When Gen. Longstreet advanced upon the Federal left, its first line was carried, but the enemy, being heavily reinforced, rallied, and in turn, drove our portion of the Anderson's brigade, from the position, as well as other brigades on our right and left. Again we charged, and again were driven back. Our heavy line had crumbled to a mere handful, and the flower of Longstreet's corps lay weltering in blood. We were slowly retreating, leaving many of our dead and wounded in the hands of the exulting foe, The hosts of the enemy came on like the mighty tides of the ocean, and the loud peans of victory were already rising from their haughty lips. The blue hills in their rear were bristling with Bayonets and pouring torrents of re-inforcements down their winding slopes. Now, when we should have been reinforced with 30,000 troops, General Lee, had not a man to send us. Officers broke their swords upon the rocks, and many of the men wept. Our dead and wounded comrades lay around us by thousands, and it seemed as if there was no hand to save the shattered remnant from destruction, But aid did come. A man-a solitary man-threw himself before the juggurnaut of Federal power, and alone won't hav time to get out of the way. You'll and unaided, sought to stay its onward subside into obscurity, and your children will deny that their daddies ever belonged to yesterday, the zouave cap and iron gray yesterday, the zouave cap and iron gray beard of the stranger. He said nothing, but his god like example made a hero of every man who saw him. Soldiers looked in the face of their comrades, and the question came simultaneously to their blackened lips: "Who is he?" "Who is he?" echoed right and left, on like a tornade, and the grand here stood enveloped in the smoke of their muskets like a lion at bay. Men forgot to reload their pieces, or conceal themselves behind the rocks, but stood stupefied with wonder. The Smell of the Sawdust.

"Gris," the racy contributor to the Cineinnatti Times, ventilates "sawdust" as follows:
We chanced to be in a small town in Wisconsin once when Dan Rice's Circus came there to exhibit. We always go to hear Dan when convenient, and we did not miss that opportunity. By our side, on the rough hemlock board—which formed one of the luxurious seats so glowingly described in the bills—was a gray-bearded old man who bore a crutch and cane, which were apparently, indispensible companions. He watched the

"Fifteen years ago I left the ring forever, and to night is the first time I have looked upon it since. Engrossed as I have been with the care of a farm up among the open-ings, I thought I had forgotten it all, but the smell of the sawdust is too much for me.-The canvass, the lights, the music and the applauding crowd bring the old days back again, and I find myself blubbering like a oung kid after his first fall from the pad." We afterwards learned that the old fellow actually applied to Dan Rice for an opportunity to go with the show, quite forgetful of his farm among the oak openings and the claims of an extensive and growing family, being totally overcome by the old familiar "smell of sawdust."

The weakness of the cld clown is a We are led to these reflections by observing that the Ravels, with the "original and ing that the Ravels, with the "original and only" Gabriel at the head, are playing an engagement at the National Theatre. Years ago that wonderful troupe of artistes played a series of farewell engagements through the country, and they have been playing farewell engagements periodically ever since. They are continually, leaving the stage forever, and forever coming back to it again. It may be urged that the thing pays. It undoubtedly does, but the Ravels have got money enough to smooth their declining years, enough to to smooth their declining years, enough to permit them to pass their remaining days in luxurious ease, either in this country, or in their native land. We believe it is not money but "the smell of the sawdust," metaphorically speaking that brings them back again to surprise us anew, with the same old pautomimes and capers.

Forrest, "the greatest tragedian of the age," the heights, leaving their dead and wounded as the posters, which are carefully arranged under his own eye, invariably say, leaves the stage for good, occasionally, only to be again tempted within the magic circle of footlights. It is said that extravagant sums of money are the only inducements, but don't the "smell" But where was the stranger? Alas! "the paths of glory lead but to the grave." It is long before the war horse forgets the old familiar notes of the bugle call; the old soldier would fight his battles over again with something better than his crutch if he caught a snuff of the powder, and it is not strange that the actor on life's mimic stage is liable while life endures, to succumb to the "smell of the sawdust."

three in the United States, I was prompted to write you the following: Mr. John Gray, who lives in Noble Township, Noble County, Ohio, about four miles east of the village of Cumberland, Guernsey County Ohio, is, without any doubt, a Revolutionary soldier. I visited him last winter, and he gave me the following history of his birth and life! He was born Jan. 6, 1764, near Pohick Creek, and was christened in what was called the Pohick Church, which what was called the Pohick Church, which thinks was then within the territorial limits of Fairfax County, Va. In February, 1780, he volunteered in the service of his 1780, he volunteered in the service of his country, but returned home in May, 1781, immediately after the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, and was retained as a minute-man on the banks of the Potomac for six months after, before he was discharged the service. Col. Church and Maj. Ramsey commanded the regiment and Capt. Robert Stanford the company to which he helonged.—His tather, Shadrick Gray, died in the service of his country at White Plains in Jan. 1777; he was under Capt. West. John Gray has never received one farthing from his Government in the shape of a land warrant, pension, or anything else.

There is a whole volume of poetry in the following little sketch, which we find in the last number of Miss Barbel's Weekly: We met John on the stairs. He was carrying an old cradle to be stowed away among what he termed "plunder," in the lumber-room. One rocker was gone, and the wicker works of the sides broken; it was an old willowy affair, but we could not refrain from casting a look into its empty darbbe depths.

"Gone!" we said dreamily, "all gone!"

What golden heads were once pillowed here!

heads on which the curls grew moist in slumber, and the cheeks and lips flushed to slumber, and the cheeks and lips flushed to the hue of rose leaves. When sleep broke, the silken fringed lids opened heavily from the slumberous eyes; smiles flitted like sun-beams over the face; the white fist was thrust into the mouth, and when mamma lifted the inuslin and peeped in to see if the baby was awake, what cooing and crowing were heard! The little feet began to kick, out of pure delight, and kicked on until both of the tiny red shoes were landed at the foot of the cradle. Where are those heads now? Some that were embrowned by vigorous manhood, are sleeping on battle-fields; some are bleached with time and cares; and the feet have grown sore and weary on the rough paths of life.

Perhaps some little one, once tenderly rocked here is sleeping in the coffin. Over it grow heart's ease, and vigorous box, and white candy-tuft, and the starry jessamine. The blue bird flutters its bright wings through the willow boughs, and the cool summer wind whispers to the green leaves and grassblades on the grave. What of? perhaps of its immortality, Sleep on little dreamless one! "Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

And God has made the richest language poor in that respect, because the hearts that thrill with love's emotions are too sacred for the common contemplation. The musical voice of love stirs the source of the sweetest thought within the human breast, and steals into the most profound recesses of the soul, touching the thords that never vibrated before and calling into general companionship delicious hopes till then unknown. Yes, the light of a young maiden's first love breaks dimly but beautifully upon her, as the silver lustre of a star glimmers through the thickly woven hower: the first blush that mantles her woven bower; the first blush that mantles her cheek as she feels the primal influences is faint and pure as that which a rose-leaf might cast upon marble. But how rapidly does that light grow stronger and flush deeper, until the powerful effulgence of the one irradiates every corner of the heart, and the crimson glow of the other safface. glow of the other suffuses every feature of

THE NON-INTERCOURSE POLICY. In the ordinary business transactions of life, it is the adopted policy of human nature to conduct its private affairs with those whose actions entitle them to be regarded as friends, and to withhold all countenance, support or encouragement from those who conduct themselves so as to authorize the assumption that they are enemies. A mere difference of opinion, however, either in politics or religion, has no such controlling influence, and we daily witness business and social intercourse between those of the church and those of the world-between the religious and irreligious; a commingling of common interests between the constituent elements of all the various political parties which from time to time find existence in, and excite and agitate communities. No prescription for opinion's sake is an essential ingredient in sound political economy, and is the vital support of civil and religious liberty. But this policy can only exist where toleration is mutual, and where the natural instincts of humanity, as distinguished from the lower order of the animal creation, are unperverted and cultivated .-Where there is an unrestrained and licentious abuse of power-illegally obtained-by the few to the prejudice of the many; where the finer sensibilities are sunken and the coarser instincts of man's nature are fully developed, society loses its equipoise, and men find position and place, who are scarcely one remove in advance of the brute creation.

And to this very condition of things are we tending at present. Three men in Jefferson county, sit in judgment upon the political rights of nearly two thousand freemen .-Of this two thousand, three hundred and sixty-eight are allowed a voice in the selection of their magisterial and executive officers, whilst more than fifteen hundred are stripped of the privileges of the elective franchise, and made hewers of wood and drawers of water, for the support of the irresponsible and in-competent, the coarse and indecent pigmics, who are raked up from political cess-pools and elevated to places of emolument and trust. Under the plumage of patriotism-which Dr. drel,-and the cloak of a "loyalty," which had its motive power in self-interest entirely -these human hyenas are licensed to prev upon the body politic, and to extort revenue for the support of a government which merged into existence through heaps of corruption for the express gratification of political rascality.

This state of things is likely to continue for a while at least, as there are no adequate means in the reach of the people for its correction. The question very naturally suggests itself, whether the people of the community thus outlawed, may not resort to some means looking to a change of this unnatural and outrageous condition of affairs. By concerted action, it is within the power of the masses to retaliate-not by force or violence -but by the adoption of a strictly non-intercourse policy. It is useless to talk to the men who have perpetrated these outrages .-No appeal can penetrate their rhinoceros hides, and it is humiliating to approach them for favors. There is a way to treat them, however, which will bring into exercise their meagre reasoning faculties, and cause them to pause in their career of proscription and intolerance. Let them be thrown upon themselves for a support, and let every man whom they have robbed of political rights, refuse to have any business relations with them .-Neither buy nor sell to them. If they offer you money for your products, decline to trade with them, but sell to those who are willing to accord you the privileges of freemen .-Have no business transactions with any one who does encourage them. Withhold your support or countenance from any man who will rent them land or employ them in any capacity. Eschew all social intercourse with them. They are not fit to be considered as good members of society. They have been guilty of an act which should stamp them as infamous in the eyes of all honorable men .-They deserve no countenance or encouragement at your hands. The vote cast by them on the 4th Thursday in May, to prevent you from ever exercising your rights as freemen, proves that they have no feeling of sympathy for you, and is evidence sufficient that they would crush you if they could. Let them feel the smart of the lash which they have prepared to scourge you.

GETTING RIGHT ON THE RECORD. laced on the list of Radical voters in this waship, has taken the pains to place himself right upon the record. He has gone before justice Myers and made oath as follows:

NATH'L MYERS, J. P.

We should like for this affidavit to have been a little more positive, although we have to doubt that Mr. Johnson voted as he states. The affidavit states that he voted as alleged to the "best of his knowledge and belief," which some may distort to a different meaning from that desired. By this affidavit we are convinced that seven men voted against the Constitutional Amendment, and we have the positive assurance of Mr. Charles Johnson that he also voted against the Amendment. This gives us eight, whilst our pollbooks only credit us with six. Is it not thus pparent that the Commissioners of Charlestown Township have practiced a deliberate fraud in their return? Can anything be plainer? If there is any desire in the comwe will give their names in our next issue, for we are determined that this thing shall be ferretted out. DEATH OF GENERAL SCOTT.

Lieutenant General WINFIELD SCOTT died on Tuesday morning, 29th ult., at West Point after a very brief illness. General Scott was born at Petersburg, Virginia, in June, 1786. He was educated at William and Mary College, and afterwards studied law and was admitted to the Bar. In 1808 he received the commission of Captain in the army. He was in active service and behaved with marked gallantry in the last war between this country and Great Britain. He was at various times assigned to very responsible positions on the Canadian frontier and in the Indian territories, and in 1841 he became, by the death of General Macomb, Commander-in-Chief of the army. His campaigns in Mexico in 1847 constitute a portion of the history of the country, with which the public is familiar. On the breaking out of the late civil war, he superintended the reorganiza-tion of the army, and the forward movement which resulted in the rout at Bull Run. On November 1, 1861, he retired from active service, and has since lived quietly in New

THE ELECTION. We have not yet received returns that can lay any claim to accuracy from half of the counties in the State. Enough have been received, however, to indicate that a majority of the votes cast has been given for the ratification of the constitutional amendment, but how large that majority really is, we are yet unable to say. In very few counties was the election conducted with any degree of fairness; the registration act itself was grossly violated in many cases, and in some places open force many cases, and in some places open force was employed to prevent men from voting for rejection. Under these circumstances, the election held on the 24th cannot be regarded at all as a correct expression of public pinion, or as affording any evidence that a ajority of the legal voters of the State

Alas, poor Berkeley!

The majority for the Constitutional Amend ment in the county of Berkeley is 510! what condition do we come at last! Maj. E. W. Andrews, of the New Era, who was an officer in the Union army throughout the war, thus speaks of the enormity of the iniquity, and the base and contemptible means by which it was effected :

"The machinery of the Registry Law, united with the unconstitutional and ini system of Test Oaths, all run by reckless and unprincipled partisans, placed the result of the election absolutely in the hands of the radical party. Nothing was essential to their success, but that the proper officials should know what number of citizens it was necessary to deprive of the right to vote,-this known, and the requisite number were instantly stricken from the list of registered voters. We have witnessed in the course of our life some strange things in politics—but never before have we witnessed such trifling with the most sacred rights of American citizenship, as has marked the official action of Boards of Registration, under the new Registry Law of this State. Citizens of the highest respectability, who have been known through the late war as uncompromising Union men, and against whose loyalty no evidence vas adduced, have been arbitrarily excluded from the right of franchise. In numerous instances, that have come to our knowledge, on the part of any one to question that right, only to learn that they could no longer exerise the most sacred, rights of American citienship—that their names were blotted from the list that professes to be a fair enrolment of the voters under the laws of the State .-Agricultural Depot which they design shall she will recover from only when she ceases to proscribe and persecute her citizens, and in harmony with the spirit of American liberty and republicanism, permits the majority of her people to rule in her councils."

The Civil Right's Bill.

The National Intelligencer says that a suit has been instituted by a negro against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, for refusing to sell him a ticket for passage in a gentlemen, they will be found honorable and first class car. It also says that the editor of receiving negroes at his mansion, where he entertained them in the style of luxuriance THE SEASON, thus far, has been very npropitious for vegetation, as until Friday which the Intelligencer quotes this extract:

"Negro suffrage means a score of negro Congressmen sitting in the House of Representatives. It means colored merchants in New Orleans and colored Senators in Carolina. It means negro representatives sharing in making railroad laws and other laws. It means social equality, and that was where the Southerner met the question. Social equality follows hard on the heel of the ballot-box, and the South knows it, and she resists ne-gro suffrage for what must follow it."

A comparison of this with the following ex-tract of a speech of Mr. Lincoln's, shows the wonderful progress that public opinion has made in the direction of negro equality within a very few months:

"I am not, nor ever have been, in favor of "I am not, nor ever have been, in favor of msking jurors or voters of negroes, nor intermarrying them with the people; and I will say, in addition to this, that there is a physical difference between the white and black races, which, I believe, will forever forbid the two races living together on terms of social equality. And, inasmuch as they cannot so live while they do remain together, there must be the position of superior and inferior, and I, as much as any other man, am in favor of having the superior assigned to the white man."

The English Panic.

The financial panic in England seems to have subsided. It was short but terrible, sweeping away collossal fortunes and established houses that had long exercised a controlling influence in financial centres at home and abroad. Insanity has been defined to be "the entanglement of thoughts," but he hasn't thoughts enough to make a tangle. 'Tis a pity for him that he isn't insane, for it would be the only excuse, utter mental imbecility excepted, for the disgrace he is inflicting upon the State in which he dwells. He calls himself a men of God. He professes to be a himself a man of God. He professes to be a messenger of "peace and good will to man." He holds himself up or not as a saint ordained and annointed to establish the spirit of Christianity among mankind. But he has ever promoted strifes and fights and blood-shed in neighborhoods. He has been a pest, an itch, a leprosy, a yellow plague in every community. He has distilled venom like a human bohun upas. His tongue has ever been "set on fire of hell," his heart being the hell to kindle the wagging member. Beelze-bub's tail is forever coiled like a snake around the old miscreant's neck. There has never been any more religion or decency in his ser-mons or his prayers or his exhortations or his talk at death-beds, than in the yellings of nyenas, the cursing of pirates, or the objurgations of harlots. He has desecrated the ouse of God as much by his blasphemies as if he had stolen the sacremental vessels or used them in treating his congregation to apick. It is a wonder that in his he has never been transfixed by the forked arrows of God's vengeance. He professes to guide men to heaven and curse them to hell. He would go for universal damnation, provided he could be exempted himself. In his black robes and white cravat, he might re-

What an infinitely miserable old man this must be. He never did a generous or kind thing in his life. He has ever meditated the gratification of his malice. He has ever been seeking to steal upon his unsuspecting neigh-bors like a hungry cat upon a bird. Every man has a deadly antipathy to him. They say there are people who have such an an-tipathy to black cats that they instinctively know if one is within a hundred yards of them in the darkest night, and we are sure that decent people would recognize his proximity at quite that distance. He can have no healthful slumber-only convulsions. The whole of the beautiful world, sky, earth and sea-must be as black as Erebus to his eyes. Every sound must be to his ears like a wail rain must hiss upon his burning head. Every breeze must seem to him a blasting sirocco-every morsel of food a dose of infernal brimstone. The poor old wretch must feel terrible remorse. He must feel as if his ribs were red-hot gridirons, broiling his entrails. If every malignant and accursed lie he has told were a coal of fire upon his body, he would writhe and twist under a taller mountain of flame than ever the old Titans did. His heart is as black as ten thousand devils. He sees behind him only the mounds over the graves of buried victims, and before—only the Dead Sea of Despair. Heaven, earth, and even hell abhor him-though the latter will somehow manage to gulp him down.— His very face looks like that of a dead man, who, mistaking a boy's tooting-horn for Ga briel's trumpet, has got up for judgment be-fore his time. His evil passions have killed out every semblance of human nature in his features, if there ever was such a semblance

LETTER FROM GENERAL SHIELDS .- Gen. James Shields, late of the United States army, has written a letter concluding with the following emphatic declarations:

If this country is to be saved from going the way of all other Republics on this con-tinent, we will owe it under God to Andrew Johnson. If we are ever again to have anything worthy of being called a Union, we will owe it to his loyalty and integrity.

But a Union kept together by bayonets, or,
what is worse, by a swarm of official vermin, appointed under Civil Rights bills, to interfere with the laws, tribunals and rights of the States, and the hereditary constitutional liberty of the people, is not worth an hour's preservation. No, let us have a real Union a Union of hearts, laws, rights and priv-

Died.

In Charlestown, Va., on the 5th day of May, 1866, WILLIAM B. BROWN, is the 28th year of his age, son of Mr Charles H H Brown, of Baltimore, Md. This interesting your man was in early life, highly educated, talented and of high sense of honor, and had a right to look forward to high honors, high position, and a long life of usefulness. The toesin of war was sounded, Virginia was invaded, and free from ambition, he sought not the rank his talents, education and position might have claimed, but at the call of patriotism alone, shouldered his mesket and as a private joined the lines of the blood-drenched Virginia, struggling for her free dom against immense odds, he lought gallantly through the war, endering all its privations and sufferings without a murmur, mingling his blood freely with the gallant of Virginia's sonswhen the war was over his constitution gave way under his woonds, privations, and sufferings, and he returned to his home, took leave of his parents, hastened to Virginia and lay his noble frame in her soil, where repose her honored soldiers, officers, patriots, statesmen, with her world-renowned Washington. Virginia admits this young patriot to be Maryland's son, but claims him as her grandson, his best blood flowed freely in her cause and his noble and gallant heart is embalmed in her soil, his parents moved from Virginia to her sister Maryland, but when Virginia was invaded, like a faithful and patriotic grandson, he buckled on his armour, flew to her assistance and became a martyr in her defence. Others have also fallen martyrs to the great cause, some high in position—ambition of fame may have mingled in their cup; not so with this young man. He sought no position but the front, at the cannon's month. Virginia honors her gallant, true-hearted sons. The soil that receives into its bosom his form, scarred with honor's wounds, bears not on its surface a more true patriot or more honorable gentleman.

RAY'S REAPER AND MOWER. 17-THE cheapest and best REAPER and HOWER, over offered to the citizens of the Valley of Virginia, is now on exhibition at Berryville, at the Old Tavern, by Mu. JAMES E. NORRIS of Baltimore, formerly a resident of Clarke county .-The Machine is a Southern invention, and is offered for sale by Southern gentlemen. The advantages of this Machine consist in its simplicity and durability-having no Cog Wheels, and therefore not as liable to get out of repair as the other Reaners and Mowers which have been formerly sold in this section of Virginia. This Machine has been tested by a large nun ber of Farmers, throughout Maryland and Pennsylvania, all of whom testify to its superiority over all others. Mr. N. is the State Agent, and has established Sub-Agents at Charles town, Winchester and Strasburg, where these Machines can always be seen and if desired their merits fully tested. A CARD.

To the Editor of the Spirit of Jefferson:—
Sir:—In praishment for some sin committed by me or some of my ancestors, I was put forward as a candidate at the last election in this county.— I have. I think, fully expiated the effence by the amount of abuse I have received, and the exemplary patience with which I have endured it. There is one point, however on which I want to be fully understood, and I deem it of sufficient importance to move me from my usual apathy in political squabbles. It has been falsely and maliciously said that I intended to mix blacks and whites in the same school houses. This I pronounce as false as the heart of the scoundr I who invented it, and consequently far more false than the realms of his Satanic Majesty. I consider this disclaimer due to myself and friends, but will hereafter treat the matter with silent contempt. I will conclude by praying that my traducer may some day become a candidate himself, which in my opinion is the greatest punishment that indignant justice could inflict on any criminal.

Pancatharticonized Old Rye Whiskey

DEFECATED or Depurated for medical or social uses, by the "PANCATHABTICON," invented and patented June 17, 1852, by JOHN E. WILSON, Baltimore, Md., in Barrels, Demijohns, Bottles, &c. For sale by the Agent, on the Northwest corner of Howard and Camden streets, nearly opposite Camden Station of Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. 65 None genuine that has not the Patentee and Agent's signature on each label. JOHN E. WILSON.

RI-Its purity has been fully tested as per the an-nexed certificates of analysis: CERTIFICATES. From a careful Chemical Analysis of Supe Fior Old Rye Whiskey, Pancatharti-conized by JOHN E. WILSON, of Baltimore. This Whiskey is characterized by the absence of heavy Fusit Oil, Sugar and Poisonous Metalic compounds, and by retaining its ethereal oderous oil untainted. It has the chemical composition of a pure, carefully defecated Rye Whiskey.

Respectfully,

A. A. HAYES, M. D.,

State Assayer, 16 Boylaton stragt.

Boston, Mass., 23d August, 1862.

G. A. LEIBIG, Analytical Chemist Baltimore, July 26, 1862.

Careful chemical analysis of four kinds of Whiskey-Superint Old Rye Whiskey, Superior Old Bourbon Whiskey, Superior Old Wheat Whiskey, Superior Old Corn Whiskey-Pancatharticonized by means of the patent apparatus invented by John E. Wilson, of Baltimore, Md., have shown them to be entirely free from the heavy Fusil Olls and from the pasonous metalic compounds often found in Whiskeys.

They retain the Etherest Products, entirely free from any Taint produced by injured grain, or carelless fermentation, and being unmodified by the use of sugar, are remarkably pure products of delicate chemical operations.

Respectfully,

State Assayer, 16 Boylston street,
Boston, Mass., 23d August, 1865.

Ph. Courvoisier's Paris Kid Gloves. THE PLEDGE.

BY THE BORD OF MARBLE HALL: In Baltimore, famed for ladies fair, Lived a beautiful girl with flaxen hair, And bonny blue eyes with liquid light, And roscate lips, a glorious sight.

The youngsters fell in love by dozens, Frierds and acquaintances, strangers and cous But she a crotchet had got in her head, And said she determined never to wed,

Until she loved a handsome youth Who would grant all her requests in truth, And bind him fully never to break The pledge he had taken for her sake.

The young men stood aghast with fear; Some whacked their bonts, some pulled their hair; Some said 'twas religion, some said 'twas money; But it took them aback and they felt quite funny. Among them there was a fine young man;
Says he, 'I love her as well as I can,
Now I'll make her the promise, both open and free,
And agree to stand by it whatever it be."

The fair one stepped up to his side, And said, "Should I now be your bride, You must promise here before us all, To buy your clothes at MARBLE HALL.

No other can suit a husband of mine, The coats are so handsome, the pants divine." Says Johnny, a laughing, "You dear little elf, If you like them so well, get a pair for yourself.

We offer unusual inducement in all kinds of Clothing and Furnishing Goods, together with a superior like of piece goods for custom work. Boys Clothing a special feature.
