[From the Richmond Medical Journal.] The Last Wound of the late General Jackson,

The Amputation of the Arm-His Last Moments and Death.

BY HUNTER M'GUIRE, M. D.

Supported upon either side by his sids, Captains James Smith and Joseph Morrison, the General moved slowly and painfully towards the rear. Occasionally resting for a moment, to shake off the exhaustion which the men were lying down, to escape the shell and canister, with which the Federals raked CHERRY EXPECTORANT. the road. General Pender rode up here to the little party, and asked who was wounded, and Captain Smith, who had been instructed by General Jackson to tell no one of his injury, simply answered, "a Confed rate officer;" but Pender recognized the General, and, springing from his horse, hurriedly expressed his regret, and added that his lines were so much broken, he feared it would be necessary to fall back. At this moment the scene was a fearful one. The air seemed to be alive with the shrieks of shells and the whistling of bullets; horses, riderless and mad with fright, dashed in every direction; hundreds left the ranks and fled to the rear, and the groans of the wounded and dying, mingled with the wild shouts of others to be led again to the assault. Almost fainting as he was, from the loss of blood, fearfully wounded, and as he thought, dving, Jackson was undismayed by this terrible scene. The words of Pender seemed to rouse him to life. Pushing aside the men who supported him, he stretched himself to his full height, and answered feebly, but distinctly enough to be heard above the din of the battle, "General Pender, you must hold on to the field, you must hold out to the last." It was Jackson's last order upon the field of battle. Still more danger from the fire, and capture by the Federal advance, was too imminent, and his aids hurried him on. A litter having been obtained, he was placed upon it, and the bearers passed on as fapidly as the thick woods and rough ground permitted. Unfortunate-WORM MIXTURE, ly, another one of the bearers was struck down, and the litter having been supported at each of the four corners by a man, fell. and threw the General to the ground. The fall was a serious one, and as he touched the earth, he gave, for the first time, expression to his suffering, and groaned piteously.

> he raised his head, a bright beam of moonlight made its way through the thick foliage, and rested upon the pale face of the sufferer. The Captain was startled by its great pallor and stillness, and cried out, "Oh! General, are you seriously hurt?" "No," he answered, "don't trouble yourself, my friend, about me." and presently added something about winning the battle first, and attending to the wounded afterwards. He was placed upon the litter again, and carried a few hundred yards, when I met him with an ambulance. I knelt down by him, and said, "I hope you are not badly hurt, General." He replied, very calmly, but feebly, "I am badly injured, Doctor; I fear I am dying." After a pause he continued, "I am glad you have come. I think the wound in my shoulder is still bleeding."-His clothes were saturated with blood, and hæmorrhage was still going on from the wound. Compression of the artery with the finger arrested it, until lights being procured from the ambulance, the handkerchief which had slipped a little was readjusted. His calmness amid the dangers which surrounded him, and at the supposed presence of death, and his uniform politeness, which did not forsake him, even under these, the most trying circumstances, were remarkable. His complete control, too, over his mind, enfeebled as it was, by loss of blood, pain, &c., was wenderful. His suffering at this time was my, his face pale, and his lips compressed and bloodless; not a groan escaped him-not a sign of suffering, except the slight corrugation of his brow, the fixed and rigid face, and the thin lips, so tightly compressed, that the impression of the teeth could be seen through them. Except these, he controlled, by his iron will, all evidence of emotion, and more difficult than this even, he controlled that disposition to restlessness, which many of us have observed upon the field of battle, attending great loss of blood. Some whiskey and morphia were procured from Dr. Straith, and administered to him, and placing him in the ambulance, it was started for the Corps Field Infirmary, at the Wilderness Tavern. Colonel Crutchfield, his Chief of Artillery, was also in the ambulance wagon. He had

A Touching Anecdote.

The following anecdote of Rev. Dr. Bentv, well known among the clergy of olden time, is given by a correspondent of the Sa-

One night, at a late hour, the doctor was regard them as one of the blessings of my disturbed at his studies by a rattling sound among some wood, which, sawed and split for his study fire, had been left out by the teamster, the afternoon previous, too late to be properly housed. He arose, went to the window, and saw a woman filling her apron with wood, which she hastily carried away .-Shortly after the same noise occurred, and on directed his servant Jim, to apply a wet towel looking out a second time he saw a similar operation, the woman filling her great apron to the utmost limits of its capacity. When she had gone he returned to his book with a tender pity in his heart for a destitution which sought relief in this lonely, dreary, not to say sinful manner. By and by he was startled by a heavy crash of falling wood, and hurrying up to the window beheld the poor woman easting the very dust of wood from her apron. He remained motionless, his gentle heart filled with commisseration.

She swiftly departed and soon returned the pile as if it were indeed the "accursed thing." The Doctor's compassion and curiosity were now intensely excited. He followed her retreating figure till he discovered ing on Mr. B., the wood dealer, and directed him to send a half cord of his best wood sawed and split, to Mrs. ----, but by no to ascertain where he ought to dig to obtain means to let her know from whom it came, which was readily promised. Married the Wrong Lady.

Love is a very uncertain thing, and it is not very safe to be too certain of the symp-toms until they are unmistakable. Vienna has been stirred up lately by the comical remarried, evinced some interest in the young but rather abashed doctor. She made love to him, in fact, very strongly, and persuaded him to visit her at her house. But alas I he loved another lady. One evening, while conversing with him, she said:

"With your favorable idea of matrimony.

Dr. Kant sighed, and his eyes resting on the ground, hesitatingly muttered in reply: "I have already thought of marrying, and made my choice, but-

"But?" the lady hastily interposed.
"But," he continued, "the lady is rich. very rich, and I am poor. I am afraid I could hardly aspire to her hand; and rather than allow myself to be taxed with sordid designs, I will bury my passion in my breast, and leave it unavowed forever."

At an early hour the following day, how-ever, she betook herself to a solicitor, and in legal form declared her wish to present and added the following note:

"Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in inclosing a paper which I hope will remove the obstacle in the way of your marriage. Believe me, &c.,
"Alice Martini."

Dr. Kant-for he, and no other, was the individual addressed-was the happiest man in the world on receiving this generous epistle. Repairing at once to the parents of posed for and received the hand of a girl who had long been flattered by his delicate, though unmoved attentions. His reply to Alice Martini, besides conveying his sincerest thanks, contained two cartes de visite, linked together by the significant rose-colored ribbon. Miss Martini forthwith sued the happy bridegroom for restitution; but as no promise of marriage had been made, the case was, by two successive courts, decided against her.

PERILS OF CRINOLINE .- A fine looking young woman, in more than the usual amplitude of crinoline, entered a theatre lately with a beau, and was making her way through the already filled seats to the front row of the dress circle, where places had been reserved for them. To do so with all the bold freedom of feminine young America, she stepped upon the seats, when unfortunately her hoop, orrather the lower hoop of her skeleton skirt, caught upon the back of one of the seats as she went by, and the fastening about the waist parting, the whole concern came down "by a run," and, as she stepped forward and out of it, was left hanging in full view upon the seat. The change was astonishing; the full blown belle at one moment-the next looked like a lamp post with a silk dress tied around it. For a moment, also, the young lady was quite unconscious of the accident. In another she saw the full extent of it, and blushing, crimson, sank into her seat, and for the nextheavily laden with wood, which she threw on half hour had undoubtedly the most brilliant complexion in the audience. Though mortifying to the young lady, the circumstance provoked the risibilities of those who witnessed it exceedingly.

Ladies Making up Clothing for Mrs. Davis.

FORT MONROE, May 7 .- A gentleman arrived here yesterday from Richmond, Va., with several presents for Mrs. Davis from the ladies of Richomond, among which was a black silk dress and other articles of comfort. the accommodation of Mrs. Davis are rapidly being fitted up in a very comfortable, though not luxurious, manner. General Miles has detailed an orderly for her use, in place of solemnity. This old woman, among the the services of the officer of the day, whose duties since her arrival here have considerably increased from having to escort her at stated hours to Carroli Hall, where Davis is imprisoned. His general health, however, remains good, and it is supposed to be only the long imprisonment and many anxious fears and doubts which have weighed so heavily upon his mind as to produce the very natural change in his appearance during the past year. Of Dr. Cooper, the post surgeon whose medical advice has had a very beneficial effect on the prisoner's health, and indeed of all the officers of the garrison, Mrs. Davis speaks in the highest terms, and has expressed herself extremely grateful for their courtesies and kind feeling towards her husband. Some of the lady friends of Mrs. Davis residing in Baltimore are making up various articles as presents, which will be her sojourn in the fortress.

"Why, Bridget, said a lady who wished to rally her servant girt, for the amusement of the o pany upon the fantastic ornamen ing of a huge program of you do this?" LOCAL MISCELLANY.

The Registration, -The grand Sanhedrim of presended "Registration" for this county, is now, we learn, in conclave at Shepherdstown, (the so-called county seat,) purging the meagre lists of "recorded loyal votes," as returned by the "Registrars" of the several townships of Jefferson. From the inception to the end of this iniquitous "Registry Law," it will be found manifest that its intent and purpose is alone to retain power in the hands of the contemptible and unprincipled faction, who are now fattening on spoliations from the Treasury, both county and State, whose coffers was alone filled by the taxes wrung from that the cause of the cholera reproduces ita disfrauchised and outraged people. But these sordid and selfish vampires, begin already to tremble at the hand-writing on the wall, and with the tenacity of dishonored and drowning men, they eling to their last hope of perpetuating by fraud, what reason, right and justice, brands with its seal of reproba-

As an illustration. The number registered in Charlestown Township is, as we learn only 47, out of nearly 400 rightful, intelligent, tax-paying voters. Yet from this puny number of returned "loyalists," the "grand"-no--"Head-Centre," with "Zadok" of old notoriety and no very enviable political distinction as its chief head, has issued subpœnas for 25 of the supposed elect to repair to Shepherdstown, the modern Mecca, and shew cause, if possible, why their names should not be stricken from the roll of immaculate, loyalloving patriots of Jefferson! Yesterday was the day set apart for the hearing of their cause, but as to how many of the prescribed passed muster, we are not informed. It is somewhat amusing, if not consoling to the socalled rebellious in our vicinage, (as it is said misery loves company,) to learn the names of four whom we have heard designated on the "black list." Our people know antecedents, politically, and it will produce a universal grin at the repetition of their names, and the mooted question as to loyalty-viz: Capt. Charles Warner, Mr. Martin, (1st N. Y. Cavalry,) Warren Burton, and worse than all, William Johnson! Who would have thought it! In the name of the pretended powers that be, if the ever-loyal righteous are scarcely admitted, what hope is there for the life-long rebellious? But the test is not loyalty to State or country, but alone and altogether, are you a sworn and reliable instrument in the hands of the miserable radical faction who now occupy place and position in this county, hitherto filled by intelligent and honorable gentlemen, instead of ignoramuses. mushroon politicians and money-seeking union-shriekers.

CORPORATION ELECTION .- For the first time within the last five or six years, the good people of our Burg will have an opportunity on Thursday next, 17th inst., of exercising that boon, which is "inestimable to freemen and formidable to tyrants only," of selecting their own rulers. That day has been set apart by Sheriff Rush, for the election of Mayor, Recorder, and seven Councilmen as provided for by the Charter of the Corporation, and in the mode and manner, as therein provided, except that the voting is required to be done by ballot. We hope our people will give to the matter that consideration which it so eminently deserves, for if there ever was a time when the best interests of the town demanded the right men in the right place, it is now. The sanitary condition of the town is horrible and its police arrangements intolerable. Let us therefore begin anew, and have a thorough renovation of the one and a rigid enforcement of the other. An impression exists that all white male citizens over the age of twenty-one years will be permitted to vote at the election. This is a mistake. None but house keepers or heads of families will have a voice in the matter. Free holders only are eligble to office. Among other tickets suggested, we have been requested to publish the following: For Mayor, Capt. John Moler; Recorder, John W. Kennedy; Councilmen, Thomas Rutherford, John T. Cowley, Henderson Bishop, Benjamin Tomlinson, Jacob Starry, Capt. John Avis, and H. N.

Moyor-John J. H. Straith : Recorder-John W. Kennedy: Councilmen-D. Howell Wm. N. Craighill, Wm. P. Henson, Rezin Shugart, Wm. Kimes, G. F. Mason, Benj.

BY WILLIAM SCHMELE. Cause, Localization, Diffusion, Prevention, and freatment of the keighte Cholera.

I. CAUSE. The Asiatic Cholera is a miasmatic or contagious disease. This is too generally recognized and admitted to require any further proof. One infected person may carry the disease to a place till then entirely free from it, and diffuse it over the whole neighborhood; whence again it may spread, by simi- sites within his digestive tube. lar propagation, through patients, over a whole country or continent.

This involves, by necessary implication, self in every patient, and is thus multiplied and propagated. Now, the power of reproduction and propagation of their own species is an attribute elonging exclusively to living organisms. Hence, it follows, with logical certainty, hat the cause of the cholera consists of livng organisms or parasites. This deduction agrees with, and explains, all well-defined facts presented by the history of the cholera.

II. LUCALIZATION.

The question of the localization of the cholera parasites in the human body may be solved thus: We must look for the localization of the cause where we find its main and uniform effects, viz: in the mucous coat of he small intestines. There we uniformly meet the primary and main symptoms, or lesions, produced by the cause of the cholera, which may be explained as follows: In the chyle of the said portion of the alimentary tube, the parasites, or their seeds or germs, find a ready prepared and rich nutriment, and all other requisities for their vigorous growth and development, as well as for their speedy reproduction and multiplication. Being foreign bodies, they cause, by their irritating presence, and by the catalytic influence of their organs, chemical processes of growth and development, a high degree of inflammation in the mucous coat of the small intestines, from which, by physiological and pathological necessity, all other symptoms of the cholera result.

III. DIFFUSION.

To reach the mucous coat of the intestinal tube, there is no other way for the parasites, or their seeds, but to be carried thither with the food. This is self-evident. But how may the cholera parasites, or their seed, get on or into our food? In the absence of all direct observations, we must and can satisfactorily answer this question by analogy. We know that certain other parathe vapors of warm air. Thus, therefore, may the cholera parasites, or their seed, be leon's Grave" were sung in a minner which equally carried on the vapors of warm air, reflected great credit upon the singers. and deposited on our food, or other objects coming in their way. This agrees with and the Old Chapel churchyard : explains the universally admitted miasmatic or contagious nature of the cholera and all with its diffusion.

(The far-ferened and complicated theory f Professor Pettenkofer, assuming the air, (as such, not vapors,) and the human blood, as the media for carrying the infestion to the John Kelly. intestines, and ascribing to gases, which cannot be organic bodies, the exclusively organic power of reproducing themselves, is, to say the least, very unphilosophical y The original parasites of the cho'era. generated in the hot and luxuriant swamps of Southern Asia, may be borne on the vapors of warm currents of air, coming from hole swamps, over the surrounding country and, being deposited on, or adhering to, the food of the inhabitants, or lodging in the mouth be carried, as before stated, with the food, into the alimentary tube, and cause the disease, as before described. Being reproduced in great numbers, they and their seeds will be carried with the evacuations of the bowels, out of the intestinal tube, into Being thus brought into the open air, the parasites, or their seeds, may be c fried on he very vapors arising from the excrements of cholera patients, and on vapors of the surrounding warm air, through the vicinity, as far as such vapors may be carried, and be de posited on, or adhere to any articles of food, or the muccous coats of the mouths of persons with which they may come in contact, and then carried, with the food, into the small intestines, as before described.

IV PREVENTION. Hence it follows that the cholera cause cannot be deffused if proper care is taken to disinfect the excrements of cholera patients immediately upon the discharge from the bowels. before the vapor arising from them can spread the infection around. This may be secured by keeping fresh chlorinated lime in the vessels used by the patients, in order that the chlorine gas, which is constantly set free from the lime, may meet the infectious vapors of the excrements as quickly as they are formed, and disinfect by destroying the parasites. which cases of Asiatic cholera make their appearance, there will be no danger of a further diffusion of the parasites, either on such vessels or by the persons coming from them; provided that sufficient time has elapsed between the last case of cholera happening on such vessel and her entering port to preclude the supposition that some persons might carry the nfection with them before its full development. The excrements should never be permitted to remain standing about, but should be speedily thrown into privies, after being first throughly disinfected by free additions of chlorinated lime water. Especial attention should also be given to the frequent and thorough disinfection of privies.

It follows further, that we may disinfect

V. TREATMENT. For the rational treatment of actual cases of the Asiatic cholera the following directions result from the preceding exposition, and appear to be self-evident as to their appropriate-

1. The cause must be removed. This is readily accomplished in the manner already indicated for disinfecting the aimentary tube. The patient needs only to take a tumbler full of ice (or cold) water acidulated treated her as he had done the rest of the by two or three drops of suphuric acid, every half or one hour, for a few hours, to be certain of having completely destroyed all para-2. The same remedy will also tend to heal, as speed ly and efficiently as may be, the inflammatory and relaxed condition of the mucons coats of the bowels, induced by the presence and development of the parasites. 3. In order to prevent, or aliay, the dangerous secondary symptoms induced by sympathy or reflex actoin of the nervous system viz: the cramps, etc. - the patient should take simultaneously with the other remedies several small doses of morphia-say one-twelfth of a grain of sulphate of morphia at a dos, which may be dissolved in the acidulated drink before mentioned, and thus taken with it.

4. And, finally, to prevent or remove the state of collapse, resulting from aggravated sufferings of the patient, one of the speediest and easiest obtained remedies is a table spoonful of brandy or good whiskey, taken with each dose of the acidulated drink recommended, with which it may also be mixed.

It is confidently expected that this direct, safe, and agreeable treatmegt, if applied not entirely too late, will restore every cholera

It is also probable that on the basis of the preceding exposition of the cause, localization, and diffusion of the cholera—which applies also in its essential points to other epidemics whose parasitical cases are localized in the bowels, such as yellow fever-other equally, or still more, appropriate preventive and curative remedies will be suggested and applied.

Tribute to the Dead.

On last Wednesday, the day fixed upon by the patriotic and devoted ladies of Virginia to decorate the graves of our beloved soldiers who so nobly responded to the call "to arms," and so bravely and unflinchingly met the invader in so many hard fought and bloody battles, and whose memory will ever be cherished with a fond, loving and inspiring respect, an address was delivered at the Old Chapel Church, in this county, by Capt. Wm. N. Nelson, of the Second Virginia Infantry, which was beautiful and appropriate. After the address the congregation moved down ling the blood to tingle to the very near the graves of Col. W. W. He was visited by his spiritual adviser, this afternoon, who entered in to conversation with him, and in the presence of the a ove named officials, Probst was told that his best course both in a spiritual and moral point of view, was to confess all he knew about the tragedy, and to tell the truth. He was told that his obligations to the authorities, by whom he had been treated so kindly, and every consideration in the future, demanded that he should make a clean breast of it. Probst, after the lapse of a few minutes, proceeded to make the following statement

He stated that he had no accomplice, and conceived the horrible crime unaided and alone. He states that he conceived the mur-If this rule is applied on all sea vessels on | der on Friday, and that night slept with the boy whom he intended to make his victim, namely, Cornelius Carey.

He knew that Carey was working near the hayrick, and he proceeded there with the large axe, but his heart failed him three times before he could induce himself to strike the unsuspecting boy the fatal blow. At last he mustered sufficient courage and went at his work, killing Carey just in the manner he frequently described.

The sight of the boy, Probst states, produced in him a devilish and blood-thirsty feeling, and he determined at once to murder the

He disposed of the body of the boy as described before so often, and then deliberately walked over to the house. He states that Miss Dolan's pocket book had very little in it, and he said nothing whatever of the two $50 compound interest notes, and the $20 bill of the same character. He remained about the house for some time, picked up the articles found in the

During the trial, and even at the time of his capture, he states that he had a disposition to make a confession, but the yells of the crowd when he first saw them frightened him into the belief that if they knew the extent of his crime all the police in Philadel. phia could not save him from their clutches. "We called the other day upon President Johnson, and requested the removal from the. nast office in this city of Mr. Emery, editor of the arben orgin, the Peor a Transcript, and appointment of Hon. Isaac Underhill in his stead, who is a true Union man, sound patriot, and withat a good Johnson man. This is the beginning of this district, but not the ending. Every gad cal Federal collect Folder will be ca led up in to vacate in a similar man er before the setting of another August sun. We' now give notice to bur radical friends that our day is coming, and while we propose to belenient with them, extending in all cases full freedom of speech and the press, but one . thing they can't do, and that is, use cream drawn from the public teat to smile the hand that milks it into their mouth. Take notice, gentlemen, and be governed accordingly."

TO THE CONSERVATIVE UNION MEN OF JEFFERSON COUNTY.

WE desire to dire t your attention to two or three matters in reference to the coming election. Those who wish to vote against the Constitutional Amendment, must have the words, "For Rejection," written or printed on their ballots.

The ballot used for voting against the Amendment, must be the sums prece or white PAPER ment, mit to the sum prece of white paper used for voting for county and township filters.

These provisions will be found in an A tof the late Legislature, passed February 23, 1866. See Acts of 1866, page 1.9.

Another Act passed the same day, provides that—Every officer and person employed in holding, any election by the people, shall, before entering on the discharge of his duties, take the following eath: I, A. B., descinally swear that I will support the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution of this State; that I have never voluntarily borne arms against the United States—that I have voluntarily given no aid or comfort to persons engaged in armed hestility thereto, by countenancing, counseling or encouraging them in the sons engaged in armed histility thereto, by countenancing, counseling or encouraging them in the same; that I have not sought, accepted nor attempted to exertise the functions of any office whatever, under any authority in hostility to the United States; that I have not yielded a voluntary support to any pretended government, authority or power or constitution within the United States, hostile or inimical thereto, and that I take this obligation freely without give mental reservation or purpose freely without gny mental reservation or purpose of evasion. I further swear that in the election about to be held, I will laithfully and impartially discharge my duties to the best of my skill and independ "

books."

See Acts of 1866, page 123.

This thing should be watched. The Radical leaders are unscrupulous, and will stop at nothing to sustain their power. Wherever it is believed that there will be a strong vote against the Constitutional Amendment or the Radical candicates, the Legislature have put it in the power of the officers of election to cheat the people out of their votes, by leaving this oath off the poll books, or having it informally certified.

STONEWALL CACKSON. LATS and SHOES -a full na o the of latest styles. CHARLES JOHNSON.

[The memory of Stonewall Jackson has received few tributes more touching in its simplicity and pathos than the following beautiful poem, published in the New York Citizen, of which Charles G. Halrare taste, was an efficer in the United States army during the late war, and is well known to fame as "Private Miles O'Ruley." The poem in question, he says, is from the pen of a distinguished officer of the United States navy :].

He sleeps all quietly and cold,
Beneath the soil that gave him birth;
Then break his battle-brand in twain,
And lay it with him in the earth!

No more at midnight shall he urge His toilsome march among the pines; Nor hear upon the morning air The war shout of his charging lines.

Cold is the eye whose meteor gleam Flashed hope on all within its light; And still the voice that, trumpet-toned Rang through the serried ranks of fight. No more for him shall cannons park,

Or tents gleam white upon the plain; And where his camp fires blazed of yore, Brown reapers laugh amid the grain! No more above this narrow bed

Shall sound the tread of marching feet, The rifle volley, and the clash Of sabres, when the foeman meet. And though the winds of autumn rave,

And winter snows fall thick and deep Above his breast—they cannot move The quiet of his dreamless sleep. We may not raise a marble shaft Above the heart that now is dust; But nature, like a mother fond, Will ne'er forget her sacred trust, Young April o'er his lowly mound, Shall shake the violets from her hair; And glorious June, with fervid ki.s, Shall bid the roses blossom there.

And round about the droning bre, With drowsy hum shall come and go; While west winds, all the live long day, Shall murmur dirges soft and low. The warrior's stormy fate is o'er,

The midnight gloom hath passed away; And, like a glory from the East, Breaks the first light of Freedom's day.

And white-winged Peace, o'er all the land, Broods like a dove upon her nest; While iron war with slaughter gorged, At length bath laid him down to rest.

Yet oft in dreams his fierce brigade Shall see the forms they followed far, Still leading in the furthest van— A landmark in the clouds of war!

Miscellaneous.

A Good Day's Work.

Out in Michigan a number of farmers were sitting in front of a country store at the close of a sultry day, and telling stories about their work, and so on, when one of them took the rag off the whole of them by relating his ex-

I say, you have all told whopping big yarns, now; but I'll just tell you what I done once in York State, on the Gennessee Flats, and on my father's farm. He owned a meadow just a mile long, and one morning in June I began to mow-sun about an hour high-and mowed right along the whole length of the field. The grass was so heavy that I had to mow down to the lower end of the field, and walk back, or as we say, 'carry my swarth.' Well, I worked until sundown, and then quit. I just thought, as the meadow was just a mile long, I'd count the swarths, and I did so, and there was one hundred! That, gentlemen, is what York State fo.ks call a big day's work."
"So you walked two hundred miles that day, did you?" asked one farmer. "And mowed half the time you were walking?" said another.

"So it seems," replied the great mower; "I tell you the facts, and you can make as much of it as you can."

The owner of a large dog at Grand Rapids, Mich., a few days ago, placed a hundred dollar looking glass before his canine to worry him. The dog flew around, barking and growling. The owner was delighted and cried "Sick'em;" the dog "sicked;" the mirror and the "other dog" disappeared at the same time. The joke rather turned on the

-Snooks was advised to get his life insured. Won't do it, said he, it would just be my luck to live forever, if I should. Mrs. Snooks merely said, Ahem! well I wouldn't my dear. Quite loving, that.

-A recent railroad dinner, in compliment to the fraternity, the toast was given : "An honest lawyer, the noblest work of God." But an old farmer in the back part of the hall, rather spoiled the effect by adding, in a loud Voice, "and about the scarcest."

-A very respectable woman of Union City, Indiana, who has been a very strong Re publican in her feelings, came to the polls and offered to vote, which, of course, was refused when she replied, very indignantly, "Just as I thought-niggers before women."

-Why are the makers of the Parrott gun the greatest thieves in the United States service? Because they rifle all the guns, forge all the materials, and steal (steel) all the gunbreeches.

-A young lady in Louisville, while on her way to be married, was run over and killed. A confirmed old maid savagely comments: "She avoided a more lingering and horrible destiny,"

Letter from "Bill Arp."

The "Bill Arp" letters are to be published in book form, at the instance of the editor of the N. Y. Metropolitan Record. In a letter giving his reluctant consent to the publication, [the humor he thinks like good pine is the editor. Mr. Halpine, himself a poet of | wine having become stale from being too long uncorked, and enjoining a Reconstruction of the authography, the author, who is the Hon. Charles H. Smith, of Georgia.

For the sentiments that pervade these letters, I have no apology to make. At the time they appeared in the press of the South, these sentiments were the silent echoes of our people's thoughts, and this accounts in the main for the popularity with which they were received. Of course they contain ex-NO. 320 and 322 BALTIMORE STRT., (UP STAIRS.)

aggerations, and prophecies which were never fulfilled; but both sections were playing "brag" as well as "battle," and though we could not compete with our opponents in the former, yet some of us did try to hold our own. At both games we were whipped by overwhelming forces, and we have given it up. Conquered, but not convinced, we have accepted the situation, and have pledged ourselves to abide by it. We have sworn to do so. We have declared it most solemnly in convention. We have asserted it in every act and deed; and Southern honor, which our enemies cannot appreciate, but which is untarnished and imperishable, is the seal of our good faith. Whoever testifies to the existence among us of an association designing a renewal of the rebellion, is either the victim of his own cowardice, or else the author of a selfish and heartless lie. I say this with feeling and indignation, for we see in such testimony a willingness, nay, a desire on the part of our military rulers, to retain over us their power and their tyranny for malicious or avaracious ends. We have long felt, and we still are feeling their insults, their black mail, their robberies. Ours is the stranded ship, and the Federal officers among us are the wreckers; ours the carcass, and they the vultures who are picking our denuded bones. The little that was left our people is seized, and released on paying a part into private pockets. They get rich and resign,

But not content with even this exhaustion of our scanty means they are annulling our contracts made with the laborers who were content to work in our fields for fair wages and are tolling them off to parts unknown under false pretences. Our ploughs are standing in the fields idle, our farms will go untilled, and the land swarms with agents who are bribing the poor negroes away under promises of higher wages, and under the sanction of a Bureau as rotten as the promises of Pharoah. Væ victis. But still we abide all these sad results, and look upon it as part of the war, and in keeping with the character of those who have so long been our enemies .-They but exhibit the animus of a people whose hate and avarice induced the rebellion .-Such oppression has turned from them almost the last opponent of secession, and caused them to regret that they did not throw their lives and fortunes into the fight. Perhaps this is all for the best. We cannot tell. We have almost ceised to philosophise upon it, for we have no time to think. The work of actual reconstruction absorbs our time and energies. I mean the reconstruction of our individual fortunes, our houses, our fields and farms, our railroads, manufactures, graveyards, schools and churches. We have no time to stop and mourn over the loss of liber-

But I can find time to ask, What has the North gained by the war? What principles have been established? What great or vital questions have been settled? Then let Illinois take down her deceitful sign, obliterate her great seal of State, and choose another, for the one she now has is obsoletean eagle proudly postured under a scroll. with "State sovereignty" upon it. Is it the freedom of slaves that has been accomplished? Alas! the one and a halt millions who perished in the war, are certainly free; the remainder are rapidly realizing the same liberty, or finding a new bondage in other climes .-Like the Indian, the race is doomed, and the mighty North still triumphs in the glory of its accomplishment. But I will not speak more of this. To the charitable reader let me say, Forgive me if you find something to condemn in the following pages. It is not he live North or South; and there be better judges than I of what should have, or have not, been written. It may be said that the character of these letters has no tendency to soften the anamosities engendered by the late unhappy strife. I can only answer, that it is not in rebel nature to be humble to those who would put the heel of a tyrant upon us. Our people are a unit upon the moral of the fight they made. They since ely sel that the provocation of the war was not of their begetting. Many a time and oft have men and nations been conquered, but not convinced. The story of Ireland, Poland, and the "Hero of the Lakes," has been often reproduced, to illustrate that wrongs are not remedied, nor rights secured, by wager of battle.

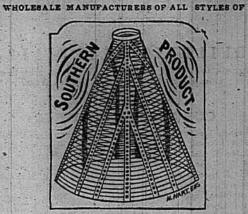

While mourning the loss of thousands of the poblest of our race, while suffering the poverty and desolation with which our conquerors have visited us, while memory stings with the rape and arson which barbarians under arms enforced and heartless officers permitted, it is not in human nature to smother ceremony he always refused the fee, saying : resentment against those who would still play

But to you, kind reader, who can speak gently to the erring (if we have erred) who would pour oil upon the troubled waters, and prefer the hand of kindred love, let me say that, though proudly defiant of our enemies, the noble manliness of our people will meet you cordially at the first sincere effort -There is danger in being too neat .- toward an honorable reconciliation. THE NEW LIGHT

Atmospheri^{*} Coal Gil Gas Light, NOW on exhibition at the store of LEISENRING SON & CO., in Charlestown. Artificial light of some sort is a universal necessity; a safe, cheap and brilliant one, is a luxury; a uxurytoo, only enjoyed heretofore by those living in large towns or cities where Gas is used. Years of study and thousands of dollars annually have been spent by experiment of different kinds, in trying to invent and perfect a Burner or Lamp by which have all the modern improvements, and were built Coal Oil could be burned practically without the expense and trouble of chimneys, this long looked for and much desired object has at last been obtained, and is styled the ATMOSPHERIC COAL OIL GAS LAMP. Its adaptation to Dwellings, Churches, Railroads Steamboats, Hotels, Stores, &c., is unsurpassed, in short, this invention brings the luxorious and billcity or country. It gives the light of a six foot Gas Burner for less than one cent per hour, or double the quantity of light of the ordinary or imney lamp, with one-third less oil; will burn, when turned down to a taper-light, ten hours for one cent, is free from smoke or smell; can be carried from room to room, the wind will not blow it out.

This light is destined to super ede all portable artificial light or chunn y lamps now in use; thouno family that uses this light one evening will again be annoyed with the chimney-lamps. Thousands of them will be used in cities, as this light is one half cheaper than Coal Gas, and much more pleasant to the eye. The exclusive agency for the sale of this Lampean besecured in every county through out the United States, and parties purchasing will be supplied with the Goods at reasonable rates
