THE UNWILLING BRIDE.

BY H. D. WHITE. "In earlier days and fairer fortuses, she had plighted her troth to a peasant, with whom the May day of his life had been happily passed on the vine-clad shores of the sunny Rhine; but a cloud brooded portentiously over her future, and her lover was torn from her presence to bear arms in his country's defence. Her parents favored the suit of a wealthy noble, who, attracted by her uncommon loveliness, pressed his addresses; and by the authoritive assistance of her sordid relatives, won, at last, her hand. She married him; but the leaf that was green at her bridal fell upon her tomb."—[From a n Unpublished Manuscript.]

I have told him that I loved him,
And it cannot be unsaid;
My speech shall never grieve them,
Though my heart he cannot wed.
I have breathed the yow they bade mo,
And he deems that he is blessed; Thus be said as he embraced me, And his lips to mine were pressed.

They have torn me from my idol,
They have turned my heart to stone,
But the grief that rends my bosom
I will utter unto none.
He hath wealth and worldly honor,
And his name was one of pride;
But my heart it is another's,
And can never be his bride.

But I've breathed the fatal promise—
On my hand I bear his ring—
'Tis a gem of priceless value,
Yet it hath an adder's sing.
What to me are rauk and station?

Can such soothe a broken heart?
Were my home to be a palace,
'Twould not cure my bosom's smart. But my destiny, I cannot,
I may not seek to make a change;
Though from him my soul adoreth,
Then my love can ne'er estrange.

When the red 'eaf in the forest
Tells of Autumn's merry times—
When I list in pensive sadness,
To my native village chimes—
When the lover's star is beaming
In the deep sky clear and gray—
Oft my thoughts will fondly wander
With my heart away—away.

And he will sit beside me—
He will mark my tearful eye,
He will see my bosom tremble,
And will hear love's smothered sigh;
But he i e'er must know the source
Whence my worldless sorrow flow;
Less breather my worldless sorrow flow; I can breathe my grief to ro one, And must bear alone my woc.

But I've told him that I loved him, And it cannot be unsaid,
My speech shall never grieve them,
Though my heart he cannot wed. I have breathed the vow they bade me, And he dreams that he is blessed, Thus he said when he embraced me, And his lips to mine were pressid.

THE RE-UNION OF VIRGINIA.

The following report was introduced in the House of Delegates on this subject Thursday

VIBGINIA AND WEST VIBGINIA. Mr. Woodson, from the Select Committee on the Restoration of the State of Virginia, and the Committee on Finance, to whom was referred the consideration of the exp diency of appointing commissioners to proceed to Wheeling for the purpose of making an adjustment with the States of Virginia and West Virginia, made the following report:

"Your Committee are satisfied that the people of Virginia deeply regret that from any cause the Commonwealth of Virginia should have been dismembered and the State of West Virginia created within her former limits-an event, in the opinion of your committee, injurious to the people of both States, creating the necessity of supporting two governments, instead of one, greatly increasing the burdens of taxation, and calculated to produce alienation between the people of the two States by raising puesti ns of crontrovercy Baltimore street, have perhaps the most between them upon different questions, extensive stock of Clothing in the city, of which the chief are the proper adjustment of the public debt of the State of should secure them a share of the public Virginia, and a fair division of the public property. Cherishing a sincere affection for our brethren of West Virginia, and the truest anxiety for establishing and perpetuating the re-union of the States, we do solemnly and confidently appeal to the like disposition among our brethren of West Virginia that they will concur with us in declaring, as we do hereby declare, every desire, as soon as practicable, to adopt proper measures of co-operation to re-unite and maintain unimpaired the original integrigreat place of resort for those who need anything to protect or adorn the head. His Hats and Caps are always of the latest style and finest finish, and what ty of old Virginia; and with this view your committee recommend the adoption of the

That commissioners, resident citizens of this State' shall be appointed by the joint vote of the two Houses of the General Assembly to proceed forthwith to the seat of government of West Virginia, for the purpose of communicating to the Governor and General Assembly of that State a copy of the forego-South Calvert street, where those who ing resolutions and the report of the committee desire to replenish their stocks of Fur-niture, will find ample opportunities for treat on the subject of the restoration of the State of Virginia to its former jurisdict and boundaries, provided that the result of such negotiation, if favorable to such restoration on any terms shall be subject to the approval of the Legislature of Conventions of the respective States as hereafter may be mutually agreed upon.

The commissioners appointed under the foregoing resolution are also empowered and directed to treat with the authorities of West Virginia upon a proper adjustment of the public debt of the State of Virginia, due or incurred previous to the dismemberment of the State, and of a fair division of the pub-

Mr. Garnett wished the report should be laid on the table until the committee should present a minority report.

Mr. Pendleton twished to lay the report on the table until Monday, when the minority report could be presented. Then the consideration of the subject could be made the order of the day. Mr. Woodson urged the immediate consideration of the report.

was at his table writing, his mail was brought in, and contained a small package about four inches square, and one and a half inches thick. The package was enveloped in com-mon white paper, and on one side had a stamp of the Pioneer Gallery, San Francisco, atattached. The superscription was printed, and evidently cut from the title page of the "California Reports," with the exception of "Washington, D. C.," which had been cut out of a newspaper, both of the slips being pasted on the face of the package.

The Judge, upon first taking up the parcel remarked to Judge Lake, who was present, that it must be a photograph, and expressed surprise at its reception. He stepped to the window and providentially discovered when he had opened it about one-eighth of an inch, that it was not a photograph, and called Judge Lake's attention to the singular appearance of the box. The latter, upon looking at it, pronounced it to be a torpedo, and after putting it in water, took it out to the Capitol, (opposite the rooms of Judge Field.) where

Supreme Court, examined the package. These gentlemen finally went into the carriage way under the Senate steps, and shielding themselves behind one of the columns, threw the box against the wall, shattering off the lid and exposing the contents. About a dozen copper cartridges had been placed in the box, with the bullets radiating from the centre, which formed a space of about one inch in diameter. The s des of the cartridges had been filed through so as to afford communication with the powder. In the little cavity surrounded by cartridges was fixed a peculiar friction match, resembling a small roll of paper, one end of which was attached to the bottom of the box and the other to the lid, and arranged so as to be ignited upon the least tension that might be caused by opening

CONFEDERATE GENERALS IN MEMPHIS.-A letter from Memphis in a New York paper has the following notices of certain military notabilities recently attached to the Coufedcrate army:

I have met in this city several of the prominent war men of the late Confederate armies, among whom I may mention especially Lieuteanent-Generals Stewart and Forrest Stewart is an elegant man, and will ever be found among the faithful. He says he cannot go into extacles over his defeat—he cannot jump up and hug the fellow who knocked him down but he will hold himself in readiness to help that fellow knock down any who comes along. General Stewart says there is not a man in the whole South, who was in the Confederate army, who is not in favor of peace and harmony. All those who want to fight now would not fight when they had a chance. I called on Forrest, at his store, and saw the great cavalryman selling a ham to a son of Ham, by-theway, which is no joke-at least the American citizen of African descent didn't think so, for he was growling, as the cockneys would say, at the ham-azing high price of the article.-Forrest is about torty-five years of age, is six foot two inches in height, and weighs one hundred and seventy-five pounds. He is erect, and well proportioned, has no surplus flesh, and moves with great ease. He is perfectly satisfied with the condition of things, and is in hearty co-operation with the loyal men of Memphis. I went to the store of General Mark Wright, and found him all right-and tight, L ma add, for it was New Year's day, and he had been egg-nogging it to such an extent, that he was pretty nigh egy-nogged up when I met him. He is no "Fanian," but he hurroged like one of the boys.

Wythville Dispatch) the last four years have been years of sadness—and surely if one year can be distinguished above another, eighteen hundred and sixty five will be long remembered by us—it appears natural to hu-man nature to reckon time from some important event which has transpired with themselves; therefore, in the future, it will be an epoch from which to date all important events. Perhaps we may say our most pros-perous days commenced in eighteen hundred and sixty-six. All Southerners are aroused as they never were before to action, each one is busy trying to retrieve the great losses they have sustained, to those we would sympathisngly say, having with them drank of the same cup of reverses, "whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, that do with thy might," rcmembering to have a conscience void of offence towards God and man. Success will almost be sure to crown your efforts. As a chivalrous people we resorted to arms to decide the contest of the great struggle of independence, while we know we have nothing o be ashamed of in our countrymen in point of valor, for to recount the many brave deeds done by our fathers, sons and brothers, we exclaim "truth is stranger than fiction," many dearer than life itself lie buried on the battle field with no marks to tell us where their loved forms are mouldering, having fought even to death in our great common cause. All tell us that it was not cowardice that subjugated us, but God allowed it for his own glory. Let us trust in Him to "make us glad according to the years wherein we have seen evil." Arms have decided against us, we expect and intend to abide by the decision. Our people have taken the cath of loyalty and expect to obey to the Astronomers, Theologians and Divines have predicted that wonderful events are totranspire in eighteen hundred and sixty-six. It is thought by some, that this year will witness the advent of that happy period known as the "Millennium," when the Lamb and the Lion shall lie down together, and the little child shall lead them. We do not he, with Mr. Broom, one of the clerks of the profess to be well versed in biblical lore, but as far as our knowledge extends we know of but one circumstance that would lead us to this conclusion. We are told that anterior to this event the Devil will be loosed for a thousand years, although we do not pretend to know the exact length of time he has enjoyed his freedom, we can positively affirm that he has been prowling about these regions for some time, especially for the last four years, and vices have been cultivated as virtues. His agents have held high carnival during that time, but whether the "Millennium is near at hand or not, there are many alive to see the commencement of eighteen hundred and sixty-six who will not live to see its close; this reflection should provoke us to form new resolutions, to determine so to live and act, that if the great event should hasten upon us, we may be found with our lamps trimmed and filled with oil, and ready to enter into the enjoyment of that ecstatic existence which is reserved for the

A BEAUTIFUL QUEEN .- Queens and literary women are very seldom handsome, but there are some exceptions to the general rule: The Empress of Austria is one of the most beautiful of European Princesses, and famed for her kindness of temper, notwithstanding her rather haughty bearing. She is tall, slender, graceful, with a very white skin, a good deal of color, large, limped blue eyes, and an amazing head of light hair, which she wears in eight massive braids, wound round and round her head, forming a magnificent diadem of hair, such as very few women could match from their own resources. She is also said to be highly accomplished. She speaks all the principal tongues of Europe, and is particularly fond of the English language, which she speaks as perfeetly as though it were her native dialect. She is an excellent musician, paints and draws extremely well, and is one of the boldest and most skilful horsewomen of Austria. She possesses a stud of very valuable horses, and a pack of splendid hounds; and she is said to take the warmest interest in the racing and hunting, of all Europe, and to know by respondent of the Baltimore Gazette, writing from Hampton, Jan. 16th, says: We hear occasionally some news of Mr. Davis, and some lately which is authentic. He has twice been very sick within the past six weeks, suffering from erysipelas, and at one time was at the point of death, so near to it that he gave to his physician many farewell messages to his wife and family, and expressed a wish that the world might know through him (the physician) how pure and disinterested his motives had been in all that he had undertaken. This same physician has been removed from his place, and ordered elsewhere. It is presumed that he showed too much sympathy for his suffering patient. The guard over Mr. Davis—always very heavy—has been recently doubled, and the officer, who remains in the same room with him, is not allowed to speak, read, smoke or sleep during the twenty-four hours of his watch.

The name of General Miles is not amo the number of general officers lately mus-tered out, and it appears that he will be retained to take charge of Mr. Davis, since he so literally carries out his instructions from the Secretary of War.

He says:

THE NEGRO SUFFRAGE BILL.—The passage, by the House yesterday, of the negro suffrage bill for this District, without qual-'go it blind' on the staple and trust to luck ification, caused no little surprise, even in Republican circles. The majority by which it passed was also a matter of astonishment, and the list of ayes was found to contain very many names of those who have been rnown as in conviction opposed to the measure, especially in the form it passed. The fact is thus demonstrated that from dread of loss of home popularity or some such cause, Republican members who are in heart oppos-ed to negro suffrage, or unqualified negro-suffrage at least, and who have so expressed. themselves without reserve, cannot be counted upon to vote against it on the crucial test, consequently we are not of those who are hopeful of the rejection, or material modification, by the Senate, of the House bill passed yesterday. We shall not be much sur-prised, indeed, after yesterday's vote in the House, to see it pass in the Senate by a vote putting it beyond the reach of defeat by the last hope of a Presidential veto. This may be an unpalatable statement, but such is our conviction, founded on the best information we can obtain. Well, it is after all, a matter that affects Congress quite as much as us.

If members of Congress choose to make the national capital a negro Utopia, throwing around it such inducements for that class as shall cause them to swarm here from all quarters in overwhelming numbers, and if this city, thus populated, shall present the aspect of the capital of Dahomey rather than a civilized nation, will it be to the discredit of the result of t of the people of this District or of the national representatives? We see the first flash of this "glorious dawn" of the negro equality and negro centralization here in the crowds of negroes filling the House and Senate galleries and applauding the speakers on the floor. If the members of Congress wish to carry this negro elevation business to its logical

TO THE PUBLIC OF JEFFERSON. For the purpose of carrying out the wishes of the people of this County, as expressed in the County meetings held in October and November last, money is needed-and our citizens are requested to pay, as much as their poverty will permit, to N. S. White, treasurer of the Committee on Finance, and to do it

THE CONGRESSIONAL REPORT-STA-TUS OF JEFFERSON.

In our issue of last week we commented upon some of the points made by the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives fo its very lame report upon the status of this county; and, although we believe that the fact that polls were opened at only two of the eight places of voting, while the Act of the Virginia General Assembly giving the consent of the State to the transfer, required polls to be opened at each place of voting, is positively conclusive of the case as against the pretensions of West Virginia, we feel bound to say a word or two upon some other of the arguments urged by the Committee.

The Report says that there is no doubt that West Virginia has the de-facto government of Jefferson, and, therefore, that State should not be disturbed in its possessions .-This is simply absurd. It has no force whatever. By what means did West Virginia obtain this de facto government? By a gross outrage-a base cheat upon the people; and by an equally base fraud upon the law which ordered the sense of the people to be taken on the subject of the transfer. But suppose there was force in the proposition, and that Congress would adopt it as its rule of action ! It would be compelled to extend it to other cases. The Southern Confederacy itself would have its independence of the Federal government acknowledged by the same rule of action. It certainly had a de facto govemment, and an admirable one at that, over the whole Southern States. If Congress has no right to disturb the West Virginia anthorities in this county, it had no right to interfere by force of arms, or otherwise, against the Confederacy.

This very de facto government of West Virginia in this county exists in consequence of an invasion of the State of Virginia by the officials of that State; and it is made the duty of Congress, by the Federal Constitution, to repel it-a duty which Congress should perform at once, and which it could do without resort to any other means than passing a bill or resolution refusing to sanction the transfer.

The Report is unwilling to admit that the Richmond Legislature is the de jure legislature of the State, and therefore does not consider the repealing bill of that body entitled to consideration. It is useless to argue such a proposition as this-indeed the Report itself furnishes a complete vindication of both the de jure and de facto character of the Virginia Assembly. In the opening of the Report, the Committee has to speak of the "restored government" of Virginia as the only authorized, legal government in the State: and affirms that it has been so recognized by Congress itself. Peirpoint is claimed by the report to have been the only lawful Governor of the State, that he is so at this time, and that he has been so recognised by all the departments of the federal Government, and that "he is now so recognised by the people of Virginia." Each and every member of each branch of our legislature was elected and holds his seat by virtue of the Constitution and laws of "restored Virginia," and none other, and the people of the State and Governor Peirpoint, recognise them as forming the de jure and de facto government of the State. It is therefore mere folly in the Committee to report that the present legislature is not the only true and lawful legislature of the State. If it is not the true and lawful legislature of the State, then that other legislature that sat in the same place last winter, and which was elected under the constitution and laws of old Virginia, was, and if it was, what becomes not only of the transfer of Jefferson and Berkeley, but of the State of West Vir-

The Report is full of such flimsy argumpts: indeed it is perfectly apparent that the Committee has derived its arguments, as well as its facts, from unscrupulous men who advocate and House of Representatives. He is a man the transfer. But there is one point made of decided ability, and we have no doubt will in this report, which should be known by every citizen, in order that it may be seen to what desperate straits the West Virginians are driven. The Committee says that it was not necessary for Congress to give consent to the compact between Virginia and West Virginia, for the reason that at the time of the agreement on the part of Virginia, there was no such State as West Virginia. But let us give the Committee's own language:

"It was therefore supposed by the Senators and Representatives of West Virginia in " Congress, that inasmuch as West Virginia " was not a State, and had not the capacity "to enter into any 'compact or agreement'
"with the State of Virginia in providing the "means of transferring these counties to the a State of West Virginia, and giving her assent to such transfer, was not a compact or agreement, within the meaning of the Constitution of the United States, and that " therefore no ratification by Congress was "necessary to the validity of the transfer."

Here, then, it is clearly admitted—for the Committee contend that this supposition is correct—that the State of West Virginia was not a State, and could not enter into a com-

It is of such material as this the Commit tee build up the claims of West Virginia to the rich county of Jefferson, against the wishes of three-fourths of the voters of the county; against the unanimous sense of the State legislature; and against the plainest requirements of the Federal Constitution.

BOREMAN REBUKED.

The garrulous Governor of the " no State of West Virginia has had his ultra radicalsm terribly rebuked. The people of Wheeling, comprising a voting population of a little more than fifteen hundred, defeated the Boremanites yesterday week, in a square, hand-to-hand fight, by upwards of 500 majority. The conservative ticket, made up of old Whigs and Democrats, has triumphed in the municipal election in the most signal manner-beating their auti-Johnson opponents by a clean sweep. This election furnishes another proof that the people of West Virginia are hostile to the Stevens and Bore. man policy, and are willing to regard the war as over, and the Union restored; and The President and Congress-Authentic should be a warning to the miserable demagogues, who make up the Western legislature, to be careful how they follow the lead of Boreman and Jo. HOPE IN THE PRESIDENT,

The conservative conduct of the President has fixed on him the hopes of the Southern people. They look to him as the only means by which the country can be saved from the ruin that would inevitably follow if the fanaticism, that is now madly raging in the two houses of Congress, should be embodied into laws. That this is true; that our people do thus put their hopes and trust in him, is shown in many ways, but in none more clearly than in the fervency of their Sabbath prayer for "the President of the United States"-a prayer that has generally, heretofore, been a mere formula; but now, when our country seems to be rushing to ruin, and | tling the foundation of things. These frequent "all others in authority" seem to be hastening its end, the great Ruler is earnestly besought not only to preserve the President besought not only to preserve the President meetings. As to any propositions for making in health and safety, but to give him the the payment of the rebel debt unconstitutionpower to stay the madness of the day, and to al, he considered them unnecessary, and doubtrestore perfect peace to the land; and men and women, and even children, join in the petition with the fervor of speech which their payment would ever year grow stronger proves the utterance of the heart.

ATTORNEYS.

That liberal and enlightened statesman Jos. As Joe's bread and butter depends upon the exclusion, from the bars of this circuit, of all | to be considered fit to ratify a constitutional the older gentlemen of the profession, we are not surprised at his course, but we think the people, who are so unfortunate as to be involved in controversies requiring the intervention of the courts, will suffer even more than he will gain. This conduct is even more radical than that of old Thad .-- who has had the grace to introduce a motion into Congress doing away with the oath so far as lawyers of the United States courts are concerned; but, verily, old Thad's grace only came to bim when he found that the Supreme Court was about to decide the test oath un-

RECONSTRUCTION.

Condensed Statement of the Views of the President-Testimony from a Radical

Below we publish a letter from the Cincin-nati Gazette, the leading Radical newspaper of Ohio. The author of the letter is so well known that it is hardly necessary to say that he is an intense Radical, but exhibits in all his writings a disposition to see things as they are, and not as he would have them. Besides he has the requisite force and keenness of intellect to state accurately what the President did say, while superficial minds seek to infer from the phraseology ideas to square with their own.

These expressions of the policy of the Presdent are not new to us. All and singular of them have been stated from time to time in these columns during the past year. Even if we had not the warrant of authority for such versions, none other could be gathered from the very numerous addresses of the President to various delegations of politicians during the post year ;

Statements (from Written Records) of what the President says.

[Special Correspondence Cincinnati Gazette.] WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 .- I have not been swift to rush into print with garbled state-ments of what the President said to Senator Smith and Representative Jones, (as retailed by them on the avenue,) concerning his relations to Congress, and the existing differences of policy. I have thought it more respectful at once to the President and to my readers to say nothing till I could speak advisedly.

But it is well that the country should understand precisely how the President does talk, and how the representatives of the peo-ple talk to him. If a breach between them is widening, the country should know who widens it; if a disposition to conciliate is shown -who shows it; if an indifference to consenences-who manifests that. I have therefore taken pains to procure correct accounts of several recent interviews with the President. Careful minutes of some were made at the time, and I am writing with these before

WHAT CONSTITUIONAL AMENDMENTS HAVE BEEN SUGGESTED.

In one case several members, popularly known as Radicals, said to the President that if he would be satisfied with constitutional amendments, basing representation on voters, making all men equal before the law, except ing in the matter of suffrage, repudiating rebel debt, and guaranteeing national obligations, hey would make an effort to bring the party Congress to an adjustment of the reconstruc tion question on that basis; and would even go to the length of admitting Tennessee in advance of all the other States and of the general adoption of this policy by the South, if

Without entering into any serious consideration of their subject matter, the President said he had objections on general grounds to any constitutional amendments. He was once in favor of some himself, and was on record in their favor; but these were changed times, and the tendency was too great towards unsetamendments were calculated to weaken the force and solemn sanction of the constitution, and make its provisions like the work of town ed their propriety. The Southern people were in no danger of ever wanting to pay those debts. The objections in the South to and stronger. How would it look to provide by constitutional amendment that the United States debt should not be repudiated? Yet this would be no more improper than the other. Furthermore, there was gross inconsistency in the proposed mode of securing these constitutional amendments. They were to be proposed by a Congress from which the South was excluded. Then the rebel States, who were unfit to be represented in Congress, were amendment. If they were expected as States to act upon the question of ratifying them. they should be permitted through their representatives in Congress to act also in propos-ing them. In effect he did not think it right to demand the adoption of any constitutional amendment as a condition of admitting Southern members to Congress, because those States were in now and entitled to all the rights of

LEGAL GUARANTEES SUGGESTED.

Perhaps the most generally accepted plan of reorganization involves constitutional a mendments. But there are others in Congress who prefer to regulate the whole subject y law. Among these are the prost who wish to meet squarely the rugged issue of negro suffrage. In the last Congress Mr. Winter Davis came very near carrying through such a law. Substantially the same measure is now before Congress again, and is known as Ashley's bill. Numerous Congressmen have urged this upon the President's attention, and more have pressed the general policy of pro-viding rather by law than by constitutional amendment the guarantees which the entire Unions party (with exceptions too insignificant to be mentioned) agree in considering essential to any safe organization. To such suggestions the President has re-plied that he considered Mr. Ashley's measure simply a bill for the dissolution of the Union. He had risked his own life and property to preserve the Union. The people of the country stood, and had stood, upon the position that the rebellion was to be put down and the States thereby kept in the Union .-

Mr. Ashley's bill now proposes to turn them out and prescribe conditions for their return. He thought the true course for the Union party to pursue was "with open arms and cordial hands' to welcome these States into a participation in the Government. Thus we would have them as friends of the Union party, and not make them as enemies by slamming thought he could rely on a strong, united found their way into the public documents. During the rebellion the loyal Government During the rebellion the loyal Government had in a sense been overthrown. It was therefore the duty of the United States and of the President, during this time, to do all in their power to secure to these States republican governments. This became especially his own duty, as one charged with seeing that the laws were executed. His own action in prescribing terms upon which these States should be recognised, in so far as he had prescribed any not in harmony with their States. Here, then, it is clearly admitted—for the Committee contend that this supposition is correct—that the State of West Virginia was not a State, and could not enter into a compact with Virginia. Now this is exactly what we believe, and what every man who takes the Constitution as his guide, must believe. And we know it is no more a State now than it was then; or rather, has no more right to be a State now than it had then.—The converse of this proposition must be true, according to the logic of the report. West Virginia not being a State, could enter into no compact with it, and, therefore, had no right to pass the bill by which she agreed to the compact, and Congress had no power to either create the State of West, Virginia, or to annex this sounty to it.

In the following characteristic way:

He had never taken any oath, and hoped he would not be considered presumptuous in appearing thus before his Honor. He never intended to take any oath to secure the liberty of speech, and he meant to speak or die. He had been asked to come into this court and take part in the discussion. SHEPHERDSTOWN CORRESPONDENCE.

The Ignorance and Incompetency of those in power showing themselves - Gov. Boreman's Message-His Ontissions and His Vindictiveness-His Jurisdiction over this SHEPHERDSTOWN, VA., Jan. 22, 1866.

The Board of Supervisors have published ome eighteen or twenty orders recently, reieving certain parties therein named from payment of taxes on lands wrongly and out-rageously assessed. This is but justice, yet it shows only too plainly that the officers making the assessments were either totally unfit for the position, or else the assessments were purposely made wrong through a vindictive feeling to the owners of property as-sessed. In either case, the wrong of outraged people eall loudly for relief from the bondage and burthens they now en-

Governor Boreman has spoken and he hides not his bitter feelings from these whom he calls " maleontents" in Jefferson; because they forsooth, knowing and believing that they have been illegally and unjustly annexed to his State, choose to test the legality of the acts which claimed to impose such disabilities upon honest men. But he is silent as to the reason for his organizing his government in this county, and as to his auhority for so doing, but says he sought the law to put down the open, manly proceed ngs of high minded men to secure them justice and an honest living, which he calls sedition," but he could find no remedy and could not prevent any opposition to the exewhatever for organizing a West Virginia government here or exercising jurisdiction over us, until Congress had sanctioned the pro-posed transfer, and that all civil and judicial proceeding under his authority here, are null and void, unless the legislature shall hereaf-ter pass an act legalizing them. He disposes of the "main argument," in support of West Virginia by its friends here, by saying that the legislature will at once proceed to pay West Virginia's proportion of the Vir-ginia debt contracted before the war. The riends of West Virginia in this county menly declared that the State would repu liate the old State debt, though the paymen of her share was one of the conditions upon which West Virginia was formed into a State. Upon this assertion they argued that the the door in their faces.

THE PRESIDENT'S STATEMENT OF HIS OWN THEORY OF ECONSTRUCTION.

In such connections the President has more than once stated his own theory of reconstruction in words much more explicit than have found their way into the public decrease.

THE PRESIDENT'S STATEMENT OF HIS OWN THEORY OF HIS OWN, however, that Congress has succeeded in keeping the quantry disunited; now that the radicals have triumphed in both Houses in opposition toward the Executive policy of reconstruction, Mr. Johnson dare not, neither is he willing to risk a foreign theory of the world be much lighter in West Virginia was formed into a State.

Upon this assertion they argued that the taxes would be much lighter in West Virginia than in Virginia, but the very opposite is true. The taxes in this portion, at least, of West Virginia, are nearly double what they are now in Virginia with all her losses, and expenses of reorganizing the State go-

A perusal of the Governor's message cannot fail to impress any one with feelings of regret that so much vindictiveness and unkind feelings should be manifested towards those who are honestly, and upon principle, opposed to his radical sentiments. He takes not one jot from the odious test oath, but recommends additions to it and the passage of commends additions to it and the passage of the creative works of peace. The following important corresp ctween General Weitzel and General Craword we take from the New Orleans Delta of he 12th instant: BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Jan. 1, 1866.

FROM THE RIO GRANDE.

Major General Godfrey Weitzel, Command-ing District Rio Grande and Twenty-fifth

Army Corps:

General—Information has just reached no that a number of soldiers belonging to he army of Mexico, were this morning tured in battle by the soldiers of the so-called, Emperor of Mexico, and that by orders of the traitor Mejis, they are to be shot to death early to morrow morning. I wish, General, otest, in the name of humanity, against violation of the usages of civilized warfare, and request that you, on the part of the United States, prevent this atrocious murder of patriots, in cold blood, by the tools of the

The opinion of the people and or the Government of the United States, in relation to the inhuman orders of Maximilian, are well known, and to permit the patriotic soldiers of a sister republic, with which we hold diplomatic relations, to be butchered by orders of an usurper within sight of the United States flag, and within sound of a camp of United States troops, is to prove false to every principle that an American citizen holds dear.

As an officer of the army of the Mexican Republic, I call upon you, General, to prevent this dreadful crime. I have the honor to be, General, with respect. your obedient servant,

R. CLAY CRAWFORD, Maj. Gen. Div. Mexican Army.

GEN. WEITZEL TO GEN. CRAWFORD. HDO'RS DIV. OF THE RIO GRANDE, BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Jan. 2, 1866. R. Clay Crawford, General of Division,

Army of Mexico. General-I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of yester-day. I have notified General Mejia of the opinion which I firmly believe my Government holds on that subject, and entered solemn protest, in writing, against the act. General Mejia replies that he is obliged to obey the orders of his Government. I will notify my superiors of this but I have posi-tive written orders not to commence hostilities without instructions so to do.

I am, General, very respectfully, your obedient servant. Major General Commanding.

From the same source we extract: General Crawford was shot at by the Mexicans over the river, a few days since, while riding on our side, just below the town. General Weitzel sent an immediate protest to the traitors, which was received, and an apology was returned; but these insults are

THE MISCHIEF ON THE RIO GRANDE

The statement that the capture of Bagdad was accomplished by a band of adventurers, organized for purposes of plander, is not sustained by the facts, so far as they can be gathered from the meagre reports. It appears that the guiding spirit of the expedition was General Crawford, recently an officer of the United States, now a Major General in the army of the Mexican, Republic regularly commissioned by President Juarez. The expedition was under the immediate command of Colonel Reed, the Chief of General Crawford's Staff.

General Crawford has apparently been very active and successful in organizing a force in Texas for service in the Liberal cause. He has issued commissions to several ex-Federal officers, furnished them with money; and authorized them to recruit for the army of Juarez. The commission thus i sued reads as follows:

"MEXICAN REPUBLIC.

AMERICAN DIVISION, NEAR MATAMORAS, Mexico. "The Mexican Government having duly authorized Major General Crawford to raise and equip a division of troops for the Mexican service, and to appoint the officers of said division, you are hereby appointed Captain, and authorized to raise a company of

"A. F. REED,

The affair assumes a very serious aspect. in view of the system and activity displayed in organizing an army of invasion within the lines of the United States. It will be difficult for Federal officers in command on the Rio Grande to demonstrate to the satisfaction of Maximilian that they were not cognizant of the movement or that they made any effort to prevent it. There is no measuring the trouble that may ensue from this untimely raid. What is most to be apprehended is that thousands of reckless and adventurous spirits in this country may regard the bold stroke of the Texan "filibusters" as a signal to shoulder their rifles and march to the the following property: frontier in search of glory and booty under the Liberal standard. A few successful enterprises like that which resulted in the capture of Bagdad would give an impulse to Slibustering that this Government would not be able to check in time to avert collisions that would culminate in a war with France. (13-Its purity has been fully tested as per the an-nexed certificates of analysis: CERTIFICATES.

From a careful Chemical Analysis of Superior Old Rye Whiskey, Pancotharti-conized by JOHN E. WILSON, of Baltimore.

This Whiskey is characterized by the absence of heavy Fusil Od, Sugar and Poisonous Metalic compounds, and by retaining its ethereal oderous oil untainted. It has the chemical composition of a pure, carefully defecated Rye Whiskey.
Respectfully, A. A. HAYES, M. D.,
State Assayer, 16 Boylston street.
Boston, Mass., 23d August, 1862.

Having made a careful chemical analysis of the Pancatharticonized Old Rye Whiskey of Mr. John E. Wilson, Baltimore, am pleased to state that it is entirely free from Fusil Oil, Metalic Salts, or other matters in any way detrimental to health. In aroma, richness and delicacy of flavor, it cannot be strpaesed.

Respectfully yours,

G. A. LEIBIG, Analytical Chemist.

Baltimore, July 26, 1862. Baltimore, July 26, 1562.

Careful chemical analysis of four kinds of Whiskey—Superior Old Rye Whiskey, Superior Old Bourbon Whiskey, Superior Old Wheat Whiskey, Superior Old Corn Whiskey—Pancatharticonized by means of the patent apparatus invented by John E. Wilson, of Baltimore, Md., have shown them to be entirely free from the heavy Fusil Oils and from the presented in the proposed in the compounds of en found in Whiskeys the p isonods metalic compounds.

Whiskeys.

They retain the Ethereal Products, entirely free from any raint produced by injured grain, or careless fermentation, and being unmodified by the use of sugar, are remarkably gure products of delicate chemical operations.

Respectfully,

A. HAYES, M. D.,

BY THE BARD OF MARBLE HALL! In Baltimore, famed for ladies fair, Lived a beautiful girl with flaxen hair, And bonny blue eyes with liquid light, And roseate lips, a glorious sight.

The youngsters fell in love by dozens. Friends and acquaintances, strangers and cousins; But she a crotchet had got in her head, And said she determined never to wed, Until she loved a handsome youth

Who would grant all her requests in truth, And bind him fully never to break The pledge he had taken for her sake. The young men stood aghast will fear; Some whacked their boots, some pulled their hair; Some said 'twas religion, some said 'twas money; But it took them aback and they felt quite funny.

Among them there was a fine young man; Says he, "I love her as well as I can. Now!'ll make her the promise, both open and free, And agree to stand by it whatever it be."

The fair one stepped up to his side, And said, "Should I now be your bride, You must promise here before usall, To buy your clothes at MARBLE HALL.

No other can suit a husband of mine,
The coats are so handsome, the pants divine.
Says Junny, a laughing, "You dear little elf.
If you like them so well, get a pair for yourself." We offer unusual inducement in all kinds of Clothing and Furnishing Goods, together with a superior line of piece goods for custom work. Boys Clothing a special feature.

FIRST GRIEF.

The fellowing poem was written by James Hedderwick, a Scottish poet, but little known in this e country. Who that ever lost a brother or a sister could read these lines without a falter in the voice or tear in the eye?] They tell me first and early love Outlives all atter dreams ; But the memory of the first great grief . To me more lasting seems.

The grief that marks our dawning youth To memory ever clings,
And b'er the path of future years.
A lengthened shadow flings.

Oh! oft my mind recalls the hour When to my father's home Death came, an uninvited guest, From his dwelling in the tomb.

I had not seen his tace before-I shuddered at the sight,
And I shuddered yet to think upon The auguish of that night! A youthful brow and rudy cheek Became all cold and wan: An eye grew dim in which the light Of radiant fancy shown.

Cold was the cheek, and cold the brow. The eye was fixed and dia;
And there I mourned a brother dead, ... Who would have died for him,

> I know not if 'twas summer then, I know not if 'twas spring; But if the birds sang in the trees I did not hear them sing. If flowers came forth to deck the earth.

Their bloom I did not see; I looked upon one withered flower, And none else bloomed for me! I w . A sad and silent time it was .. . Within the house of woe;

All eyes were dim and overcast, And every voice was low. And from each cheek, at intervals,
The blood appeared to start,
Anif recalled in sudden baste, To aid the sinking heart ! Softly we trod, as if alraid

To mar the sleeper's sleep,
And stole last looks of his sad face . For memory to keep. With him the agony was o'er, And now the pain was ours,

As thoughts of his sweet childhood rose, Like odor from dead flowers. From the world's weary strife, How off in thought did we again Live o'er his little life.

His every look, his every word, His very voice's tone, Come back to us like things whose worth Is only prized when gone! The grief has rast with years away, And jov has been my lot; But one is long remembered; And the other soon forgot.

The gayest hours trip lightly by, And leave the faintest trace, But the deep track that sorrow wears No time can e'er efface.

WOMAN, AS SEEN IN THE WEST,-A IE. H. CAMPBELL R Western paper thus affectionate-izes:

"A pretty woman is one of the institutio of the country—an angel in dry goods and glory. She makes sunshine, blue sky, and happiness wherever she goes. Her path is one of delicious roses, perfume and beauty. She is a sweet poem, written in rare curls and and choice calico, and good principles. Men stand up before her as so many admiration points, to melt into cream and then butter. Her words float around the ear like music, birds of Paradise, or the perfumes of the Sabbath bells. Without her, society would lose its truest attraction, the church its firmest reliance, and young men the very best comforters and company. Her influnce and generos-ity restrain the vicious and strengthen the. faint hearted. Wherever you find the virtuous woman, you also find fireside beuquete; clean clothes, order, good living, gentle hearts, music, light, and modern institutions general ly. She is the flower of humanity, and her aspiration is the breath of heaven."

A STRANGE WEDDING .- The St. - Louis Democrat says that, a few days ago, Charles Moritz, a returned soldier, being anxious to marry and settle down, offered an acquaintance $50 provided he would procure him a person of whom he might make a wife. The bargain was struck, and Moritz's friend and a few others determined to work a practical joke on the bachelor. They had a boy dressed up in women's clothing, introduced to Moritz, who was pleased with the look of the bargain; and arrangements being made to that end, a confederate joker married the pair, and received $5 from the happy bridegroom for tying the knot. Moritz also paid over $70 for the wedding supper, and gave his bride a handsome present in money. The sudden illness of a sister called the bride away from the wedding feast, and she did not return. Next day Moritz set out to hunt her up when he was told the whole affair was a farce. He did not so discern the matter; and the parties of it are in jail for trial on a charge of swindling.

THE WIDOW OF JOHN BROWN.-The San Francisco correspondent of the Chicago Times writes: " Speaking of Mrs. Lincoln reminds me of the widow of old Ossawattame Brown, who is now residing at Red Bluff, in this State. Mention has been made in this correspondence of a fund that the admirers of John Brown, the 'martyr of Harper's Ferry,' were raising in this State, with which to purchase the widow Brown a homestead. The 'fund' has at last been raised, but it don't pan out well, to use a miner's phrase. Four lots have been purchased on the West side of Main street in the south end of Red Bluff, and inclosed with a neat board fence. A contract has been made with carpenters in that town to build a dwelling for the widow Brown, for the enormous sum of $450, on these lots. It is to be finished in January. So that will be the home of the widow Brown and her three children."

AN ITEM FOR FREEDMEN .- Mr. S. G. Burton, of the Indiana Legislature, in a speech before that body, a few days since, said em-

"If left to me, Mr. Speaker, I would, by a system of 'unfriendly legislation,' render the political atmosphere of Indiana so extremely uncomfortable for negroes that it would be unhealthy for them to remain in our midst. and much to their interest and advantage to emigrate-especially would I make it so for the 'unconstitutional niggers,' or such as are here in violation of our State Constitution and shout authority of law. If they should refuse to emigrate in spite of this legislation, they should be known and recognized in society only as 'hewers of wood and drawers of

A CHILD WITH THREE TONGUES .-

We read in an exchange: Recently the wife of John Cranford, slater Ewe and Close, Dumfries, Scotland, gave birth to a son, who exibits the rare if not unprecedented peculiarity of having three tongues. We saw the child and found it to be seemingly in good health, full size and in other respects well formed. The middle tongue is the largest of the three; it is rounded at the top, and is fastened to the lower part of the palate in such a way as to prevent the child from sucking readily. Each of the tongues is separated from the other, and those on each side do not appear to cause the infant much inconvenience. The curious malformation does not, so far as A Western editor speaking of a quill-driving The curious malformation does not, so far as cotemporary, says, His intellect is so dense that it appearances go, result from disease. The child has been seen by several physicians, and they are of opinion it would be advisable. after he is a little older, to liberate the middle tongue : from the palate by an operation. Meanwhile, the infant is suckled by means of a bottle.

GENUINE ELOQUENCE.-There are no people in the world with whom eloquence is so universal as with the Irish. When Leigh Ritchie was travelling in Ireland, he passed a man who was a painful spectacle of pallor. squalor, and raggedness. His heart smote him, and he turned back.

"If you are in want," said Ritchie, "why don't you beg?" "Surely, it's begging I am, your honor."

"You didn't say a word." "Of course not, yer honor, but see how the skin is sparkling through the holes in my trousers! and the bones cryin' out through my skin! Look at me sunken cheeks, and the famine that's staring in me eyes! Man alive, isn't it begging I am with a thousand tongues!"

A SINGULAR CASE .- A man named Moore was bitten, some time last Fall in Indiana. by a cow, supposed to be mad, but in reality suffering from the complaint known among farmers as the mad itch. Moore, who lives about a mile and a half from Indianapolis, became uneasy, went to Terre Haute and had Mrs. Taylor's mad stone applied. He was discharged after one or two applications, but the fear of hydrophobia so preyed on his mind that he had no rest. Last Friday he died, exhibiting a singular state of nervous disor-ganization for some time prior to his death. The case is a singular one, and the report of the physician who attended on him is looked for with a good deal of interest among medical 山市。后面的各种社会对学生
