THE PLEDGE.

BY THE BARD OF MARBLE HALL: In Baltimore, famed for ladies fair, Lived a beautiful girl with flaxen hair, And bonny blue eyes with liquid light, And roscate lips, a glorious sight.

The youngsters fell in love by dozens, Frierds and acquaintances, strangers and cousins;
But she a crotchet had got in her head,
And said she determined never to wed,

Until she loved a handsome youth Who would grant all her requests in truth, And bind him fully never to break The pledge he had taken for her sake.

The young men stood aghast with fear; Some whacked their boots, some pulled their hair; Some said 'twas religion, some said 'twas money; But it took them aback and they felt quite funny

Among them there was a fine young man; Says he, "I love her as well as I can, Now!'ll make her the promise, both open and free, And agree to stand by it whatever it be."

The fair one stepped up to his side, And said, "Should I now be your bride, You must promise here before us all, To buy your clothes at MARBLE HALL.

No other can suit a husband of mine, The coats are so handsome, the pants divine." Says Johnny, a laughing, "You dear little elf. If you like them so well, get a pair for yourself."

My Dear Brother :- The cessation of the war leaves me at liberty to renew my correspondence with you, without subjecting you to suspicion and annoyance; and I need not say to you how grateful to the yearnings of my heart is this long suspended privilege.-You have been frequently in my thoughts during our unfortunate struggle, and I have often felt much solicitude on your account, lest a part of the odium and ill-will which a zealous performance of my duty has called down upon my head from a "mad nation' should attach to you and your family, and operate to your injury. Indeed, I have no doubt but that the prejudice against me was the secret of the barbarous and malignant persecution of your son, of which I heard only a few days since from my wife's friend and relation, Mrs. Judge Spencer, of Cincinnati. DOINGS IN CONGRESS:

In the House of Representatives on Tuesday, Mr. VOORHEES of Indiana, called up the resolutions heretofore submitted by him as

Resolved, That the message of the President of the United States, delivered at the opening of the present Congress, is regarded by this body as an able, judicial and patriotic

State paper.

Resolved, That the principles therein advocated for the restoration of the Union are the safest and most practicable that can now be applied to our disordered affairs.

Resolved, That no State or number of States confederated together can, in atty manner, sunder their connection with the Federal Union, except by a total subversion of our present system of government; and that the President in enunciating this doctrine in his late message, has but given expression to the sentiments of all those who deny the right or power of a State to secede.

Resolved, That the President is entitled to the thanks of Congress and the country for the faithful, wise and successful efforts to restore civil government, law and order to the States whose citizens were lately in insurrection against the Federal authority; and we hereby pledge ourselves to aid, assist and uphold him in the policy which he has adopted to give harmony, peace and union to the

Mr. Voorhees said that in introducing these resolutions he did not intend to step in between the majority and the fleshpots; he had no eye on the public crib on which they had fed and fattened so long; nor upon tinfathomable contracts or anything that was theirs. equally. All history shows that class legislation has destroyed the public liberty. The President having sprung from the loins of the people, they will hail him as their friend, for he has not lost his love and care for labor.— On the leading measures of restoration an interesting chapter has been written. He submitted it to another test, on which it had been assailed by those who claim to be the only friends of the administration. They ware engaged in making it appear that the President has done nothing. The gentle-man from Pennsylvania (Mr. Stevens) pronounced it impracticable and untenable, while an arrogant Senator (Sumner) pronounced the whole thing a fraud. Members, too, had crowded into the presence of the President, saying his plan does not promise to give success, and therefore must be recognized as a failure. Then the majority asks him to set it one side and not open his lips while they smash to pieces his plan and knock to the earth his almost completed structure. It is their mission to destroy and not to build up, and to strew the broken tragments under the peaceful policy of the President. We can celebrate victories not less renowned than war. State after State is constantly assisted by the President to return to take their places, and they are welcomed; too, by the President. Let Congress imitate his exam-

of universal joy: May the two sections meet as friends, and the future of the American Union will be halled with the love and praise of all its citizens: The above are some of the points which were elaborated by the honorable gentleman, who, after taking his seat, was warmly con-

Mr. Vorhees (Mr. Bingham yielding the floor) said he expected to be scolded for what he had declared. The American Union besignified once a State always a State, the gentions were suspended but not destroyed. But gentlemen said that all the States which passed ordinances of secession were dead. Who killed these States? Who dealt the blow? Did Jefferson Davis kill them or the eleven Confederate States? Where is the destroying agent? He held there was no element of destruction in them, as in the beginning, so now they are living States in the American Union. He repeated, he had asserted the position of the President, and every assault upon him was an assault upon the Pres-

Mr. Bingham resumed. The gentleman from Indiana had notified the House and the country that the President held that, once a State always a State. But the President had asserted no such thing; nor did the President assume that the Rebel States having surrendered to the victorious legions of the Union, are entitled to representation without let or hindrance. Would the gentleman undertake to say, by the merest platitude, that if five thousand men in South Carolina chance to be represented in convention, for the purpose of coming back into the Union. the residue of the unrepresented Rebels have a right to be represented as a State? Mr. Vorhees replied that the easiest and most absurd argument was to suppose an absurd thing. General Grant did not find such a state of affairs, and he was willing to take his word. When five thousand men were represented in convention it would be time ty. to consider that question.

In concluding his remarks, Mr. Bingham offered the following as a substitute for the resolution of Mr. Vorhees: Resolved, That the House have an abiding confidence in the President; that in the future as in the past he will co-operate with Congress in restoring to equal position and right with the other States in the Union, all the States lately in insurrection.

An Eloquent Extract. The following beautiful extract is from a speech delivered by the Hon. Alexander White, in the Alabama State Convention:

* * * The Bonnie Blue Flag no longer reflects the light of the morning sunbeam, or kisses with its silken folds the genial breeze of our Southern clime. The hands that waved it along the fiery crest of a hundred battle fields, and the hearts that, for the love they bore it so often defied danger and death, no longer rally around it. Another banner waves in triumph over its closed and prostrate folds, but proud memories and glorious recollections cluster around it. Sir, I will refrain. The South needs no eulogy. The faithful record of her achievements will encircle her brow with glory bright and enduring at the diadem that crowns the night of her cloudless skies. The scenes of Marathon and Platæ have been re-enacted in the New World without the benificent results which flowed from those battle fields of freedom, and our country lies prostrate at the feet of the conquerer. But dearer to me is she in this hour of her bumiliation than was she in the day and hour of her pride and power. Each blood stained field, each track of devastation, each new made grave of her sons fallen in her defence, each mutilated form of her Confederate soldier-her widow's tear, her orphan's cryare but so many cords that bind me to her in the midst of her desolation, and draw my affections closer around my stricken country. When I raise my voice or lift my hand against her, may the thunders rive me where I stand. Though I be false in all else, I will be true to her. Though all others may prove faithless. I will be faithful still. And, when in obedience to the great command, "Dust to dust," my heart shall return to that earth from whence it sprang, it shall sink into her bosom with the proud consciousness that it never knew one beat not in unison with the honor, the interests, the glory of my country.

PLEASANT AUGURIES FOR THE FUTURE.

The Journal of Commerce says: It is exceedingly gratifying, upon looking over our exchanges from every part of the country, to observe the unanimity with which the new year is greeted by newspapers of all shades of party feeling, as the harbinger of more peaceful and better times. From the extreme radical to the most timid conservative there seems to be but one mind on this subject. All rejoice that the new year finds a comparatively happy and prosperous land, in which but so recently the different elements of fraternal and civil strife and bloodshed were seething in one heaving molten mass. Cne desire alone appears to animate the press of the country—that the new year shall be devoted to the Christian task of repairing and binding together the shattered fragments of the best country God ever gave to man for his use and development, and of

Indeed it appears this person has gone to Washington for the express purpose of lobbying against the restoration of the Southern States to their rights in the Union. Was there ever a more indecent exhibition of the least admirable qualities of human nature than is involved in this extraordinary conduct of Mr. Botts? Is the man destitute of the common instincts of his kindred? Does he not feel the disabilities imposed upon those among whom he was born and reared? Is he insensible to the degredation of his native State? Or, is it with some selfish purpose of individual aggrandisement that Mr. Botts proposes to proscribe the people of Virginia? No matter what his motive, his conduct justifies and provokes the usmost energy of moral reprobation .-The very faction whose oppressive schemes he abets, detest the profligacy of his principles, even while they profit by the effect of his treachery.—N. HOME, SWEET HOME.

"Home, thy joys are passing lovely-Jbys no stranger's heart can tell!"

What a charm rests upon the endearing name-my home :-- consecrated by domestic love, that golden key of human happiness. Without this, home would be like a temple stripped of its garlands; there a father wel-comes with fond affection; a brother's kind sympathies and comfort in the hour of distress, and assist at ever trial; there a pious mother first taught the infant lips to lisp the name of Jesus, and there a loved sister dwells in the companion of early days.

Truly, if there is aught that is lovely here below, it is home—sweet home! It is like the oasis of the desert. The passing of our days may be painful; our path may be checkered by sorrow and care; unkindness and frowns may wither the joyousness of the heart, efface the happy smiles from the brow, and bedew life's way with tears, yet, when memory hovers over the past, there is no place in which it so delights to linger, as the loved scene of childhood's Home. It is the polar star of existence. What theers the mariner, far away from his native land in a oreign port or tossed upon the bounding bilows, as he paces the deck at midnight alone -what thoughts fill his breast? He is thinking of the loved ones far away at his own happy cottage. In his mind's eye ho sees the smiling group seated around the cheerful fireside. In imagination he hears them uniting their voices in singing the sweet songs which he loves. He is anticipating the hour when he shall return to his native land, to greet those absent ones dear to his heart.

Why rests the deep shade of sadness upon the stranger's brow, as he seats himself amid the family circle? He is surrounded by all the luxuries that wealth can afford; happy faces gather around him and strive in vain to win a smile? Ah! he is thinking of his own sweet home: of the loved ones assembled in his own cheerful cot.

Why those tears that steal down the cheeks of that young and lovely girl, as she mingles in the family circle? Ah! she is paid a visit to the city of Baltimore for the an orphan; she, too, had a happy home; its purpose of soliciting subscriptions for an en- loved ones are sleeping in the cold and silent dowment to Washington College, known as tomb. Thus it is in this changing world. The objects most dear are snatched away. We are deprived of the friends whom we most love, and our cherished home is rendered desolate. "Passing away," is engraved on all be rewarded and that their contributions, like bread cast upon the waters, will return increased a hundred fold.

Tassing away, is engaged and that their contributions, like things earthly. But there is a home that knows no change, where separation never takes place,—where the sorrowing ones of this world may obtain relief for all their griefs, and where the sighs and tears of earth are unchanged for unending songs of joy.— This home is found in heaven.

In the shadowy past there is one sweet reminiscence which the storms of life can never wither; it is the recollection of home: In the visioned future there is one bright star, whose lustre never fades; it is the hope of home-of a heavenly home.

EXERCISE AND BEAUTY .- The exercise

for the mind gives to its owner blessings he otherwise would not enjoy. The evils of the mind, like the diseases of the body, may be cured by its exercise. Let the man who is melancholy naturally, or through physical imperfection, apply himself to the contemplation of some of the numerous subjects in nature of art, and he will find probably little time for thoughts of a distressing character. Like the body, the mind will expand, become healthier, nore elastic, agile, stronger and buoyant, by exercise. Let us now go from mind to mat-ter, and see what exercise does for that. How many a carefully bred lady has envied the appearance of one of her own sex laboring in the fields, or attending to the duties found in the poor man's home. The well-developed bust, the firm tread, the bright eye, the ruddy cheek, and the happy smile, have all been obtained by exercise. While the fine lady has been reclining upon her couch, enervating her body, the less luxurious woman from circumstances has been compelled to be up and stirring. She has breasted the breeze and used every muscle in the duties she has been performing, before the other commenced her day of trifling. Without exercise the bodily powers decay-with it, this is not only prevented, but the powers are greatly increased. Let then the lady who values her health and beauty, labor hard for them; let her bear in remembrance that to be beautiful she must be healthy, and to be healthy she must exercise both mind and body. A proper amount of exertion will bring the blcom upon the cheek. To the skin that before was dry and shrivelled it will give softness and richness; the eye that was lustreless will be brightened, and the lips that were parched and cracked will be ruby-like by its influece.

REMEMBER ME.—There are not two other words in the language that call back a more fruitful train of past remembrance of friend-ship than these. Look through your library, and when you find a volume that contains the name of an old companion it will say-remember me. Have you an ancient album, the repository of the memontos of early affecamong the marble tombs read the simple and brief inscriptions that perpetuate the memory of the departed ones; they too, have a voice that speaks to the hearts of the living, and it says—remember me. Walk in the hour of evening twilight, amid the scenes of your early rambles; the well known paths, the winding streams, the overspreading trees, the green and gently sloping banks, will recall the dreams of juvenile pleasures, and the recollection of youthful companions; they too, bear the treastreed injunctions—remember me.

JEFFERSON AND BERKELEY. vond the reports of the bill to each house by mies, or to sue them for not helping us out the committees to which it had been referred, in regard to the scheme of the West Virginisns to annex these two counties to their State. Mr. Wade, of the Senate, called up the bill in the early part of last week, but it was postponed at the instance of Mr. Johnson, of Maryland, since which time there has been no further action. We sincerely hope that the merits of this controversy between the two States relative to this county and Berkelev, will be thoroughly discussed in both houses of Congress. It needs but a knowledge of all the facts involved, to shew that the proposed transfer to West Virginia can only be made in violence of the Federal Constitution, and in the most palpable wrong to the people-who have, in large numbers earnestly remonstrated against any severance from the old Commonwealth. If the bill should pass the congressional ordeal, we trust that the President will never permit it to become a law.

MONROE DOCTRINE.

A very large meeting was held in New York last week, at which resolutions strongly endorsing the Monroe doctrine were passed Speeches were made by several gentlemen of political eminence, and letters read from others, all of which declare that it should be the purpose of the Federal government to enforce this celebrated doctrine throughout the whole of this continent. Of course, the French installment of Maximilian as Empefor of Mexico, is the immediate cause of this expression of the public sentinent of the

The people of Mexico really do not deserve any interposition by our government in their affairs. For years and years back they have been in a constant turmoil-overturning one administration of their republic, and putting another in its place, by force of arms, until by their constantly recurring revolutions, they have brought their country almost into the expressed determination of the Washington government to enforce the doctrine. We do not believe that either Maximilian or his French friend, would be willing to resort to arms. Phil. Sheridan, with the army of Juarez, could stand on our border line, and Leckon the usurper to leave, and his nod would be better than a wink to a blind horse: In other words, an order to the august Austrian, issued from Washington, to take up his bed and walk, would be obeyed quickly. But what good would follow? Our government would then, for the sake of common humanity, be required to exercise a protectorate over the reinstated republic; and whenever this is done, there at once begins that process by which the whole of the ancient republe, and its turbulent people, would eventually be brought into the Federal Union, and we all know that our own people give trouble enough in our land, without the necessity of increasing our capabilities in that respect by the addition of the fiery hot heads

We are surely in and all the grasses in great luxuriance. Its need of some such paper, to keep us posted forests are filled with timber of all sorts, and of excellent quality. Iron ore is abundant, ourselves by admitting to our firesides those and easy to be got at. It is well watered by papers that were formerly welcome guests, the Shenandoah and its numerous tributaries. As a farming country it has no superior; and | abusing the Southern people in the most we hope the day is not distant when we will see it once again in all its worted agricultural thriftiness, and its people happy in their homes, and prosperous in their indus-

But this fertile Valley of ours has always needed market facilities. Owing to a want of true legislation, our farmers have had no proper railroad outlet to the great Southern grain market of Baltimore-the natural commercial depot of all the counties of the State lying west of the Blue Ridge. It has been found absolutely impracticable to make Alexandria the market town of the Valley, and while we should be glad to see easy and quick and, from the few numbers we have lately communication between that ancient town and our section of country, we do earnestly hope that a more liberal policy will be developed it at the bottom of the deep waters. Its forby the Virginia legislature; that right of way will be granted to any company to run railroads from Harper's Ferry to the uttermost | the war; but the paper is one of the necessihead of the Shenandoah. Our people have ties of our people, and will find its way again a right to this; and will require the legislature to grant it, no matter whether the chan- poverty, produced by the terrible devastation nel of trade runs to Baltimore or elsewhere out of the State. It is wrong, as well as foolish, to bind our farmers to carry their products out of the natural routes to market, and to attempt to build up Alexandria at their expense. That experiment has been tried in the past, and has signally failed; and we hope to hear no more of it.

Potomac railroad will eventually pass come'ely into the hands of the Baltimore and Chio company; and if so, common justice to our farmers, requires that every facility be to the Commissary General that he objected extended that company for the extension of to his sending any one to take the place of their road as far up the Valley as they may his Commissary; because he had given more wish to go, and to make any connections than satisfaction, he had selected him for his they may desire with the great lines of Cen-tral Virginia. WEST VIRGINIA TAXES.

We notice that the West Virginia tax collectors are busily at work, calling en our people to pay exhorbitant taxes to a government that has no more right, legally speaking, to be levying rates upon the property of citizens of Jefferson county, than we would have to require the French Emperor and the British Queen to pay us damages for the do-Nothing has yet been done in Congress be- struction of our property by the Federal ar-

If the Constitution of the United States is the supreme law of the land, and Gen. Grant has compelled us to acknowledge that it is (and we heartily wish that he would make Summer and his triends bow down to it, too;) then there can be no doubt of the fact that this county is in the State of Virginia; that Boreman and his concern, in taking possession of us, politically and judicially, have violated the clearest provisions of that instrument. It may be true that the ninety-one individuals who were allowed to vote on the subject, expressed the will of the people, or as much of it as was necessary, in regard to the transfer to West Virginia; that the legislature of "restored" Virginia, composed of some six Senators and some fourteen Delegates, gave the consent of the State to the transfer; and that the body of luminous legislators, who made laws for the Western concern, accepted the transfer, yet those acts by no means placed us out of our former position. There was something more than these acts required to complete the transfer, and that was the consent of Congress. Until Congress does give its consent, this county is lawfully in the State of Virginia, and all attempts of West Virginia to exercise jurisdiction over it are but the boldest usurpa-

It is argued by some of Boreman's advocates that the State of Virginia released its right to govern us, by the terms of the act giving consent to the transfer, and by others that Governor Pierpont granted jurisdiction over us to Govenor Boreman. The legislature, nor Governor of Virginia, could do anything of the sort. No State can, constitutionally, enter into any agreement or compact with another without the consent of Congress. A strong reverence for the memory of Stonewall Jackson and a strict regard to our renewed allegiance to the United States need not be inconsistent, much less conflicting. She accordingly granted the request with only the condition that the proposed monument should be characterized by simplicity as the General's life had been. Subscriptions were accordingly raised, confined to the members of the Stonewall Brigade and the Rockbridge Artillery, and the sum of six thousand dollars was, in a week, placed in my hands and by me deposited in bank in Richmond. When the necessary sum is raised, arrangements will be made to have the monument erected at once, after consulta tion on its style and character with Mrs. Jackson and the influential friends of the General. It is desirable that the matter should be conducted with the same delicacy which characterized the original undertaking. MR. DAVIS TRIAL.

STREET, STREET

On the 10th inst., in response to a fesolution of the Schate, the President transmitted a message to that body, enclosing the reports of the Secretary of War and Attorney General, in reference to the charges upon which Jefferson Davis is confiffed and why he is not brought to trial. . . He invites the attention of the Senate to hat part of his annual message referring to Congress the question relating to the holding of the Circuit Courts in the districts where their authority has been interrupted. The Secretary of War states that Davis has been

- wind of

indicted by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia for high treason; also with the crime of inciting the assassination of President Lincoln and with the cruel treatment of Union prisoners of war. He also says that the President deemed it expedient that Davis should first be put upon his trial before a competent court and jury, he was advised by the law officer of the Government that the most prope place for such trial was in the State of Virginia. That State is in the judicial circuit assigned to the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, who has held no court there since the apprehension of Davis, and who declines, for an indfinite period, to do so. Other promiand his character, in the grave yard of his nent gentlemen are mentioned in the Secretary's report, charged with various treasonable offences against the government, some of whom have been classed by the Government to await trial for the alleged offences.— On their application for amnesty and pardon, the Attorney General says he has ever thought the civil courts have alone jurisdiction of the crime of high treason, and pronounces the opinion that Davis and others of the insurgents ought to be tried in some one of the States or Districts in which they, in person, especially controlled the crimes with which they may be charged. Though active hosrequest the compliance of Mrs. Jackson with tilities and flagrant war have not for some that wish it it were agreeable to her feelings. | time existed between the United States and the insurgents, peaceful relations between the Government and the people in these States have not yet been fully restored. None of the justices of the Supreme Court have held Circuit Courts in those States and Districts since hostilities ceased. When the courts are open, and the laws can be peacefully administered and enforced in those States whose people rebelled against the Government, when the peace shall come in fact and in law, the persons now held in military custody as prisoners of war, and who may not have been tried and committed for offences against the laws of war, should be transferred into the custody of the civil authorities of the people of the districts, to be tried for the high crimes and misdeameanors as may be alleged against ate bonds. The Radicals on a Rumpage - Our Delegates gone to Wheeling What they intend doing SHEPHERDSTOWN, VA. Jan. 15; 1866. One would have thought that the radicals of this county would have been satisfied with distranchising nineteen-twentieths of the citzens thereof, and not followed in the wake of Summer, Wilson & Co., advocating negro suffrage and negro equality, but a prominent member of that party boldly announced, a few days ago, that he was in favor of every negro, who could read, having a right to vote and to serve as jurors, enjoying all the privi-leges of a loyal citizen, and at the same time asserted that he would allow no white man, who could not read, to vote. We would advise him to touch this subject lightly, as many of those who carry on the West Virginia government here cannot do much more than read, and that badly. We were astonished at the announcement of such a dostrine by a man claiming to be a Virginian (we beg pardon) a West Virginian, "a mountaineer, who, according to the State motto, is "always free," but it is in keeping with that vindictive spirit which they manifest in their transactions at law and in their business intercourse with the best citizens of this neighborhood; for it is notorious here, that in every civil case tried, it has been decided against the party opposed to radicalism, however strong the evidence may have been in his favor. But let us trace out the logical sequence of the doctrine above announced. By giving all negroes (who can read) the right to vote and serve on juries, they declare their mental and moral equality with themselves, and, of of course, equals in law and by parity of reasoning, equal socialilly, fit companions for themselves and families, and this being their acknowledged status, they are entitled to full fellowship with them, viz.: to hold office and enjoy equal rights and privileges, legally and morally, with white men, who can read. Those who can not read are not as good as a negro, and that party, by disfranchising nineteen twentieths of the citizens of this county, virtually declare they are not equal to the negro. Again the negro being thus in full fellowship cannot be deprived of the privileges arising from social equality, and must be therefore admitted as companions to their daughters, and if they, in obedience to the feachings of their fathers, should prefer an ebo-shin for a husband, there is no law to prevent it, and practical amalgamation, true miscegenation follows. This may shock the sensibilities of your readers, but it is the logical sequence of the doctrine now taught and endeavored to be imposed upon us. Is there no help for us? Have our people so far degenerated as to applaud such teachings? May we not hope that the old Roman theory, that "whom the gods wish to destroy they first make ma !," is true. Revenge and madness are characteristic of the dominant party and must lead to the destruction of our social tabric and tair country

MORE ANON. THE FRENCH PRESS ON MEXICO.

In reference to a rumor which has prevailed that the Government of the United States has sent an envoy to Paris to treat with the Paris Cabinet for the withdrawal of the French troops from Mexico, the Siecle considers that the Emperor's advisers would act wisely in recommending the speedy adoption of such a would recourse, and it assigns the subjoined reasons terior. for entertaining that opinion: "According to the French official journal and its correspondents, all is going on in Mexico as well as can be wished; every thing, therefore, authorizes us to believe that the moment when the French soldiers are to return is not remote. The period of combats seems at last to be ended for the French; in whatever direction the eve is turned over that vast Mexican territory every vestage, we are told, of a regular army of malcontents has disappeared; there remain only to be subdued some bands little to be feared on account of their scanty numbers and want of disipline. This being the case the task devolves by right on the gendarmery and local police, and concerns the French army very little. It would seem indeed scarcely worthy of France to maintain in Mexico an army of 20, or 25,000 men, commanded by one of her Marshals. only to act the part which was recently rerefused by the Governor of Jamaica for the English troops, and which he confided to the Maroons and their bloodhounds. The Engperor Maximilian, besides, has not lost his time since he ascended the throne. Several legions of Belgians, Austrians and Hungarians having ranged themselves under his flag, he is surrounded by a palace guard composed of a stature and bravery that would have made the father of the great Frederick die of vexation. Besides all this he will retain during several years the good services of the old French foreign legion, and he has succeeded in enrolling a native army which feels its honor deeply concerned in attaining success, and which is now in a position to gather laurels in its turn, as testified by the successes of Colonel Mendez. Nothing consequently justifies any longer the presence of the French army in Mexico, and these days of economy the moment is come to put an end to the sacrifices of every kind imposed on us Mexican Empire must henceforth be seated on an immovable base. We have therefore nothing more to do; let us leave, and by so doing we shall succeed in balancing the French budget in a way much more satisfaccrossing from Winchester, the night after the battle of the 19th of September, 1864; closely gardens of the Luxembourg.

AFFAIRS AT WASHINGTON.

The Washington correspondents of the New York papers, in recent letters, furnish the following items of Washington gossip: It is understood that about the 15th instant the members of Congress from the Southern States, both Senators and Kepresentatives, will present themselves in a body; with their credentials, and ask to be admitted to their seats; and that at the same time, or just before, the President's proclamation will appear, declaring the restoration of the Union complete, and those States entitled to their full representation in Congress. If the radical majority shall refuse to admit them, then, it is said, the President will at once make use of those measures of which the Constitution gives him the soutrol, to make the power of the Executive felt. Up to this time he has endeavored to conduct his administration without coming to an open breach with the Republican party. But he thinks he has waited long enough now, and if the radicals are determined to make the issue, he will not shrink from it. He knows that he will be supported by the people at large, and in Congress by the Democrats and moderate Republicans. He is determined that the South shall be no longer deprived of its just rights, and if the radicals in Congress force him to extremit es, they will only have themselves to blame. The radicals are aware of this determination of the President, and are alarmed about it, as the article in the Chicago Tribune of December 39 shows. But the President will not be deterred by such attacks from the fearless discharge of his duty. The great bugbear which stands in the way of the admission of the representatives of the Southern States seems to be the fear that when they are admitted they will clamor for the assumption by Congress of the war debt of the Southern States. It seems to be assumed by Congress, by a joint resolution which will be introduced in a few days; and it is said that there are many members of Congress who are in favor of assuming the debt of the Southern States also, in whole or

The appointment of the sub-committee yesterday by the Joint Committee on Reconstruction, consisting of two members of the Senate and one of the House of Representatives, to wait upon the President of the United States, is regarded as very significant of the intention of that committee with reference to the admission of the Tennessee delegation. The fact is receiving general comment this evening, and it is not doubted but that early in the coming week the Representatives from Tennessee, at least will be admitted to their seats in Congress. The President is exceedingly anxious that this should be done.

When Jeff. Davis and Reagan, rebel postmaster-general, were captured, there was found upon the latter person some sixty thousand dollars of bills of exchange on the Rothschilds, drawn by Trenholm, secretary of the treasury. Our Senator and Delegates have gone to upwards of one hundred thousand dollars, culations upon this statement the President on the 16th inst., and we can expect nothing for collection. They have recently been re- eat of forty-nine that is these eleven conturned by him to the Secretary of the Treasury with an endorsement on the back by the house of Rothschild that there were no funds to meet them. It is alleded by persons who the bills were drawn, but by some means or other they have been spirited away. WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. - Much comment the House of Representatives, declaring that in order to the maintenance of the national. authority and the protection of the loyal citizens of the secoded States, it is the sense of ernment be not withdrawn from those States presence there is no longer necessary. Soon after the passage of the resolutions referred to above, orders were sent to Gen. Terry, at Richmond, not to muster out any more men, and suspending the orders heretofore issued mustering out certain regiments. The reconstruction committee held a session last night of three hours. The discussion was very animated, but no result has yet been arrived at respecting the admission of South-

Capt. Raphael Semmes is now confined at the marine barracks, near the navy yard, in quarters which have been prepared for him; and due caution for his safe-keeping continues to be observed. The Commission to try the charges alleged against him is being organized. Large numbers of witnesses are being summoned, and it is the purpose to bring him to trial as soon as they are on hand.

RAILROAD MEETING.

The stockholders of the Winchester and Potomac Railroad, convened in general meet-ing on Saturday last for the purpose of reor-ganizing the Hoad by the election of a Presi-dent and Directors for the ensuing year.

Hon. Robt. Y. Conrad; who had been acting some time by appointment of the late Beard of Directors, as their President, submitted a report of the present condition and the true prospects of the Company, which was one of great interest, and which was received and alopted unanimously by the Stockholders. Seteral resolutions were then proposed by Mr. Duer, of Baltimore, representing many of the stockholders residing in that c ty, the leading objects of which were a reduction of the expenses of the changed condition of its affairs; which were adopted.

Mr. Andrew Hunter, of Charlestown, offered a resolution, which was adopted after some extended remarks by him in its support; declaring it to be the true policy of the Winencourage a connexion between their rose and the Alexandria, Loudoun and Hampshire railroad, at some point at of hear Harper's

After the a loption of one or two other res! olutions, the purport of which we are unable at this time to state, but which will be put lished in our next issue, the company proceeded to the election of a President and Directors. Mr. Hunter nominated for the office of President Mr. Joseph H. Shrrard, of Winchester, who was elected without opposition, Mr. Wm. B. Baker, who had been placed in nomination, having withdrawn his name-The following gentlemen were then elected Directors on the part of the stockholders, to wit: Robt. Y. Conrad, Wm. B. Baker, Philip Williams and John F. Wall, who, with E. E. Cooke, Dr. Daniel Conrad and Col. Oliver R. Funsten, Directors appointed on the part of the State, constitute the present board. We learn that it is the purpose of the new Board to take immediate measures for the completion of the road, from Stephenson's Depot to Winchester, and if the application which is now pending before the legislature for a charter authorizing the extension of their road to Strasburg, to a connection with the Manassas Gap Road at that point, should be successful, and it cannot be refused except by an act of flagrant disregard of the interest of the people of the Valley, our people will be placed at office in communication with the cities of Richmond, Alexandria and Baltimore, and with our sister towns of the upper Valley. [ Winchester Times.

An estimate of President Johnson's strength in the United States Senate enumerates the following Republican Senators as opposed to Sumner's programme, in favor of the President's policy. Messrs. Doolittle, Morgan, Harris, Cowan, Stewart, Trumbull, Dixon, Henderson, Anators named and the ten Demberats, who will undoubtedly sustain his reconstruction policy.

There are twenty-five States represented in the Senate, but there is the vac nev from know that there were plenty of funds when lowa, leaving the total number of Senators forty-nine. There are two Senators Irom the new State of Colorado waiting to take their seats, but as all the necessary preliminaries is made upon the remarkable resolutions of have not been gone through for the admission of that State these new Senators will not take any action in the proceedings of Congress at present. It is clear, then, from the appearance of things just now, that the Prethe House that the military forces of the gov- sident can by the veto power, if by no other means, defeat the radical opposition. To until the two Houses of Congress shall have overcome his veto there must be thirty-three ascertained and declared that their further votes, or, in other words, he requires only seventeen votes in the Senate to defeat the reason was given for this declaration, and it is radicals. licans we think there will be found more to sustain the administration than the Washington dispatch indicates. Many of these men are on the fence, ready to take any sids their interests point out. As shrewd politicians they will see the utter hopelessness of opposition; they must see that the President will be able to carry out his restoration programme and negative the radical measures of Sumner and his confreres.

BY THE BARD OF MARBLE HALL: In Baltimore, famed for ladies fair, Lived a beautiful girl with flaxen bair, And bonny blue eyes with liquid light, And roscate lips, a glorious sight.

The youngsters fell in love by dozens. Frierds and acquaintances, strangers and cousins; But she a crotchet had got in her head, And said she determined never to wed,

Until she loved a handsome youth
Who would grant all her requests in truth;
And bind him fully never to break
The pledge he had taken for her sake. The young men stood aghast with fear; Some whacked their boots, some pulled their hair; Some said 'twas religion, some said 'twas money; But it took them aback and they felt quite funny

Among them there was a fine young man; Says he, "I love her as well as I can, Now I'll make her the promise, both open and free, And agree to stand by it whatever it be."

The fair one stepped up to his side,
And said, "Should I now be your bride,
You must promise here before us all,
To buy your clothes at MARBLE HALL. No other can suit a husband of mine, Thereats are so handsome, the pants divine." Says Johann, a laughing, "You dear little elf.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE SOUTH.

THE OLD "EXAMINER" REVIVED, The undersigned, having purchased its good will and subscription books, proposes to revive, at an early day, the old

RICHMOND EXAMINER, of which the late John M. Daniels was editor-inchiet, and the undersigned his constant associate for the entire period of the war.

It is helieved that the public will recognise an abpropriate and practical idea in this enterprise.—
Efforts to revive other papers in the South are announced, and it is certainly neither a vissionary nor unworthy endeavour for the literary associates of a gallant spirit that now sleeps in the grave to essay honor to his memosy and a service to the public by reviving the old Examinar newspaper, so long the ornament of Southern letters, an example at once of the scholarship and chivalry of Virginia; and perhaps the only school in the South of pure and classic English, distinct from the models and redeemed from the innovations of Northern instructors. of which the late John M. Daciels was editor-intors.

The Fame of the old Rt hmond Examiner reached to the most distant parts of the world. The paper was well known in Europe. It was prenounced by a distinguished Northern politician; the best exponent of the civilization of the South." It was a school of diterary scholarship for the youth of the South; the glass of Southern chivalry; an example of independence, of couarge, of from spirit in newspaper literature, which its chiefilustrated in his own noble and severe life, and defended, more than once on the field of honor, where the undersigned stood with him in the vindication of the freedom of the press.

Surely there are many people in the South who will u ite in an effort to revive a newspaper which was an ornament to its literature and a school for its virtues. The task is an ambitious one. But the its virtues. The task is an ambitious one. But the undersigned attempts it in no mean or flagging spirit. He has already undertaken to marshal a corps of the old writers for the Examiner; he will be able to reproduce its typographical features, and present to Southern renders a fac simile of their old acquaintance; and he fervently trusts and resolutely pictures every resource of intellect and will to breathe again in this form of material resurrection the same spirit of fearless criticism, chivalrous contest and unhesitating encounter with abuse that animated it of old.

The undersigned over some pleages of affection

The undersigned owes some pledges of affection in this enterprise. His relation with the late John M. Daniel were close, intimate and affectionate to the day of his death. And it will indeed be a labor and inspiration of love it he can produce some echo from the grave of lamented friendship and rekindle from the ashes of the past and the drad some of the fire that iluminated the familiar pages of our literature.

In the present uncertainty of political questions—the displacement of old issues and the imperfect development of the new—it would of course be impossible to state with preiscion the political career of the Examiner. But this may be said with safety, that it wiluse all its influence in restoring order, tranquiliti, and prosperity to the people; and while aspiring to be brave and independent, it will avoid every scheme of faction and disorganization, devote itself to the work of conservatism, and sustain at every risk the prescut President of the United States, as long as he fulfills those noble indications he has all ready given of planting again the rights of constiready given of planting again the rights of constitutional liberty in the South, setting his face against the ratignants of the North, and thus entitling himself o such common support of conservative men in all parts of the country as will secure the continuation of his wise and patriotic administration

No pains or expense will be spared to make the Examiner the news aper of the South. For every department of it the services of the most accomplished a dactive writers will be secured. Special correspondents will be posted in New York and Washington and other important centres of intelligence in the country. A former serive editor of the old Examiner, Edward A. Pollard will be employed as Spoons, Forks, Ladles and Table Cutlery, all of which will be sold on the most reasonable terms. niner, Edward 1. Pollard, will be employed as correspondent from Europe, in which country he pro-poses to write a History of the War, and to form a familiar acquaintance with the politics of Europe, especially in connection with American questions and topics. This correspondence will constitute a special feature of interest in our paper, it will enliven its columns from week to week with the productions of an animated pen; and it will afford our readers a singularly good opportunity to make themselves acquainted with cotemporary Europe, and to apprehend the growing interest of our fereign relations.

> The undersigned was recently the editor o the The undersigned was recently the editor of the Richmond Times, but in consequence of a disagrees ment with the past proprietor of that paper, he has been forced to I ave it and appeal to the civil courts for his rights; and he now proposes to himself the nobler task of reviving a paper endeared to the South by many memories of the past, and associated with so much that is admirable in its heroic and literary name in history. He calls upon the old subscribers of the Examiner, from Virginia to Texas, to rally to its support, to renew their subscripas, to rally to its support, to renew their subscriptions, and to assist in the revival of a paper which has existed for three-quarters of a century, and which has ever been solicitous to honour truth and virtue, prompt to chastise abuses, and ambitious to defend and adorn the civilization and literature of the South.

TO ALL CONCERNED.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

Many of our readers will remember, says the Washington (Pa.) Reporter, that some months since, a Mr. A. B. Craig, then in the employ of Messrs, Chambers & Mathews as a clerk in their store, was discovered by those gentlemen to have been in the habit of puroiting both money and goods from them .-When found out he acknowledged his guilt, and professed to make restitution by surrendering a considerable sum of money and divers quantities of goods, not only to Messrs. Chambers & Mathews, but to Mr. Harding, by whom he had been previously employed for about a year and a half. Having made this reparation of his own free will and accord, and without any inducement whatever being held out by his employers, he suddenly left for parts unknown, and was not heard of again until last week, when Mr. Harding received a letter from him dated at Wheeling, expressive of the deepest penitence for his misdeeds, and requesting an interview with him at the Grant House in that city on Friday last .-Taking a friend along with him, Mr. Harding went to Wheeling on Friday, and, on repairing to the Grant House, found Mr. Craig there, who at once informed him that he had not made full reparation for the injury done to those by whom he had formerly been employed, but declared it his intention then and there to do so to the outside cent. To this end he proceeded to place in the hands of Mr. Harding the sum of $5,500 to be applied as follows:-$3,500 to Mr. Harding; $1,000 to Messrs. Chambers & Mathews, and $1,000 to Mr. Isaac Beeson, of Uniontown, in whose employ he had been previous to his coming to this place. This, he alleged, covered every cent he had taken from his employers, and he expressed the utmost joy at having been able to restore it all to them, as he would now enjoy the peace of conscience to which he had been a stranger so long as the ill-gotten gains remained in his possession. As some curiesity may be felt to know where he has been since his departure, it may be well enough to give his own story, which is this:-Immediately after leaving Washington, Penn., he proceeded to New York, whence he sailed by the first steamer for California, which he contemplated making his future home. Arriving at the Golden State, he proceeded to convert his government securities into gold, which he was enabled to do at a discount of twenty four cents on the dollar. During his whole stay there, as he says himself, he was constantly suffering from the pangs of a guilty conscience, and was allowed no peace of mind whatever. The sense of guilt preyed upon him like a canker; and, after enduring untold agony from the goadings of the silent monitor within, he at length resolved to come back, and make a full and complete restitution to those he had so deeply injured. He accordingly returned to New York, where he disposed of his gold- at the regular premium, whereby he realized enough in the way of profit to defray the expenses of his trip to opes, Note, Letter and Foolscap Paper, Ink, Pens, Pocket Pensile Blank Books, Marin Books, Plank Books, Paper Books, Pensile Blank Books, Marin Books, Pensile Blank Books, Pensile Blank Books, Marin Books, Pensile Blank Books, Marin Books, Pensile Blank Books, Marin Books, Pensile Blank Books, Pensi California and back. Having done this, he at once came to Wheeling, where he sought DIES, together with an assortment of School Books, and obtained the interview with Mr. Harding, which resulted as above described. Looking at this thing from beginning to end it certainly presents one of the most remarkable cases we ever heard or read of. This young man had been in the habit of robbing his employer almost daily, for a period of not less than three or four years, in the course of which time he must have taken money and goods together amounting to over $10,000. Notwithstanding this long indulgence in sin and the constant practice of the craft and canning hecessary to carry on his systematic robbery, he seems never to have become hardened in guilt, but on the other hand, when charged with the offence, promptly confessed his crime, and proceeds at once to restore, as was supposed, the whole amount taken .-Leaving his employers under the impression that he had made them whole, or nearly so, he takes his departure for the Pacific coast, intending never to return; but the restitution he had made being only partial, he is still troubled by the sense of guilt. He still has $5,500 in his possession, which for aught that was known by any save his Maker and himself, honestly belonged to him, but the consciousness that it had been fraudulently taken from others gave him no rest, and at length he comes back and restores it all to its rightful owners.

NICELY CAUGHT .- A young gent is discovered surrounded by friends, who are jesting with him regarding his attention to a dertain young lady.

Young Gent.—" Boys I'll tell you how it is. You see I care nothing for the girl—it is the old man's pocket-book, I am after." Chorus of Friends .- " Ha! ha!"

Second Scene, a parlor—Time, 11, P. M. —Young lady seated. Young gent rises to depart, hesitates, as if bashful, and then slowly remarks: "Miss Matilda, excuse me, but you must be aware that my attentions can not have been without an object." Young Lady .- "Ah, yes, I have heard and shall be only too happy to grant what you desire. (Takes from the table a paper parcel, and unfolding it displays a paper parcel, and unfolding it displays a large, old-fashioned and empty morocco pocket book.) This, I have been informed, is G. W. LEISENRING & CO. et book.) This, I have been informed, is that object. Permit me to present it to you, and congratulate you that you will in the future have no occasion to renew these visits and attentions."

Dan Marble was once strolling along the wharves in Boston, where he met a tall, gaunt figure, a "digger" from California, and got into conversation with him.

"Healthy climate, I suppose?" " Healthy? It ain't anything else. Why, stranger, there you can choose any climate you like, hot or cold, and that without traveling more than fifteen minutes. Just think of that the next cold morning when you get out of bed. There's a mountain there, with a valley on each side of it, the one hot and the other cold. Well, get on the top of the mountain, with a double-barrelled gun, and you can, without moving, kill either summer or winter game just as you will !"

"What, have you ever tried it?" "Tried it! often; and would have done pretty well, but for one thing. I want a dog that would stand both climates.
