courageous young lady of about 17 years of age, jumped from the wagon and started off to raise age, jumped from the wagon and statted on to raise assistance. The ruffian, perceiving her design, caught her, and dragging her into the bushes threw her down and tore her clothes hearly off her. In this struggle, however, the young lady seized him by the hair with both her hands, and held him so firmly that he could do no further violence; but at a favorable moment she relinquished her grasp and fled, and after sunning a short distance she met a man, of whom she asked assistance, but to his shame be it said, he was afraid to go with her, and started off to get more help, while the prison i thus for the time m de nis escape, though he would have been arrested on the spot, had this chicken hearted representative of the genus homo possessed a tithe of the courage exhibited by the young lady. After the robber left the horse to catch and detain the daughter, the mother drove on to seek assistance, which was finally obtained, but the villian, as bewhich was finally obtained, but the villian, as be-fore stated, had escaped. He was subs-quently traced to this city, where he was finally overhauled by officer Warren on Sonday. His examination resulted in his committal for trial at the September Common Pleas for the attempted highway robbery and for the assault upon the young lady. [Worcester (Mass.) Transcript.

CHARLESTOWN: TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 12, 1853.

THE 4TH IN JEFFERSON.

The recent Anniversary was more generally observed in our County, than any that has preceded it for several years.

The celebration of the Teachers and Scholars of the Methodist E. Sabbath School of Charlestown it is said (as we had not opportunity of being present) to have been one of the most interesting character-The Procession was imposing for its numbers, and beautiful in its appearance. The exercises at the ground were most appropriate to the occasion, and the fare sumptuous for all. The day was passed in the most delightful recreation, and both old and young were highly pleased with its incidents. On our first page will be found a detailed account as to the programme of its proceedings.

A number of gentlemen celebrated the day at "Washington Spring," a few miles from town, by the Reading of the Declaration, by Mr. NELSON ANGEL, and an Oration by Dr. J. D. HUDSPETH. We have been furnished with a copy of this Address, and shall publish it in our next number. Many patriotic sentiments were elicited, and no doubt all in all, as pleasant, social and agreeable on ; was spent as at any other celebration of the county.

At Shepherdstown, A. R. BOTELER, Esq., delivered. the Address, which is said to have been a very chaste and beautiful production. The proceedings incident to the celebration at Smithfield and Shannondale, will be found in another part of our paper.

STANNONDALE-ITS ATTRACTIONS.

There has been quite a large and fashionable company at Shannondale during the whole of the past week, and the number promises to be greatly enlarged by the expected arrivals during the present. The company, for several years, has not been so large thus early in the season, as it is now, and the Springs have never given promise of rendering more entire satisfaction to its guests, than under its present management. With Captain Sappingron and his estimable lady at the head, Miss SARAH BEALL presiding over the culinary department, and Messrs. JOHN W. GALLAHER of Charlestown, and Mr. Jones of Baltimore, in the Office and the Bar, none can fail to receive every attention which can minister to their comfort, satiate their appetite or quench their thirst, A portion of the celebrated Volandt's Band of Baltimore, are now in attendance, and have been engaged for the season, under the leadership of Mr. SILVERsmith, lavorably known to many of our citizens as an accomplished Professor of Music and Dancing. A rare opportunity is therefore presented, of enjoying the exquisite pleasure of having a "concord of sweet sounds," whilst "nimbly moving the light fantastic toe." Each and all of the members of the Band, are scientific performers, which is the best guaranty to those who can appreciate good music, of being fully gratified in this respect, whilst a visit to Shannondale will always enure greatly to their physical strength and social enjoyment.

TURA () S PUTTE PORTENTI DECUT

The President, accompanied by the Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary of War, Attorney General, and by his private Secretary, left Washington yes-terday evening to be present at the opening of the Chrystal Palace in N. Y., on Thursday. Great preparations were being made in Baltimore, Philanelphia, New York and every point on the route for a most enthusiastic reception. The Military display in Philadelphia is expected to be one among the grandest affairs ever witnessed in this country. After witnessing the opening of the Exhibition, the President will return to Washington without delay.

June 24, 1853.

June 24, 1853. 5 MR. EDITOR:-Having left Philadelphia some weeks since for a tour through the Mountains and Val-leys of Virginia; I have at length arrived at the Shannondale Springs, in Jefferson county, some 12 to 14 miles above Harpers-Ferry, and which place you pass through en route. I have found this such a delightful place that I cannot resist the desire of giving some faint description, in the hope that it might be read by some of your pleasure seeking friends of Philadelphia, who may desire to find a new and pleasant retreat during this hot season of new and pleasant retreat during this hot season of the year The Springs as I have said, lie some twelve miles above Harpers-Ferry, and about five miles from the pleasant Village of Charlestown, and at which place stages are always in attendance, to convey you to and from the Springs, over an excellent and level road, through a rich and delightful country, you soon arrive at the Springs and are welcomed by the kind and Gentlemanly Landlord, Mr. Sapping-ton, who you will find ready at all times to do everything in his power to make your visit a pleasant one.

The Springs are easy of access, being near the House, and their component parts are, (according to an analysis) Sulphur, Magnesia, Iron, &c., &c., and water very cold and quite palatable, and beneficial for many diseases.

The House is large, spacious and convenient, and stands quite elevated, commanding a beautiful pros-pect of the Shenandoah River, which winds beautifully at the foot of the hill and forms more than a half circle around the grounds, which are very extensive and well shaded. The River affords good Fishing, and Boats and Tackle are at all times in readiness for those that enjoy this sport,—a Gentle-man from Baltimore for his amusement, supplies the table morning and evening with fresh fish.— The River shore is lined for more than a mile with large venerable Beach, Sycamore and Ash trees, which forms almost an Arbour, for those that wish to ride or promenade the green banks of this ro-mantic stream. The bathing in this river is also very fine, as the water is of good depth and the bottom smooth and sandy. The Blue Ridge Mountains lie about one mile

East, and afford a pleasant walk or ride to those lofty summits, whose heads seem to prop the very Heavens, and the view from this spot is surpass-ingly grand and magnificent, as Jefferson says of Harpers-Ferry, "It is worth a trip across the Ocean" to have one gaze from this Pinnacle. Here you President introduced THOS. H. TOWNER, Esq., of Shephave, as far as the eye can reach, a most gorgeous herdstown, as the Orator of the Day. By the urgent waving lux uriantly, with handsome farm-houses, heavy woodlands, small groves, hills, valleys, villages, &c., and here and there the glassy stream of the river, winding its serpentine course, now seen, now lost, and the whole bounded with grand Mountains, some of them almost lost in the sky-blue atmosphere, reminding one forcibly of those beautiful and descriptive lines of Rogers:

The Oration of Mr. Towner, &c. The Anniversary of our Independence was appr priately honored at Shannondale, and a large, agree ble and patriotic company assembled at this delight ful vale, to commemorate the illustrious deeds of our ancestors. The following gentlemen were officers of the day, viz: Lewis W. WASHINGTON, Esq., of Jefferson, President; R. Hume Butcher and H. N. Gallaher of Jefferson, R. J. T. White and Wm. B. pany in attendance met in the beautiful grove near the Spring, where the Shannondale Band had preceded them and were discoursing in the sweetest strains, some of our choice National and patriotic airs. In a few remarks, suggested by the glorious occasion which had convened the company together, the Pre-sident introduced JOHN T. GIBSON, Esq., as the Reader of the Declaration of Independence. Mr. Gibson pre-faced the labor which had been assigned him, by the following remarks, the substance of which we are only able to give. Their force, beauty and propriety, cannot fail to be as gratifying to our readers, as their enunciation was to the numerous ladies and gentlemen in attendance.

REMARKS OF MR. GIBSON. MY COUNTRYMEN AND LADIES: The Declaration of the Independence of the United States of America. which I am about to read, was published and declar ed this day seventy-seven years ago. It was on the fourth of July, 1776, that our revolutionary forefathers, in general Congress assembled, with hopeful and brave hearts and with a determination that would have accomplished any undertaking of human projection, undertook the revolution that was based upon the principles and wrongs set forth in this declaration, and the fruits of whose glorious and happy termination, we their pos crity now enjoy. It is in commemoration of the 4th of July, '76, and from a devotion to the political principles on that day proclaimed to the world, through this Declaration, that we have this day met together to perform the usual and proper ceremonies of the occasion. But how wide the difference between the circumstances of those who first made, published and declared this Declaration, and those with which we are surrounded in its re-affirmance! Danger to life, liberty and property hung over them, whereas all is peace, all is quiet, and all is safety with us. In them it was an act of revolution against one of the greatest powers of the earth, and they may be seen through a seven years' war, with sword in hand, maintaining upon the battle-field, amidst blood and carnage and against great odds the declaration they dared to make. In us it but a formality, a re-assertion without denial, a merry meeting, undisturbed by the grim visage of war, or even by the rumor of war.

The causes which led to the separation of the Colonies from the mother country, are fully set forth in the Declaration which I have the honor now to read,

After the Declaration had been read by Mr. Gibson in a distinct and impressive manner, and the Band had performed some two or three National airs, the

For whatever of difference there may have been among them in point of literar attainments restition & c whatever of dimerence there may have been among them in point of literary attainments, position, &c., yet one idea governed them all, and directed their actions, the idea of freedom to an oppressed people. Therefore, they should all hold an equal place in the affections of the nation, each one having con-tributed to big rumant ability the common con-

the affections of the nation, each one having con-tributed to his most ability to the common cause. The d el was "signed, sealed and delivered" to the several colonies for their concurrence. A Res-olution was passed instructing the President to en-close a copy of the Declaration to each of the Colo-nies, that it might be proclaimed to the people.— This was done on the same day, and through the kindness of a friend, our distinguished countyman, Alexander R. Boteler, I am enabled to exhibit to you to-day the letter of John Hancock, enclosing the resolution, with a conv of the Declaration to the resolution, with a copy of the Declaration to the Convention of New Jersey; also other letters of John Hancock whose bold signature can easily be recognised. Every line of these productions breathes a spirit of patriotism, and is clothed with the most ardent exhortations to his countrymen in behalf of the great cause in which they were a l engaged. These precious relics of the past were accidentally discovered a short time since, and rescued from destruction, and are now for the first time given to the public. Their nature I can-not doubt, will be a sufficient apology for reading them to you, PHILADELPINA, June 11th, 1776. GENTLEMEN : The Congress have this day received advices, and are fully convinced, that it is the design of General Howe to make an attack upon the city of New York as soon as possible. The attack, they have reason to believe, will be made within ten days. I am therefore most earnestly to request you, by or-der of Congress, to call forth your Militia as request-ed in my letter of the 4th instant and to forward them with all dismetch to the instant and to forward them with all dispatch to the city of New York; and that you direct them to march in companies, or in any other way that will hasten their arrival there. The important day is at hand, that will decide not only the fate of the city of New York, but in all probability of the whole Province. On such an occasion fhere is no necessity to use arguments with Ameri-cans. Their feelings, I well know, will prompt them to their duty, and the sacredness of the cause, urge them to the field.

The greatest exertions of vigor and expedition are requisite to prevent our enemies from getting posses-sion of that town. I must therefore again most carnestly request you, in the name and by the au-thority of Congress to employ every mode in your power, to send forward the Militia agreeably to the ion of Congress, and that you will do it with all the dispatch which the infinite importance of the ause demands. .I have the honor to be, gentlemen, your most obe-

These are some of that noble band of patriots, le servant, JOHN HANCOCK, President. Hon. Convention of New Jersey.

They are subject to your inspection, but I would ask you to make the same use of them, which it is somewhere stated the Bee does of the Flower

she steals sweets from, but does not injure it. The Declaration of Independence has been made (and what production of man's mind has not?) the subject of severe criticism at home and abroad; its style and some of the doctrines which it advances style and some of the doctrines which it advances have been made the theme of comment, but the mass of mankind have stamped upon it the seal of their approbation, and the doctrines of right and justice which it proclaims, will have an important influence upon the destinies of the world to the re-motest period of recorded time. There is a spirit of truth pervading every line which must commend it to the heart of every living creature blessed with mind sufficient to comprehend its simple teachings. Even the Despot on his throne, if he date speak from the fullness of his heart, would give to it the rom the fullness of his heart, would give to it the sanction and approbation of his judgment. Eng-land boasts of her Magna Charta, and the immu-nities and priviliges which its provisions bestow upon her citizens. She may well be proud of it, orming as it does the basis of constitutional liberty at home, and even furnishing us with some of th at home, and even turnishing us with some of the most cherished rights enjoyed by its. But Magna Charta, while it granted certain rights to certain privileged portions of her population, did not de-stroy that colonial system which has ever been the disgrace of England; did not loosen the chains of colonial bondage which have held down in misery and abject poverty the oppressed millions of Ireand.

land. Magna Charter, it is true, is 2* its title imports a great document, but so far as Ireland is concerned 1. is but the silver-coaled pill, made as enticing as possible to conceal the other deformities of English rule; the gilded chain which only beautifies the horrors of bondage, but does not shorten its duration. Yes; Magna Charta was ob-tained, but Erin's Harp still sends forth upon the winds her mournful strains, and her eloquence and song have been changed into notes of wailing and lamentation. Is it not proper then, in view of the high privileges guarantied to us on this day, that we should meet to interchange congratulations, that in the kindness of God our lot has been cast in such a land, and that we should do honour to the men who were immediately instrumen-

do honour to the men who were immediately instrumen

do honour to the men who were immediately instrumen-tal in working out our deliverance. Nor should we fail to do justice to all who have con-tributed to this great result, and therefore you will par-don a reference to an earlier period in our colonial nis-tory when the people of the Colony of Virginia oppress-ed with domestic griefs, and the abridgment of popular liberties, exhibited a spirit of resistance, which only needed expectivity and error th to attain a successful isen with domesne griets, and the abridgment of popular liberties, exhibited a spirit of resistance, which only needed opportunity and growth to attain a successful is-sue. In the year 1676, just one century prior to the Declaration, we may date the dawn of the ideas of po-litical freedom, when Nathaniel Bacon hoisted the ban-ner of Revolution, or as History terms it, because of its failure, Rebellion. It was then that the acorn was plant-ed which germinated and afterwards grew into the mighty oak, beneath whose spreading branches the oppressed of every elime may now shelter themselves from the storms of the old world, in the peaceful and happy en-joyment of liberty in the new; of free representation, a representative government one of the chief priviliges for which our sires perilled their lives, and which we now properly consider as the corner-stone of constitutional liberty, as the Promethean spark which imparteth vigour and life and soul to our whole political system; of religious liberty "beneath our own vines and fig-trees, none daring to molest or make us afraid." And how much more dearly should we cherish and value the privileges we are permitted to enjoy, when brough valley and through glen. But it there are those among you who have a celling of love for the military, you too may be gratified with a retraspective view. Our success arms his been commensurate with our prog in other respects. We have met England a sec time in arms, and humbled her pride upon the s —her owa na ive element, and the couplet with once applied to her now more appropriately belongs

"Her march is o'er the mountain wave Her home is on the deep."

More recently, our victorious armies have planed their banners in the cities of the Aztecs, and the wonders which surrounded the story of Cortez have been dispelled. But while we'encircle the brows been dispelled. But while we encircle the brows of the living with the victorious laurel, let us not forget to cast the funereal cypress o'er the graves of those who repose in a distant lan1, from the Bra-zos to the Sierra Madre, and fron San Juan d'Ul-loa to the proud capital of Mexico. We have thus attempted to present to you the victories of war and of peace, (for "Peace hath her victories no less renowned than those of War") which illustrate our annals, and have pointed to the blessings enjoyed by our people. The most impor-tant consideration to the patriot is the preservation of the privileges we enjoy. The best means by which to fulfil our destiny is by the proper education of the masses, by progress—not the progress which looks only to the expansion of territory for the mere sake of expansion, without regard to the means emsake of expansion, without regard to the means em-ployed, which would sacrifice national honor at the shrine of a degraded ambition; which would force our form of government upon those unwilling to receive, and unable from bent of education to ap-preciate its intrinsic excellencies, rather than re-commend it by the force of our good example; such is not the progress to which we must look; but rather that progress which, whilst it looks to the expansion of our territory by all proper and honor-expansion of our territory by all proper and honor-able means, looks to a corresponding expansion of the minds of those who are to inhabit it, that pro-gress which cultivates the arts of peace rather than those of war; that rears temples to the living God, that builds the school-house at the cross-road, which adopts that good old Roman maxim, salws populi suprema lex, as ours; in short that progress which looks to the elevation of Man-for it is the popula-tion of a Republic which constitutes her what she is. How heantifully has this idea here expressed is. How beautifully has this idea been expressed by Sir William Jones, one of whom his country

nay well feel proud-

Well feel proud—
"What constitutes a State?
Not high-raised battlements or labored mound, Thick wall or mosted gate:
Not Cities proud with spires and turrets crowned, Not land, nor broad-armed ports,
Where laughing at the storm, rich nayies ride : Not starred and spangled courts,
Where low-browed baseness wafts perfume to pride; No? men; high-minded men;
Men who their duties know;
Bat know their rights, and knowing dare maistain, These constitute a State."

have thus briefly attempted to present to your consideration a view of our country prior to and since the Revolution, its condition of poverty and weakness then, its wealth, its greatness and its glory now. I have drawn the contrast between the privleges of American citizens, and the oppressions others, all resulting from the difference in the orms of government, ours tending to expand the mind, and the energies of man; theirs to repress ard to fetter them. This is not mere assertion, but facts demenstrate the truth of what I say. We are now acknowledged to be among the first of the Pow-ers of the earth. In commerce, we have, within the last year or two, run ahead of Eogland, and now rank confessedly the first commercial nation on the face of the Globe. In every other respect, we need not shrink from a comparison with the mightics and greatest European Powers. All this the result of the experiment of Republican Government brought about in little more than the three score and ten years of scriptural allotment to man to live, a short period in the life of a nation.

SALE OF LAND.

The farm belonging to the Heirs of Jonathan Kearsley, dec'd, situated near Halltown in this county, was sold at public sale on Friday last. The Farm contained 260 acres, and sold for $60 per acre. Purchaser Mr. WM. RYDER.

We also learn that Mr. Ryder has sold to WILLIAM LUCAS. Esq., the bulk of the farm known as the "Alstaldt" farm, on which Mr. Ryder has heretofore resided, at $80 per acre. This is justly regarded as among the very best land of the county, and whilst Mr. Ryder may have made a good sale, from its convenience and proximity to Mr. Lucas, he has made as equally a judicious purchase.

LOUDOUN DEMOCRAT.

The first number of this paper under the manage ment of our former townsman, Mr. CHAS. H. STEWART, anade its appearance on Wednesday last. It has not only been improved already in its appearance, but its principles and its doctrines are greatly more palatable, and as we humbly conceive, vastly more worthy the approbation of a discerning public. Mr Stewart makes a handsome debut to his patrons, and having the advantage of a liberal education and general acquaintance with the men and politics of -our State, he cannot fail to make his journal of benefit to the public and specially worthy the support of the Democracy of Loudoun and our District generally. Though it may be, as some one of our exchanges "has predicted, apparently a " labor of love" to establish a Democratic paper in the Whig county of Londown, we are sure with perseverance and energy, the tread-mill labor which belongs to the vocation. Mr. Stewart cannot fail to succeed in his undertaking, with the peculiar qualifications which he has for the position, and the numerous friends of which he can boast in the District.

A DESERVING AUTHORESS.

Among-the numerous strangers who are now sojourning at Shannondale, for health or pleasure, we are pleased to notice Miss MARY J. WINDALL, of Washington, a lady of rare intellectual endowments of high character, and of great notoriety as a correspondent of the newspaper press. She is publishing a series of letters as to Shannondale, its scenery, its manners and its customs, in the Washington Republic, which we shall take occasion hereafter to lay before our readers. She wrote a series of letters two or three years ago, from Shannondale, for the "Southern Press," which elicited the highest commendation and the most extensive perusal at the hands of the public. We hope her visit may be agreeable and her health improved by her sojourn among us.

COMMISSION HOUSE.

That justly popular and highly responsible Commission House of MARTIN & HOBSON, Baltimore, give their Card to the Farmers and Millers of Jefferson and the Valley generally, through our paper of today, as they are desirous of extending a trade which has thus far proved most agreeable and satisfactory to both parties. Mr. Hobson is now on a visit to our of the man, we should prefer consigning a thousand barrels of flour (if we had it) to his good discretion, than any other in the City of Monuments. This firm is well known to the Millers and business men generally of our county, all of whom speak in the highest terms of its gentlemanly heads, and their accommodating spirit and punctuality in all business operations.

" Distance lends enchantment to the view. And robes the mountains in its azure hue." There is also a Cave about 21 miles from the prings quite celebrated, having been explored for about 2 of a mile, and in one of the great rooms, it is said, that Gen. Washington, when in this county held the first Grand Masonic Lodge, West of the Blue Ridge Mountains. To appreciate come and see.

LETTER FROM THE VIRGINIA SPRINGS.

Correspondence of the Baltimore Sun. JORDAN'S FREDERICK WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, July 4, 1853.

Trip to Jordan's White Sulphur-Reasons for going-The Location and view-The Roule and Charges-Desirableness of the Ballimore Sun-Management and Proprietors of the Springs-Qualities of the Waters, &c.

By the advice of his very eminent physician in Baltimore city, and from having read its proprietor's advertisement in the columns of the daily "Sun" your old correspondent has betaken himself to these justly celebrated health-restoring and pleasure-giving medical Springs, of eighty years repute, (for what he alone has aimed at and hoped) a restoration to health from those greatest of human sufferings, very severe and tormenting chronic stomachic and bowel de-rangements, and, thereby, great nervous distress.-These springs are well conducted, can accommodate (I judge from the extent of the buildings and arrangements made and in process of being finished) about three hundred visitors at a time, and are very conveniently and quite pleasantly situated-from its adjacent eminences commanding a splendid view of the great Virginia Valley, and the Blue Ridge Mountain to the eastward, and the North Mountain to the westward-in Frederick county, Va., in a fine rolling section of the very healthy and great agricultural Val-ley of "the Old Dominion," from one and a half to two miles east of Messrs. Ridgaway & Stephenson's store at Stephenson's Depot Post-office (which is the post-office for the visitors at the Springs) on the line of the Winchester & Potomac Railroad, running from Harpers-Ferry to Winchester via Charlestown, Va., (within five miles of which latter place are the fine nondale Medical Springs,) and about six miles from the large, stirring, and handsome town or city of Winchester, by good county, roads, and about the of winchester, by good county, roads, and about the same distance from it via Stephenson's Depot by Rail-road. There is now, each way, a daily communica-tion by coach and railroad between the Springs and Winchester, via Stephenson's Depot, and will soon be two, for the convenience and pleasure of the visi-tors at the Springs and the citizens of Winchester and the Valley, at all of which places the earthly daily "Sun" shines about as freely as the great heavenly orb, its namesake, at this season,-and not only here. but where do they not, both of them? It is the standard, it appears, of newspapers, judging from its great circulation and the very great avidity with which it is sought and read by all, daily.

Though it be but a short time since I came here, yet, from the way we have been treated and cared and provided for, I think I venture nothing in stating that the springs aro very well managed by the present liberal, gentlemanly and deserving proprie-tors, Dr Robert M. and German N. Jordan, Esq.— If I be not in error the doctor is a graduate of the old Medical University of Md, where he was afterwards, for several years, one of the resident physicians of the Infirmary connected with that College and like his brother, German N. Jordan, Esq., is well known and much respected in that and the cities of Washington, Georgetown and Alexandria-the latter having had connection, I believe with, or part management of the springs for some time past. He well knows how to treat his guests now here, and who will come from these several cities, so as to make them "feel at home," as the guests themselves express it.— There are not many visitors here yet, though accessions to the number are daily making, so that, ere long we will have a numerous and merry, though orderly company—such a one as, I expect and hope, will not be otherwise than agreeable, even to my own very nervous sensibilities.

The water of the main spring is finely and highly mpregnated with sulphur, and gives forth a bounteous, never-failing quantity of cool and very light drink. After having gotten accustomed to its use, by drinking but little of it occasionally at first(like those beginning to eat tomatoes, or chew, smoke or snuff to-bacco; also, in this respect, like the celebrated Saraserpent greets the traveller, as he wanders among their fallen walls. The same author who portray. ed in glowing colors the rise of the Roman Empire, toga Congress Spring water) one so soon becomes so remarkably and passionately fond of it as to be hardly. able to drink too much or even enough of it, and without its being, in any respect, other than beneficial and comfortable. There is also delightful slate water, for drinking purposes at the Springs. By taking the 8 o'clock, A. M. train from Baltimor to Cumberland, in the very comfortable and speedy cars of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, at a cost of cars of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, at a cost of $2 85 to Harpers-Ferry, at which point you arrive at 12 M., from whence the passenger train soon after leaves, upon the Winchester & Potomac railroad, for Stephenson's depot post office, about 31 miles from or South of Harpers-Ferry, at a further cost of one dollar and fifty cents, at which one arrives about 2 to 2½ P. M., and where one finds in waiting and takes the ex-cellent coaches of the springs, from the depot, and ar-rives at the springs in good time for dinner. It is rather pleasant here to-day. I suppose that from the warm weather, Baltimore will be quite de-serted. tuted the great event of the day which we now re-Judging from my own feelings, this day is, and must always be, a great national day to an Ameri-can's heart, wherever and however he may be—in sickness or otherwise. request of the Committee of Arrangements, no less than the unanimous desire of the Company in attendance, Mr. Towner has consented that his address shall be laid before the public, its merits to be scanned, and its historical reminiscences, with which it abounds, to be reflected upon at leisure. Of the one, we are sure an intelligent and discriminating sentiment will award the highest meed of approbation, for its adaptation to the occasion, the beauty of its language and the clear and distinct enunciation of its principles. Of its historical reminiscences, this address, we venture to say, will compare with any other that was delivered upon that day. There is not only a careful review and a most interesting summary from the public record of the nation, and which every American loves to ponder upon with each returning Anniversary, but some new mementoes are brought to light, every word and line of which is of interest and will be perused with pleasure and satisfaction by all. It is therefore unnecessary for us to say more, than invite the careful attention of our readers to the ORATION OF MR. TOWNER. MR. PRESIDENT, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN :

It is a highly commendable feeling which urges men in their national capacity to preserve in perpetual and grateful memory those events in their history which, in view of their importance to mankind, mark the periods of their occurrence as important epochs in the world's annals." In all ages, among all nations, whether civilized or otherwise, this feeling has ever exhibited itself, and will do so, so long as humanity shall retain the puble attributes of gratitude and love, with which the God of mankind has clothed his creatures. Roman citizens ever held in grateful remembrance the deeds which adorned the pages of their country's history, and greeted with the pagcantry of a triumph her illustrious captains who had performed them. Descending in the tide of time, with what feelings of gratitude does every son of old England greet the annual return of that day on which Nelson upon the ocean wrested the sceptre of supremacy from her most powerful rival, as d gained for his country the proud title of "Mistress of the Seas;" or the dawn of the anniversary of Waterloo, when the glorious achievements of Wellington humbled the pride of the French, and raised his own country to the highest position among the Powers of the Earth, and filled the nation's heart to overflowing with love for him who had led her armies to victory. Ascending from the temporal to the spiritual world. from earth to heaven, with what feelings of holy gratitude does the Christian hail, with "Hosannas to God on high," the anniversary of that day which gave birth to the Infant Saviour of mankind. Such is the feeling which has been instrumental in calling us together to day, a feeling of g atitude for the services of our Revolutionary tathers; of gratitude, in that we are in the daily enjoyment of priviliges purchased with their blood, such as are vouchsafed to none other of the nations of the earth. On this day, from the Aroostook to the Rio Grande from the Atlantic to the golden sands of the Pacific this feeling of gratitude will be evinced, as old John Adams, in the spirit of prophecy, predicted it would be, by the "firing of cannon, ringing bells, by bonfires, and illuminations." The nation's heart to-day will beat with quick and generous throbs a nation's gratitude. So mole it he. Jus seventy-seven years ago this day, transpired in the City of Philadelphia, an event, which, whether we view it as regards its effect at the time in the birth of a great nation, or the consequences which must result from it in all time to come, we must consider as the most important in the history of the human race. On that day, we are told, a nation was born; true enough, a nation was born, and like unto th infant Hercules, a nation great and powerful at its birth. But as important as was this lact it was by no means the great event of that day, for the teach ings of history indicate that nations flourish for a season, then pass away; they may spring into existence to-day, to motrow they are only known in history. Athens, classic Athens, the home of literature and of the fine arts, now only exists in the past; and the ruins of her former splendor; her Parthenon and her Acrpolis seem to have withstood the ravages of time only to uphold the curtain of the past, and preserve from oblivion the greatness of her former days. Babylon, Tyre, Si-don, rich cities of the East, where are they now? The ivy-covered rains point out their sites, and the sounds of revelry which once resounded in their regal palaces have died away, and now the hissing

I do myself the honor, to enclose, in obedience to the commands of Congress, a copy of the Declaration of Independence, which-you will please to have proclaimed in your Colony, in such way and manner as you shall judge best.

The important consequences to the American States from this Declaration of Independence, considered as the ground and foundation of a future Government, will naturally suggest the propriety of proclaiming it in such #mode, as that the people may he universally informed of it. I have the honor to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK. President. Hon. Convention of New Jersey.

PHILADELPHIA, July 15th, 1776. GENTLEMEN : The article of lead being so essential ly necessary, and the propriety of every Colony being furnished with it so evident, that the Council of Safety of this Colony recommended to the inhabitants. to spare the lead weights from their windows, and the lead from their houses; by which means they have been furnished with a considerable quantity which has been run into ball, and part of which the Council of Safety here have willingly spared, and is now on the way to the Jerseys. But, as under the present exigency, that quantity is far short of what s wanted for the army in New Jersey, and every method should be used to furnish it, I have it therefore in charge from Congress, most earnestly to request you to supply the Flying Camp and Militia, with all he lead in your possession, or that you can possibly procure.

The exigency of our affairs will not admit the least delay; and I am convinced there is no necessity to use arguments to induce you to an instant compliance with this requisition.

I am to inform you that as you have not enclosed to Congress copies of Gen. Washington's and Brig. Gen. Livington's letters, no judgment can be formed by Congress concerning the contents of them, and to equest copies of them to be sent hither.

Measures are taking in Pennsylvania and Maryland for forming the Flying Camp; and, in the mean time, the associated Militia are marching in great numbers from Pennsylvania for the defence of New Jersey.-Ammunition has been and will be supplied by this Congress for the defence of New Jersey. With regard to the pay of the Militia, I am to acquaint you that Congress will observe the same rule of conduct to wards New Jersey, as towards other Colonies. Four tons of powder are on the way to New Jersey, and-a large of musket cartridges, well balled, will this day be sent forward.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very hundle servant, JOHN HANCOCK, President, Hon. Convention of New Jersey.

PHILADELPHIA, July 16th, 1776. GENTLEMEN: Since I had the honor of addressing on the fourth of June, at which time I transmitted sundry Resolves of Congress, requesting you to call forth your Militia, our affairs have assumed a much nore serious complexion. If we turn our attention towards the Northern Department, we behold an army reduced by sickness, and obliged to flee before an enemy of vastly superior force. If we cast our eyes to Headquarters we see the British army rein-forced under Lord Howe, and ready to strike a blow, which may be attended with the most fatal conse quences, if not timely resisted. The situation of our country, at this season, calls therefore for all the vigor and wisdom among us; and if we do not mean to desert her at this alarming crisis, it is high time to rouse every spark of virtue; and, forgetting all infetions, to exert ourselves in a manner oming freemen.

The intelligence received this day from General Washington, points out the absolute, the indispensi-ble necessity of sending forward all the troops that can possibly be collected, to strengthen both the army in New York, and that on this side of Canada. I do. therefore, once more, in the name, and by the author-ity of Congress, heseech and request you—as you re-gard the liberties of your country, and the happiness of posterity, and as you stand engaged by the most solemn ties of honor to support the common cause-to strain every nerve to send forward your Militia agreeably to the former requisitions of Congress.-This is a step of such infinite moment, that, in all man probability, it will be the salvation of Ameri-and, as it is the only effectual step, that can possibly be taken at this juncture, you will suffer me again most ardently to entreat your speedy com-In short, the critical period is arrived; that will seal the fate, not only of ourselves, but of posterity. value the privileges we are permitted to enjoy, when we remember the sacrifices made, and the troubles and dangers undergone in their attainment. The tale of the dangers undergone in their attainment. The tale of the sufferings of our fathers of the Revolution is an oft-re-peated one, but to the mind of an American imbued with proper pride can never love its interest, but will ever delight him the more, as time makes more apparent the importance of the work achieved. We were then thirimportance of the work achieved. We were then thir-teen colonies scattered along the Atlantic Coast, three millions in population, without an army, or a vessel afloat, no means of intercommunication between the colonies, save the simple post-road or horse path—with no money, which we are correctly told constitutes th sinews of war. Can the mind of man imagine a more deplorable, a more desperate condition? Yet they were not without hope. They knew in the language of Henry that there was a just God who presided over the destinies of Nations, who would raise up friends to fight their battles for them; they felt in all its force the truth of the lines-

> " Thrice is he armed, who has his quarrel just ! And he but naked, though locked up in steel, Whose conscience with injustice is oppress'd !'

and it was this consciousness of right that constantly urged them on, and nerved their arms for the conflict-they felt in their hearts that every blow they struck was for their altars and their household gods, their homes and firesides, and that in such a cause there was no such word as fuil; that however dark the clouds might at seasons appear, yet that there was a sin whose bright and joyous rays would in due time dispel them; they saw the gulf of war yawning before them, but they knew that the God of Battles, who favors the just, would direct them to a haven of safety. The whirl-wind was raised, and some one was needed to ride in and direct it. Providence pointed out George Wash-ington as the man for the crisis, and with what fidelity A man of peace, of peart soft and gentle, and susceptible to the tenderer emotions of humanity, yet in the field of battle, none more zcalous than he, and the eye that kin-died with fire amid the cla-hing steel and the cannon's roar, was oft-times bedewed with the tear of sorrow at the sufferings of the poor soldier committed to his care : the voice that rang in trumpet tones above the din of battle, was often heard at the mid hour of night uttering in subdued and gentle tones a prayer to Heaven for the safe deliverance of his country from the troubles which surrounded her. With such a leader they went into the contest; how could they doubt the result? I will the contest; how could they doubt the result? I will not weary your patience with the particulars of that struggle; they are as familiar to you as household words. Suffice it to say, that extreme suffering, from the heat of summer and the frosts of winter, star-vation, went in every shape, no pay, absence from wives and children, death in battle and death from dis-ease in camp, these and an hundred other matters make up the dark record. But success crowned their efforts n the end, and the sword was returned to its scaboard. the heroes of the revolution retired to the bosoms o their family, to enjoy in peace and tranquility the sweet

But of Washington, the great master Revolution, what shall we, what can we say? Language is too poor, too barren of expression, to present to us a tithe of his virtues. The title of Father of His Country tells it all, and it was a beautiful sentiment that which tells us that " Providence left him childless that a nation might call him Father." We have sketched the state of the country at the pe riod when the banner of the revolution was first give to the free winds of heaven. We have seen the cond to the free winds of heaven. We have seen the coord-tion of abject national poverty which weighed heavily upon the colonies, the total want of all munitions of war, and all the means necessary to a successful issue in an undertaking so gigantic in its character; but these de-ficiencies great as they were, were supplied from the armory of patriotism, and the devotion of the Mussul-man to his faith never exhibited a greater degree of selfman to his faith never exhibited a greater degree of self-sacrifice, than was evinced by the American army to the cause in which they were engaged. The pages of History may be searched in vain for a parallel. The mighty results procured, present the picture in a still stronger light; the prize fought for was well worthy of the effort.

Spread out before you the map of your country as it now is, study the statistics of her wealth, agricultu-ral and mechanical, her colleges and other institutions of learning, her asylums for the unfortunate of the hu-man family, her mighty works of internal improvement, piercing her cloud-capt mountains, which has become as necessary to the healthful condition of the body politic, as are the arteries to the human system; her commerce as are the arteries to the human system; her commerce reaching every attainable point upon the habitable globe, and exchanging the rich products of the virgin soil of the New World, for the wealth and luxuries of the East. We are not free from danger; there have been periods in our short career, (and there will be again) when the Union of the States," the sheet-anchor of our safety, to whose existence we can alone look for the preservation of our liberties, has been threatened with the horrors of dissolution. no others can enjoy. But why speak thus to Virginians ? Is there not ifficient incentive in your past history to urge you to this holy duty ? It was here that "the ideas of political freedom first daward." to use the words of Bancroft ; it was here that impetus was first given to the ball of Revolution : it was here that the inspired Henry proclaim to the world 'as fir me, give me liberty or give me death," words which vibrated through the hearts of the people, and nerved them for the dangers of the coming storm. Virgin:a gave to the country the mind to frame the Declaration of American Independence, and the leader of her armies to accomplish, to complete the work.— Love for our good old State, then, love for the soil which entom's all that remains of Washington, should steel the hearts of Virginians against all sacriligious attempts at the integrity of the Union. And is there a Virginian who dues not cherish a feeling of love for his mother State, a feeling of pride, aye, cf pride that his firs: breath was drawn which I plead guilty; for however I may regret her position in some respects, yet I love the State which gave me birth; whether upon the storm-tossed billows of the ocean, or treacing upon foreign soil, this feeling will have its sway, and my heart will fondly turn to the land of my birth. But whatever of love I may have for my State, I feel still more for the United States-for the Union; whatever of devotion I may feel for the banner of the good old Commonwealth, with her sic semper tyrannis, the proudest motto that ever embiazoned a nation's escutcheon, I feel still more devotion to that honored flag upon whose graceful folds glitter in starlike brilliancy the emblems of thirty-one sovereign States, sovereign so far as their own municipal regulations are concerned, yet con tituting one-The Union. The hearts of the youth of the country should be impressed with a feeling of veneration for the Union; their minds should be so directed that in the strength of manhood they should so regard it, that they would peril their lives in its defence, as did our Fathers in the establishment. After the God who made it and made them, they should re-memberment; like the surge-repelling rock cast back the billows that dash and fret at its base, and stand, like

"Some tall cliff that lifts its awful form, Swells from the Vale, and midway leaves the storm, Tho' round its breast the gathering clouds may spread, Eternal sunshine will settle on its head."

The ceremonies at the Grove being concluded, the Company adjourned to the Hotel, where its worthy host had in readiness every enjoyment necessary for the inner man. The tables were loaded down with the richest profusion, and a company of some 200 voted unanimously Captain SAPPINGTON as the "Prince, of landlords and the best of men." Song and sentiment prevailed, but we have no room for further particulars. Suffice it to say, the day was most agreeably spent, and we hope without detriment to any, but with profit to all.

CHOLERA IN WILLIAMSPORT.

The Williamsport Times, which was suspended ast week on account of the epidemic in that city, appeared again on Wednesday, and we learn from it that but two deaths have occurred since Friday of last week; and it is believed the disease has now entirely disappeared, not a single case being known to exist on Wednesday, save those who were attacked last week, and are now recovering. Since the disease first appeared, 39 deaths have occurred, 32 of which were from cholera, besides four deaths outside of the town. Many of the deaths set down as from cholera, the Times says, were from a combination of diseases, though marked by symptoms of the epidem-ic. It is contended by some of the physicians that the disease was not the real Asiatic cholera, but a modified type of it. The Times thus notes the peculiarities which marked the disease . The first fatal cases were attended by the symptoms of cholera-morbus, alone, and were the evident result of improper diet. Subsequent attacks were attended by more strongly marked peculiarities of cholera, yet there was still an absence of many of its features. Where diarrhœa, sickness of the stom-ach, and cramps were the first symptoms, successful term transfer and diarch and an absence of the stomtreatment was not difficult; yet a bilious condition succeeded, which left the system—already exhausted —to undergo a second treatment, different in its character, yet none the less rigorous than the first. So, in instances where a bilious derangement was the first symptom, and readily yielded to medical care, the peculiarities of cholera developed themselves, generally in their worst forms. Since the first few cases, too, the disease assumed an entirely different phase. There has been an almost entire absence of cramps and retchings, the patient sinking almost into a colapse—coldness succeeding, with a constant watery discharge, which soon proves fatal, without any apparent pain or suffering. Of these latter causes, death has in some instances, resulted in a few hours treatment was not difficult; yet a bilious condition

I will also mention here, that I have invented a fix-ture which may be termed an ALARM, to prevent the collision of trains on railroads. It consists of a piece of mechanism operated on by the motion of the train, and a driver passing up through the rail, its machinery runs under the track, and will strike an alarm, or point to figure indicating the distance that the train is from the place of stopping. The bell to strike the alarm on, or the board with the figure on to tell the distance, may be placed in a house or on a bridge, or any other secure place that the company may elect. They miry with safety be placed the entire length of the road, and so arranged as to tell at all times where the trains are passing. This being something of great importance, I wish to experiment on it more fully before applying it to use. June 23, 7553. JOHN BARNETT.

Patent Premium Thresher and Cleaner, which received the first premium over the New York Pitt Machine and several others at the Maryland State Agricultural Fair last fall; also, at the Washington County Fair, Hagerstown, Maryland, and at our Val-ley Fair, Charlestown—which for simplicity, durabili-ity, and capacity has no equal in the world. By a re-cent improvement we can make the machine clean all kinds of grain perfectily clean for market, taking out all cheat, smut, and light wheat if wished, saving al-together the use of a Wheat Fan; thus saving the far-mer two-thirds his expense over the common thresher, requiring but eight hands and from six to eight horses to thresh from 200 to 400 bushels per day, perfectly clean for the mill. This has never been accomplished by any other machinist but ourselves, and all sceptic minds can have their doubts removed by trying one and if they cannot do what we have represented we minds can have their doubts removed by trying one and if they cannot do what we have represented we will take the machine back without charge. OE ! I WOULD LIKE TO MARRY. ar a. w. coo I saw a little maiden, Of but a teen or fwo, Her cheeks were fair and rosy, Her laughing oyes were blue; A dainty little fairy, Not yet a woman quite, A modest rose but opening; And beaming with A modest rose but opening, And beaming with delight: Said I, sweet little lady, Did'st ever have a bean? I'd like to kiss you dearly, But it would scare you so. Bright flowers bloomed around her, For it was joyous Spring, A thousand birds were warbling, And she did with them sing: Ohl I would like to marry, and most in Ohl I would like to marry, If I could only find, A pretty little dearie, Just suited to my mind.

> I saw another, older By three sweet years than she; Oh! she was matchless, lovely! Full bloomed maturity ! Her form was round and slender, bosom snowy white, Her hair in glossy ringlets, Her hair in glossy ringlets, Her eyes were sparkling bright. Her dress was spotless muslin, Arranged with nicest care, A wreath of glowing flowers, Encircled her dark hair; Her voice was witching music, That chained me while she talked That chained me while she tal Her feet so small and pretty, I wondered how she walked: Said she, I'd like to marry, If I could only find A pretty little dearie, Just suited to my mind.

I find that all will marry, From maid to matron old; Oh! think it not a folly; As you are often told: I saw an anci Of an uncertain age, But she had almost fretted Her hour on the stage; Her brow was wrapped in wrinkles, Her cheeks were plastered red, Her teeth were few and broken; Her hair had left her head; Here, then, thought I, is wisdom, Here early dreams are flown; For one she is contented To live and die alone: She said, I'd like to marry, If I could only find, Oh. Lord, just anybody-A man of any kind.

Till then I was cold-hearted, And jeered at married life; And perced at married life; But now, good nature conquered-I longed to have a wife. And so the charming widow, Has now my hand and heart; Her three dears and another Give us a handsome start; And we are very happy, My love is true and kind; Oh, yes I've found a dearie, ust suited to my mind. And now ye pretty maidens, Young men and lovers true, I'll tell you what I'm thinking, You all had better do: I think you'd better marry, If you can only find, A pretty little dearie, Just suited to your mind.

A Series of Calamities in New York The Steamboat Explosion — Fire and Loss of Life — Extraordinary Hail Storm — Great Domage to Property — Scenes at the Crystal Palace — Several Persons Killed and Wounded — Effect of the Storm

Property-Scenes at the Orgital Palace-Seberal Persons Killed and Wounded-Effect of the Storm in Williamsburg, &c. A series of calamities occurred in New York on Friday, involving the loss of fourteen lives, the maining of as many more, and the destruction of a large amount of property. The first was the ex-plosion of one of the boiler flews of the steamer New World, as she was about to leave for Albany, at 7 o'clock in the morning. By this accident six men were so badly scalded as to cause their deaths; and John Foster, a waiter, in his fright, jumped over-board and was drowned. Washington Hawes, the chief engineer, and Edward Marin, deck hand, were badly scaled, and several others slightly. The fire on the same morning, which resulted in John Cushing being nurnt to death, and Mr. Sophia Healy being kitled by jumping from a fourth story window, was at the bakery of J. Donegan which was entirely destroyed. Two entire families came near perishing in the flames. They were compelled to leap from a 4-h story window. On the same morning a little child of John Ober-huber fell into a pot of coffee, by which it was scalded to death. But the most serions calamity of the day ensued scalded to death. scalded to death. But the most serious calamity of the day ensued from a violent.hail storm, accompanied by light-ning and a high wind, which passed over the upper section of the city between five and six o'cock in the atternoon, lasting about half an hour. The hail stones, or pieces of ice, as they are represented, hail stones, or pieces of ice, as they are represented, were of extraordinary siz: and clattered down upon the roots of the houses like a shower of brickbats. It is said the shipyard of Mr. T. Collyer, at the Dry Dock, was covered with irregularly shaped pieces of ice, or large clusters of haitstone. Several of them were measured, one of which was 64 inches in circumference, another 7 inches, and a third measured 3 inches long and 2 inches thick. The inheritants of a honse in Waverley place were inhabitants of a house in Waverley place were startled by a solid body falling in the front yard, and on proceeding there found a number of pieces of ice, which appeared to have been originally one pi ce broken by the fall. The Commercial says: The grandest exhibition that will ever be seen and heard in the place, we witnessed at the Crystal Palace. About ten minutes after the storm burst, the most terrific hailstones we ever saw began to the most terrific halistones we ever saw began to rattle like discharges of musketry upon the tin roof and glass sides. Some of the masses of ice were as large as her's eggs. They were probably a thous-and excited workmen in the building, and a good many exhibitors and visitors, among whom were some twenty ladies A portion of the frame work of the addition next to 42d street went down with a terrible crash, and a part of the brick wall of the engine house on the opposite side of the street, was blown over, crushing two or three shanties, fortunately without any other injury than driving the occupants out into the storm.

One of the editors of the Tribune, who happened to be in the vicinity, and took refuge in the building during the storm, says:

We had scarcely passed the northern entrance and reached the gallery by the nearest flight of steps, when the torrent (it was not rain, but an avalanche of water) struck the building; the gutters were fil-ed on the windward sid in a moment, and poured over in an almost unbroken sheet of water, which was driven through the Venetian blind ventilators, into and half way across the north-west gallery, and also through the upper ventilators, falling upon the mais floor of the uorth trans pt. Workmen hastened to close the blinds; but that did not preven the deluge. The tinning of the dome being unfinished the water came down in showers all over the centre For a time the water was nearly two in-ches deep on the gallery floor, and poured down the

A great number of boxes, bales and packages of goods lay upon the main floor, among which the water poured down from the edge of the gallery floor, in destructive quantities. Fortunately bu few goods were opened and were upon the tables, or the damage would have been irreparable. As it is, we fear some of the goods are injured.

This article was discovered by Dr. JESE HAMPTON, now in fine health in the 79th year of his age. He was born in Virginia in 1775, emigrated to Kentucky—then a wilderness—with his father, in 1779. In early man-hood he was so reduced by disease as to be almost wrecked in constitution. He spent mech of his living for medical advice and attention, and grew nothing better, but worse. Finding no relief from his physi-cians, he resolved to try the restorative powers of the roots, backs, leaves, plants, ect., of the forest. He then dwelt in the midst of the Red Men of the Western wilds. Having heard much of their skill in the use of vegetable remedies of the forest, and knowing their mode of medicinal practice must be one of practical experience and not of theoretical speculation, he made himself acquainted with their remedies, and also with the practical medicinal knowledge of the early settlers of Kentucky, had obtained from the ' medicine men' of the Indians. He carefully studied the nature of the medicines used by them, combined them according to the light he had received, used them as he had been taught, and had the cheering satisfaction of finding disease driven from his emaciated body, and vigorous health given in its stead. His case was of no ordinary kind, but astonishing to his friends and neighbors. The fame of it spread; the people far and near sent to the doctor for hissuccessful and wonderful combination of Indian remedies; which was freely given them, until the cases became so numerous and the demand so great that the doctor was activated by his friends, and induced through justice to himself, to put up his Vegetable through justice to himself, to put up his Vegetable through justice to himself, to put up his Vegetable Tincture in bottles, and charge a price for it which was freely given. The following beautiful comparison is from a lecture recently delivered at St. Louis, by T. F. Meagher. "One fair morning towards the close of the summer I stood in a field that overlooked the Hudson. I was struck with the glowing ripeness of the fruit which waved around me and broke into an expression of delight. It seemed to me the most glorious I had seen in any clime-the most glorious the earth could bring forth.

SA CALIFORNIA WIDOW.

Capt. Saltwater says his first essay to effect a matrimonial character resulted in a manner so discouraging that he don't believe he'll ever be induced to try it over again. The Captain being out of service for some months conceived a passion for rather a mysterious young lady boarding at the same hotel. Says the Captain, "I convoyed her round to shops, shows, balls, theatres, churches and every other place of ment and information, and at last, when I thought things had gone 'bout far enough, I squared my yards and says I, just as a pow-der-monkey; "Ma'am,I've been thinkin' I'd like to get, spliced." "Spliced," said she as artless as a turtle dove. "Spliced," said I, " and if you've a notion, -Fm ready to share my luck and dunnage with you, Ma'am!"

She looked a sort of take aback at first, but he goes about, and says she : "Captain, I've been thinkin' if my husband

FINALE TO A DUEL.

At a late hour on Thursday night last two of our young fire-cating bloods entered one of the fashiouble saloons in St. Charles sticet in a state which it dicated considerable tatigue, supposed to be caused by carrying too large a brick in their respective hais-in point of fact, as Micawb-r would sav, they were decidedly inebriated. After unbibling once or twice more, they commenced bandy ing wit which gradually grew personal, and finally some very insulting language was used by one of the parties, which fired the blood of the other, previous-ly sufficiently heated by liquor, and a challenge was immediately given and promptly accepted. Cabs were cailed, and the bellieuse young gentlemen entered different vehicles and o dered the drivers to proceed at once to "The Oaks" a locality which has acquired a bloody distinction from the number of duels which have been fought there .-They steadily refused to allow any of their friends to accompany them, or admit of their interference for the purpose of effecting a reconciliation; and one of the party, familiarly known as "Paredes," who was gravely drunk, was requested to stand guard over another who wished to interfere, which he promised to do.

On arriving at "The Oaks," the cabmen were very much astonished to find the embryo duelists wrapped in the arms of Morpheus ? With some difficulty they were awakened, and recognizing the locality and each oth r. they both looked somewhat surprised, having entirely forgotten both the quarrel and the intended fight. One of them finally broke out with: "Why, A, what what are you doing here ?" A look confused for a momen , and answered. "I recellect now that some fellow grossly insulted me; but I can't remember who he was However, I know I challenged him, and I suppose he will be here soon." The other immediately proffered his services as second and swore he would stand by his friend through thick and thin. They both embraced, with tears of affection in their eyes and sat down on the damp grass to wait for the ar rival of their antagonist. After remaining there until nearly day break and anathematizing the cowardly scoundrel who had insulted one and disappointed both, they en-tered their respective cabs and returned to the city. They were seen breakfasting together the next morning at a restaurant, vowing to dislocate every bone in the body of the man who had played them such a contemptible trick, if they could only find him. Who struck Billy Patterson ?

P. S.-Paredes is supposed to be still standing guard over the interfering friend, as he has not been relieved, and his military habits will not allow him to leave his post without orders. [New Orleans Picayune, June 19.

IMPRESSED as I am with the controlling, influence which is exercised by the fine arts upon the direc-tion and destiny of human affairs, it has given me infi-nite pleasure to witness the bountiful manner in which from time to time, painting and statuary has been en-couraged and rewarded by the councils of the nation. But while the acknowledgment is due to the discern-ing and worthy patrons of the noble arts, it is an equal source of humiliation and sorrow to behold the appa-rent apathy and indifference with which they seem to regard the incomparably more valuable creations To see them adorn the walls of the Capitol with the To see them adorn the wans of the Capitol with the glowing revelations of the pencil, and decorate the public grounds with the costly CHEF D'EUVERS of the chisol, is an omen of good which will be hailed and applauded by all as a cheering pledge of the progress of refinement. But, whilst they lavish their thousands upon these immobile products of canvass and marble, and bronze, they offer no reward for the more exalted, wore address and resourced outsides of the solution. No fostering hand from these high places has ever yet invited the Promethean fire of poetry to animate the history of our country, which with all its harmony of rm and wonder of proportion, lies asleep around the umble vault of Mount Vernon, ready to spring into life and beauty at the first kindling touch of this genia It surely were a work of supererogation to introduce the proofs that crowd the records of the past to show how far above all others stands the "divine art" of poehow far abave all others stands the "divine art" of poe-sy. What are all the paintings, statues, and regalia of Versailles, of Fontainbleau, & the Tuileries, compared with the "Marseilles Hynn?" What the kingly pano-ply of gold and gems heaped up in the Tower of Lon-don; what the collections of the Royal Academy, or even the time hallowed shrines of Westminster Abbey, when compared with the songs of Burns, and Dibden, and Campbell? Or what has the world that we would take in exchange for "Hail Columbia" and the "Star-Spangled Banner?" Well might the British states-man exclaim, "Let me-but write the ballads of a nation, and I care not who makes its laws." As far as the living breathing man is above the cold, insensate marble that is made to represent him; as far as the radiant skies of summer are above the perisha-ble canvass to which the painter has transferred their feeble resemblance, so far is poetry above all other arts that have their mission to console and clevate and in-spire the immortal mind of man. In view of these facts, and considering the lamenta-ble paucity of patriotic songs in my distinguished and beloved country, and with the hope of being the hum-ble means of arousing a proper public feeling upon ble means of arousing a proper public feeling upon this interesting subject, I have been induced to offer and do hereby offer, the sum of five hundred dollars a a prize for the best National Poem, Ode or Epic.

man exclaim, "Let me but write the ballads of a nation, and I care not who makes its laws."
