Upon the action of the committee in this case, the National Intelligencer remarks: The whole proceeding in this matter-the secrecy with which, from beginning to end, it has been enshrouded, the earnest efforts of the Judge Advocate General to convince the committee of the truth of charges based entirely upon testimony proved conclusively to be false; the efforts of the Radical majority of the Judiciary Committee to exclude a member of that committee up to the very last day of the session from any examination of the papers in the case; the payment of large sums of money to self-confessed perjurers; the permission given to the perjurers to go at large-all tend to arouse suspicions of a guilty knowledge somewhere of the existence and character of the conspiracy alleged, and demand, for the credit of the Government and the justification of some of its officers, a further rigid investigation into all the facts involved in this affair.

Southern Women.

Speaking of the conduct of the women of the South during the war, Forney thus shows up their iniquities: "Between the roar of the first gun and shriek of the last victim they displayed an indomitable energy, a fertility of resource, a boundless enthusiasm a contempt for danger, a hatred to the North parallel among the sternest who mounted the deadly breach or aimed the deadlier shot. If a political meeting was called and only three attended, one was a woman; if praises. prayers and blessings were required, women performed the pleasing duty, with a feering and patl os that were exceeded in fervor only by the curses they showered upon their opponents and faint hearted countrymen; from the beardless youth to the gray haired sire, there was none able to resist their graciousness, their charms, their smiles, their tears, their love, but above all their scorns, sarcasmi and contempt."

It never has been the habit of the women of the South to attend political meetings, and we have never heard that they did so during the war. But the other charges brought against them are true, to their immortal honor be it said. The fervent love of country, the devotion to principle, the unaffected piety, the generous self-sacrifice, the calar courage, the womahly tenderness, the unflinching fortitule they exhibited whenever circumstances shall have gone down "To the vile dust from which he sprung, Unwept, unhonored, and unsung."

- The editor of the New Haven Register, writing from the Clifton House, Niagara, on the 25th iest., says:

"We met, accidentally, with Hop. John C. Breckenridge, (who happened to be a day here with some friends,) and with whom we spent a pleasant half hour. He is in splendid health and condition, a little bronzed by exposure, a few more gray hairs than when we last met him, seven or eight years agobut the same noble demeanor, the same polished gentleman. He hopes, with us, for the early re-establishment of real peace and unity, and brighter days for the Republic.

It was also designed to force through the congressional amendment to the Constitution. While the boldness of these lawless Radicals greatly incensed the public, the negroes, imbibing a vague idea suggested no doubt by committed; though it may have been done the corrupt members of the Convention, that that body was what they called a "free Convention," which was to do wonderful things for them, began to act in a very insulting and defiant manner. They got up military drills, and were very noisy and obtrusive with their demonstrations. On the day of the assembling of the Convention they appeared in military order with arms, and flags, and drums.

The dispatches tell the rest of the tragic It is strange that the Governor (WELLS) of Louisiana should have issued an order for the holding of this unlawful Convention. The Secretary of State refused to certify orders for filling the vacancies in the Convention. The Governor belongs to the Radicals; but the courts and the entire public voice

He telegraphed the President, who assured him instructions would be given the military to sustain the courts. It had been intended to arrest the members by authority of the courts. and it was rumored that the military would prevent the execution of civil process upon them. Indeed, the Federal commander publiely declared that the Convention should not be interrupted. Whether the instructions of the President reached New Orleans in time or not, the general commanding, BAIRD, stood by with folded arms while the horrors of Monday and a devotion to the South which found no prevailed. [From the N. Y. Freeman's Journal.] The New Puritan Slave Trade.

The public are pretty thoroughly enlightened as to the principal part taken by New England Puritans in the prosecution and continuance of the African slave trade. To complete that history it will only be necessary for some investigating Yankee to make the tour of New England, village by village, and count up how many pianos, harps, dinner and tea sets, pieces of gold and silver plate, gold watches, jewelry, &c, &c., the Puritan chaplains, along with other patriots that went to the war, stole from the slave-holders, by way of executing justice, and punishing them for | having bought the poor Africans from the Yankees. There is, however, another kind of slave trade to which the brood of the Puritans are turning their attention. It is of much importance that the history of its progress be a few seconds in prayer, and then, rising, was written step by step, and that all possible presented to their Majesties the King and light be thrown upon it as it goes on. We call, earnestly, on those who are interested, especially in the matter of the race or the creed of the new "slaves," to obtain exact statistics, and to put them in the way of reaching the public.

It is hardly necessary to say that we speak of the trade carried on by a combination of kidnapping societies, of which the "Children's Aid Society" is one, in the children of Irish Catholics. These children are stolen in New York, carried west and sold for money. We proceed to prove this latter fact, as well as the sale of the children at the West, by a letter produced by our good correspondent at Dayton, Ohio, and sent to us for use. It is in reply to our demand for specific proofs of the alleged outrage. Here is the letter of the zealous Catholic Missionary priest at Piqua, Ohio:

I do hereby certify, first, that there were about sixty children (principally Catholic) disposed of in Piqua on the 16th, 17th and 19th of March last.

Second-That their arrival here was announced by placard some days beforehand. Third—That no certain homes or situations were provided for these children before they arrived in Piqua, and that the public were invited to come and select boys from the Fourth-That I, the undersigned, paid the sum demanded for five; this was fortyfive dollars. Others paid twelve dollars for Fifth-Some of these children were from Randall's Island. I cannot say now if all were from there. The parents of some of them are living, others are orphans. JAMES J. O'DONORUE, Pastor of St. Mary's Church, Piqua, O.

Our Dayton correspondent tells us, farther, that lately a number of such children were brought to Eaton, Preble county, Ohio, and that an acquaintance of his bought two of them for twenty dollars apiece! Here is traffic in human flesh and blood for you! Here is one more cumulative and needless proof of the damnable hypocrisy of the Puritans! They have deluged the land in blood, destroyed the constitutional liberties of the States, and burdened the people with the most stupendous debt, on the plea that slavery is wicked. That was in the case of the barbarous and degraded negroes! At the same moment, they are engaged in selling ivy, rose, and myrtle. The Princess Louisa out in Ohio the bright-witted and comely sons of Irish parents, kidnapped in New

More Protection Needed .- And now we have developments of a wholesale slaughter of infants in Lawrence, Massachusetts. It appears from the coroner's inquest that a Mrs. Rogers has received infants, generally illegitimate, and from a month to a year in age, to board; sometimes she has had as many as nine boarders of this class at once. Last week she had six. There was a coroner's inquest on one of them last Saturday. On Monday a neighbor looked in and saw the unburied body, black, covered with maggots, and the eyes not closed. An infant then in the woman's arms was apparently in a dying condition. Of the one dead, a witness expressed the opinion that the wretched infant "had sucked its fingers to the bone, and quite raw in the agonies of starvation. Several similar, cases were mentioned in connection with this Herodian hotel, or among infant boarders lately taken away from Mrs Rogers. The bill of fare, to use the expression of the witness, was "flour gruel scared with milk," It was also stated that some of the mothers hoped the children would die, thus relieving them of paying a dollar a week to the woman. All this in Massachusetts but as the little sufferers were not in Louisiana, nor "colored," nor reconstructed, nor drawing government rations of white sugar, nor costing the country $8,000,000 annually, there is no talk of establishing, a branch of the Bureau at Lawrence as a means of protecting infants from starvation. Even Sumner, who has offered petitions for pianos, new shoes, suffrage, or similar luxuries for half the reconstructed negroes in the country; has not seen fit to present this Lawrence matter to the Senate.

On the first entry of the royal party there was a slight hesitation as to places, caused, no doubt, by the absence of his Royal Highness truthfulness the Duke of Cambridge, through an attack of gout; but this was speedily rectified. Lords Sydney and Castleosse, the chamberlain and vice chamberlain, employed the interval in proceeding to the Red Room; from which they returned with the procession of the bridegroom. Mendelssohn's march from "Athalie" was played as they entered the chapel. His Royal Highness Prince Christian wore the uniform of a major, general in the British service, the only member of his suite in a foreign uniform being the Count Rantzau, his gentleman of honor. Advancing to the altar rails, and making two slight inclinations, right and left, to the bishops seated within, his Royal Highness knelt for Queen of the Belgians. The photographs, as usual, convey but an inaccurate idea of the bridegroom. He is a tall, military-looking man, apparently between thtrty-five and forty years of age, with a good forehead, but the lower part of his face covered by a beardsuch portions of his face as are visible wearing a calm determined expression that never of nearly ten minutes before the procession of the bride made its appearance, also heralded by a stately march, the time taken from Handel's "Scipione." All present rose as the Princess, supported by the Queen and his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, entered the chapel; and the members of the different procession, which now completely occupied the standing room in the centre of the apartment, proceeded to take up new positions,-The bride, on entering the chapel, was visibly agitated, but regained composure upon reaching her place on the left-hand side of the altar, and, subsequently made the necessary responses with a clearness and audibility, calling to mind the charm of speeches from the throne in days when these were read by the Sovereign in person.

It was remarked with satisfaction that her ing which has become characteristic of the he was plain or handsome; I have my pecuroyal attire, introduced into it certain modifications tending to relieve the sombre effect. The Prince of Wales wore the uniform of the 10th hussars, of which his Royal Highness is colonel, and the Duke of Edinburgh the uniform of the naval rank. Their Royal Highnesses the Princes Arthur and Leopold wore the Highland dress, which has always been a favorite costume with younger mem-

A Fortunate Kiss.

The following pretty little story is narrated by Frederika Bremer, who vouches for its

In the University of Upsala, in Sweden. lived a young student, a noble youth, with great love for studies, but without means for pursuing them. He was poor, without con-nections. Still he studied, lived in great poverty, but keeping a cheerful heart, and trying to look at the luture, which looked so grim to him. His good humor and excellent quali-ties made him beloved by his comrades,— One day he was standing at the square with some of them, prattling away an hour of leisome of them, platting away an hour of fel-sure, when the attention of the young men became arrested by a young and elegant lady who, by the side of an older one, was slowly walking over the place. It was the daugh-ter of the Governor of Upsala, living in the city, and the lady was her governess. She was generally known for her goodness and gentleness of character, and was looked at with admiration by the students. As the young men stood gazing at her as she passed, like a graceful vision, one of them suddenly exclaimed: "Well, it would be worth something to have a kiss from such a mouth." The poor student, the hero of our story.

forsakes them, but appears to enter into and influence all his actions. There was a pause claimed, as if by inspiration : "Well, I think I could have it." "Well," cried his friends in a chorus, "are you crazy?" "Do you know her?" " Not at all," he answered, "but I think she would kiss me if I asked her" "What! in this place-and before all our "Yes."

" Freely ?" " Yes, freely."

"Well, if she will give you a kiss in that manner, I will give you a thousand dollars!" exclaimed one of the party.
"And I," "and I," exclaimed three or four others, for it happened that several rich men were in the group, and the bets ran high, on so improbable an event. The challenge was made and received in less time than we take to tell it. Our hero (my authority tells not whether liar reasons for believing that he was rather plain, but singularly good-looking at the same time,) immediately walked up to the young lady and said: "Mine fraulien, my fortune is now in your hands." She looked at him with astonishment, but arrested her steps. He proceeded to state his name and condition, his aspiration, and related simply what had just now passed between him and his comrades.

The young lady listened attentively, and at his ceasing to speak, she said, blushingly, but with great sweetness: " If by so little a thing, so much good can be effected, it would be foolish for me to refuse your request;" and publicly, in the open

OUR HOMES.

In these times of great money troubles there are many of our farmers who are compelled to sell land. To all those we would urge the propriety of not selling out the whole of their farms. We believe that it is better to sell than to mortgage; for heavy debts are so worrying that there is not one man in a hundred who can lead a life of any sort of contentment with them hanging over him. But there is no general necessity existing which will require a sale of entire homesteads. Let our people, who are compelled to raise money, divide their farms, and sell sufficient to meet their pecuniary wants, retaining their homes whenever possible; and let every man, after selling a portion of his land go to work with the determination of making what he retains worth as much as the whole formerly was to him. We have pever had a doubt that by judicious farming, working industriously and manuring heavily, any one acre of Jefferson land can be made to yield twice as much as heretofore, and therefore be made worth twice a much in money. Our lands are selling, the best of them, at about seventy five dollars per acre, while land of the same quality in Lancaster county, Pa., sells for more than twice that price. This difference is caused solely by the difference in the mode of cultivation, and the kind of labor. We believe it is a conceded fact among the most intelligent of our agriculturists that slave labor was the most expensive that could be employed to grow grain. It is true that just now, in the beginning and flush of negro freedom, labor is more expensive, more unreliable and more worthless in every way than it was in the days of slavery; but this condition of things cannot last long. A new and far better system of labor will be inaugurated before long. We munerative system, that will benefit the lands, and swell out the purses of our farmers. In the meantime, let us keep as much of our land as possible-selling only so much as absolutely necessary, and work on as well as we may until the better times come.

In selling, too, our farmers should be particular as to whom they sell. They owe it to themselves, and to the fair fame of the State to look somewhat into the character of purchasers. These purchasers will chiefly come from the North, and it therefore behooves us to do all in our power to get the better class of Northern men. In this connection we cannot refrain from extracting the following paragraph from a long and well written article in the American Farmer on this subject : "To all who are willing to be with us and of us, we would hold out a hand of welcome.-We want Northern capital, and energy, and stir, and such Northern men as will mind their own business, and not interfere with ours. We would invite and induce such to come and occupy our spare lands. But the Yankee proper,-the peeping, prying, meddling Yankee, sniffling and canting and preaching through his nose, we have no word for while he is away, but Procul! O, Procul! and when he comes only cuffs and kicks, or if need be, so much rope as was meted to old Brown. It would be the crowning triumph of this crowd, after robbing us of almost all else, to possess themselves of our Southern homes. To give them over to these, would be our lowest depth of humiliation. Whether we are to escape this, is a question yet in the future. Let us, however, be cheerful and hopeful Let us possess our souls in patience. Let us believe surely that God still reigns, notwithstanding his present allowance of Stevens, and Sumner, and Beecher; and that what was said of old time, may shortly be said again : 'I have seen the wicked in great power, and flour shing like a green bay tree. I passed by, and lo! he was not."

SHEEP STEALING. "I can buy a pair of Cashmere goats, brought from the South by some of the "boys," who "confiscated" them. Can they for them ?" The above extract is from a Northern agricultural paper. The English of it is, that a man calling himself a soldier. robbed some one of these goats, while in the United States armies, and is not ashamed to offer them for sale; while another, who .wishes to turn an honest (?) penny by the purchase, calls the thief, endearingly, one of "the boys," and uses falsely the honest word " confiscate " to cover up the rascality. A respectable editor publishes the letter without reproof, and treats the Writer with the civility due to a Christian and a gentleman .- American Farmer.

Our friends of the Farmer in speaking of this matter employ just the language fit for the occasion. These men of the North, who, like the inquirer about goats, are willing to receive property stolen from the people of the South, are not a whit better than the rascally be "flush," and to have plenty of funds for thieves, who came here to plunder under the pretext of teaching us to obey the Constitution. We have seen stupid Dutchmen, who could hardly utter a dozen words of English. commit all sorts of villanous thieving, and when protests were entered against their acts, stammering out that we must be made to obey the Constitution; and we suppose that the' recipients of their plunder think it all right and honest to keep and use the stolen proper ty for the purpose of teaching us to obey the Constitution. The "boys," under this protest, never allowed an opportunity to escape of "confiscating" all sorts of property.steal. Many families were robbed of every army, and so well known to Canadians in erything they owned-pianos, sewing-machines, cooking utensils, stoves, books, (even law books.) table-ware, bed-clothes, all were taken, ad libitum, as war measures, or as a mode of instilling a reverence for the Constitution in the minds of the people of the South. When the inside history of the war is written, and one half the wrongs inflicted by the "boys" is given out to the public eye, it will be met by one universal cry of "shame, shame," among all people save those of the North who are like the editor of this "respectable" agricultural paper and his corres-

UNMITIGATED RASCALITY --- A SCOUN-

The minority report of the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives, submitted by Mr. Rogers of New Jersey, on the charge of complicity made against President Davis, proves conclusively the absurdity of that charge, as well as exhibits the rascality practiced by the radicals to sustain it. The nature of the testimony upon which it was expected to prove this complicity, may be inferred from the following extract:-

"May 8, 1866 .- (ampbell's testimony. The testimony of this witness, taken by Judge Holt, was read to him in the Committee room, and he was asked if it was true, and he replied: No: it is all false.

Why did you make it?

Holt had offered a reward of $100,000 for the capture of Jeff Davis; that he had no authority really to do it; that now Jefferson Davis was taken they had not enough against him to justify them in what they had done; that Judge Holt wanted to get witnesses to prove that Davis was interested in the assassination of President Lincoln, so as to justify him in paying the $100,000. Speaking of the women that had testified in Holt's office to corroborate Conover, Camp bell says at this examination . "Sarah Douglass is not her real name. Her name was Dunham. There was another woman sworn. Her name given was assumed. One was Conover's wite, and the other his sister-in-law The one that called herself Mrs. Tunbam is Conover's wife. Conover's name is Charles Dunham. Conover told me if I engaged in it, it was not going to hurt anybody; that Jeff Davis would never be brought to trial; and that if this evidence got to him he would leave the country. Conover directed me to assume the name of Campbell. There was a person described by that name who was supposed to be implicated in that affair, and I was representing this party. He met Conover, in the first place, by the appointment of Snevel. Snevel said I could make money out of it. Money was my motive. I received six hundred and twenty-five dollars. I received one hundred dollars from Conover and five hundred dollars from Judge Holt. I got one hundred and fifty dollars at Boston and one hundred at St. Albans. I went to Canada to hunt up a witness to swear false, who was to represent Lamar. Snevel saw the written evidence I was to swear to after Conover wrote

The name of Charles Dunham is not unfamiliar to many of our readers. In the spring of '63, an individual brought his family to this town, where they passed under the assumed name of Bishop. Their real name was Dunham, and the head of that family was Charles Dunham. He remained here a day or two. and although the town was in the occupancy of Federal troops, he cluded the vigilance of their pickets, and made his way to Richmond. where his professions of intense Southernism won for him many friends. He represented that he had been a practising lawyer in the city of New York up to the inauguration of the war, that at that time he was colonel of a militia regiment, and because of his refusal to lead his regiment to the front he was cast into prison, where he spent many weary months of incarceration.. His story ran, that after his release from prison, he made his way to Baltimore, and being joined by his family, they took the name of Bishap. Finding in Baltimore a large number of young men who ardently desired to attach their fortunes to the cause of the South in her struggle, he Richmond, with a view to arranging with the Confederate authorities some scheme by wich the services of these gallant young Baltimoreans could be secured. He scouted around Richmond for some time, visited the war office lived well at the hotels, and altogether made quite a dash. The vigilant authorities, however, had an eye upon his movements, and before he was aware that suspicion rested upon him, he was arrested and had lodgings provided him in Castle Thunder. For want of direct evidence against him, he was released in a few months and sent North. A short time after the Baltimore American contained an article on the condition of affairs in Richmond, based upon information furnished by Mr. Dunham, a returned prisoner from be raised profitably? What is it sale to pay

In the meantime, the family of this uncircumcised scamp, (consisting of a wife, three children and a nurse,) were comfortably quartered at the "Sappington Hotel" in this town, where they remained for about five months waiting for Mr. Bishop to " turn up." which he never did in person. Some charitable gentlemen of the town, sympathising with the situation of Mrs. Bishop, who had not one cent to pay her hotel bill or for any other purpose, raised a sufficient amount of money to enable her with her children to return to Baltimore. Here they were joined by Dunham, whose subsequent conduct proved him to be a vile impostor, and anything else than a Southern man, As he seems now to suborning witnesses against Jefferson Davis and others, we suggest that he send the amount of his hotel bill to the landlady who supported his family during the summer of 1863.

Gov. Boreman the Nero of West Virginia, Board of Registration of each county of the to the late election, so as to insure the certain return of all persons voted for, of the radical stripe. We do not refer to this further outrage upon political liberty as a matter of surprise. Nothing surprises us emanating from the whited sepulchre, who sits like a vulture in his capital on the banks of the Ohio, clothed as he is with usurped authority. But what does surprise us is that in a land of boasted political liberty, a liberty that was supposed to be icoparded by the secession of the Southern States and of which the so called state of West Virginia was plucked, as a brand from the burning, by this Boreman and others to prevent rebel tyranny, should thus in its chrysalis condition, as a state, through the person of the executive head, perpetrate crimes against the liberty of the citizen, which in the days of the Jacobins of France, were I was informed by Mr. Conover that Judge | not dreamed of in their vocabulary of political

We do not now speak of this thing as a crime against those who, being connected with the Confederate army, are dispossessed of their frauchises, but only as an outrage upon the rights of the union citizens, whose only disloyalty consists in their independence of sentiment and conservative action. It is for these that we speak, and we ask how long do they intend to be thus outraged by this Damon, who hangs his sword poised over their Constitutional heritage,

The Voter's Test Oath.

The question of the validity of the test oath of the Registration law was brought before the late session of the Supreme Court, by the petition of Robert Brown of Brooke county, asking that a Mandamus be issued against the Board of Registration of that county, for refusing to register his name and thereby depriving him of his vote, notwithstanding he declined taking the test oath required. The court awarded a Mandamus visi, requiring the Board of Registration of Brooke county to register the name of Mr. Brown unless they could show some good and king. sufficient cause for not doing so, besides his failure, refusal or inability to take the test

The awarding of this Mandamus by the Supreme Court of the State, requiring the Board of Registration to register the name of the netitioner, unless they could show some good cause for not doing so, after the statement of the petitioner that he had refused to take the test outh, is a virtual decision that the refusal, failure, or inability to take the test oath, is not a disqualification of a voter, as that cause was already before the Court. his action of decision of the Supreme Court of the State, is binding upon all the Circuit Judges, they holding inferior Courts, and it s presumed they will be governed in accordnce with it. We hope, for the credit of the officers of our State, that we shall have to more trouble about this odious, anti-republican, ex post facto, unconstitutional oath, 'Let justice be done if the sky falls."

We take the above from the Conservative. From the decision of the court it will be seen that something besides the failure, refusal, or inability to take the test oath must be shown by the registrars before they can refuse to admit a citizen to registration, and the right of voting. It seems to us that this settles the question; that all white males not excluded by the provisions of the State constitution have the right to vote; and as these provisions embrace all white males of twenty-one years of age who are not of unsound mind, paupers, convicts, felons, &c., it follows as the natural consequence of the decision, that the voter's test oath is unconstitutional; and this had, at great personal risk, concluded to visit much the court might as well have said out plainly; but we are too thankful for this much justice at the hands of the West Virginia judiciary to scold at the mild way in which they have expressed themselves.

Apprehended Negro Troubles in Virginia.

The frequent recurrence by the Richmond journals to the nightly drills in that city and neighborhood of a portion of the negro population, and the serious apprehensions so peatedly expressed by disturbance and bloodshed, ought to arrest the attention of the high civil and military authorities. One of the Richmond journals states that on Friday night last the very heart of the city was invaded by an organized band of negroes, who made the hight hideous with their music, the clamorous orders of their officers, and the tramp of many hundred feet. It is added that on the hills around the city, and in its suburbs, the Texas: tramp of negro military companies can be heard every night, and the rattle of sabres disturbs the sleep of women and children .-When the whites are disarmed, and in no way of public peace ought surely to put an end to proceedings so well calculated, if they are not designed, to produce scenes of disorder and bloodshed. Dear Sir,-Your paper of the 13th ultimo has just reached me, and I observed the card of my house, and also the editorial notice. I suppose some friend or acquaintance instructintertering with the negroes, the conservators ed you to insert our card, and I have no doubt but that you meant to do me a kindness by your comments; whether you have, however, done so or not is a question. If you and your paper have been fairly, squarely, and honestly consistent for the past five years; then you may benefit me; but if you have been one of those miserable creatures that were neither "ram, lamb, sheep, nor mutton," during the terrible war which has so lately desolated my country, then your Unionism is not worth a copper, and your notice will ininre rather than serve me among the brave Texans who were truly Southern, and with whom only I expect to deal.

For the Federals who met me in battle, and showed their "faith by their works," . have respect; but for the would-be-wise men of the South who "knew the cow would eat the grindstone." I have the most perfect con-fighting." Jeff. don't "say to at he has been most gloriously whipped by the Union troops," -but General Thompson says, that by over-powering numbers in front, and enemies in disguise in the rear, the Confederate troops were compelled to surrender, and that, iollowing the example of his great leaders, he is disposed to be an humble citizen of the United States without sacrificing one jot of his "pluck" or honor.

Believing that you meant to do me a favor by your notice, I thank you for it, but not showing your antecedents, I fear you have

The Pennsylvania Soldier's Convention Denounce the Radical Congress.

The Soldier's Convention which met at Harrisburg, last Seek, was very largely attended, and the speakers were unanimous in support of the following resolutions: The resolutions repudiate the convention held at Pittsburg, on the 5th of June, and declare that the proceedings of the said convention misrepresent the true sentiments of the mass of returned soldiers and sailors of neonle should know the real temper of the 'the State, and do great injustice to the late defenders of the Constitution and the Union. They repudiate the action of the Radical Congress; which is an insult to every officer, soldier and seaman who served in the Fedeponent of the Southern sentiment at this moment.

President Lincoln had great confidence in President Lincoln had great Lincol and the fruits of our toil and blood-bought victories turned to ashes in their hands. They cordially endorse the restoration policy of President Johnson, as announced in his annual, special and veto me sages, and as further made known to the country in his treatment of the States lately in rebellion .-We believe it to be just and humane, and better adapted than any other known policy to restore those States to their constitutional relations to the Union, and bring renewed peace, happiness, and prosperity to the whole country. -Extensive frauds have lately been practiced at Danville, Va., by parties engaged in the manufacture and sale of tobacco, by which the U.S. Government was made a loser to the extent of $12,000. It seems that, by some means or other, a man by the name of Staite, formerly of Wytheville, Va., had improperly obtained possession of the tobacco inspector's brand, which he proposed to use in branding tobacco "Tax paid" at about $10 per box, he making clear the $10, and the tobacco manufacturers "making" fraudulently or "saving" off of the Government, about $30 per box. Detectives from Washington were sent on, hunted up the matter, and discovered the whole swindling arrangement. The result was, the seizure of the tobacco manufactories and their contents, and the arrest of the owners, Staite, in the meantime, leaving for parts unknown. The penalty is the confiscation of the manufactories, a fine of $500, and two years' imprisonment. "For he said, the Lird watch between me and thee when we are absent from one another."-Gsx. When far from the hearts where our fondest thoughts centre, Denied for a time their loved presence to share, In spirit we meet, when the closet we enter And hold sweet communion together in prayer. Oh! fondly I think, as might's curtains surround

The Shepherd of Israel tenderly keeps;
The angels of light are encamping around them. They are watched by the eye that ne'er slumbers

When the voice of the morning once more shall awake them.

And summen them forth to the call of the day;

I will think of that God who will never forsake The friend ever near, though all else be away!

Then why should one thought of anxiety seize us. Though distance divide us from those whom we They rest in the covenant mercy of Jesus, Their prayers meet with ours in the mansion above.

Oh! sweet bond of friendship! what'er may betide Though on life's stormy billow our barks may be Though distance, or trial, or death may divide us, Eternal re-union awaits us in Heaven!

Miscellaneous.

A PARENTAL LETTER .- The following letter was written by a father to his son at col-

" My Dear Son-I write to send your new socks which your mother has just knit bycutting down some of mine. Your mother sends you ten dollars wi hout my knowledge. and for fear you would not spe d it wisely, I kept back half, and only send you five .-Your own mother and I are well, except that your sister has got the measels, which we think would spread among the other girls if Tom had not had them before, and he is the only one left. I hope you will do honor to my teaching; if you do not, you are a donkey, and your mother and myself are your affectionate parents"

ONE OF LAMB'S JOKES .- Charles Lamb was invited to meet at dinner a new aspirant for poetic honors, and the poems were shown to Lamb a little before the author's arrival. When he came he proved to be empty and conceited. During dinner Lamb fell into the delightful drollery of saying, now and again, "that reminds me of some verses I wrote when I was very young," and then quoted a line or two which he recollected, from the gentleman's book, to the latter's amazement and indignation. Lamb, immensely diverted. capped it all by introducing the first lines of Paradise Lost, " of man's first disobedience," as also written by himself, which actually brought the gentleman to his feet bursting with rage. He said he had sat by and allowed his own "little verses" to be taken without protest, but he could not endure to see Milton pillaged.

THE BATTLE OF SODOWA .- This is the great battle of the European war. It was fought with distinguished bravery by both Prussians and Austrians, and the victory has given to the Prussians great reputation. The desperate character of the battle, may be imagined, when we see it stated by the London Times, in describing the fight in the woods above Sodowa, that: 'The 27th Prussian regiment went in nearly three thousand strong. with ninety officers, and came out on the further side with only two officers and between three hundred and four hundred men standing; all the rest were kill d or wounded .-The other regiments of this division also suffered much, but not in the same proportion, but the woods were carried, Frierds and acquaintances, strangers and cous But she a crotchet had got in her head, And said she determined never to wed.

Until she loved a handsome youth Who would grant all her requests in truth, And bind him fully never to break The pledge he had taken for her sake.

Some said twas religion, some said twas money; But it took them aback and they felt quite funry. Among them there was a fine young man; Says he, "I love her as well as I can, Now I'll make her the promise, both open and free, And agree to stand by it whatever it be."

The fair one stepped up to his side, And said "Should I now be your bride, You must promise here before us all, To buy your clothes at MARBLE HALL.

No other can suit a husband of mine, The coats are so handsome, the pants divine."
