LOVE AND THE LILY.

[From the German.] As Love one day wasout at play, He met a blooming lily, And on its bosom asked to lay His cheek—it was so chilly.

"Go to," the wavy fily said,
"I lack not for politeness;
But on my word, Love, I'm afraid
Your cheek may soil my whiteness."

"Nay, nay, not so," Love soft replied,
"You only talk for teasing;
'Tis summer sunlight at your side,
Else everywhere 'tis freezing'

Believing not Love's seeming toil
Was half he represented,
The pitying lily, all the while Refusing, still consented. But when the morn with dewy tread Came round to wake the flowers, Alas! the lily's drooping head Rose not to greet the hours

And the the bees around its cup
At noon as usual dallied;
Oh! never more were lifted up

NO. 3. Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch. More about the Tragedy in Buckingham BUCKINGHAM COURT HOUSE, )

September 6, 1866 The most thrilling and melancholy affair took place here on the 1st instant that has shocked the feelings of our citizens since the close of the war. The causes and results are as follows:

About three weeks ago, or more, Mr. Antony Walton, a wealthy mill-owner of this town, arose early in the morning with the alleged intention of visiting his mill and plantation, but suddenly changing his route, returned to the house." There he found Mr. James Leach (a young lawyer who makes Mr. Walton's house his home during the sessions of court) in the room with his wife. Their positions relative to each other were such as to excite suspicion on the part of the husband, who at once ordered Mr. Leach out of the house, and forced the execution of his mandate at the point of a revolver; after which, he called for the carriage, and putting madam in, sent her to her mother. Nothing farther of interest transpired in the case, except that a bill of divorce was filed by Mr. Walton, until last Saturday, when Leach again rode into town. After strolling about the village for some time, he met Anderson Walton, a son of Antony by a first wife. Anderson reproached Leach at once with the scandal, which Leach denied with great emphasis; whereupon Anderson shook his fist in his face and exclaimed, "You — lying —, you did! for pa saw you," at the same time putting his hand under his coat. "So you will shoot me, will you?" yelled Leach, and drawing his six-shooter. he fired, and young Walton fell pierced through the lungs, the blood gushing from his mouth and nostrils. Just then, Mr. Walton the elder rushed up and fired three shots from his pistol directly at Leach, but missing him entirely, slightly wounded Captain A. T. Moseley and a negro. Once more Leach fired, and the elder Walton lay on the sward a corpse. The ball entered just above his heart, severing the main arteries Anderson lingered until Monday evening about 2 o'clock, when, as they were closing the grave over all that was mortal of his father, his soul joined him in the spirit world. The Rev. James H. C. Leach, D. D., a highly respected Presbyterian minister, died soon after hearing of the bloody drama in which his son had acted so prominent a part; possibly in consequence, though as to this no one can do aught but conjecture.

Mrs. Walton was one of the wives of Hobert, the æronaut, whose ears were cut off in Louisville, Ky., for bigamy! Soon after their marriage he ran off with her money, leaving her destitute, though legally free, for he had two wives living when he married her. Mr. Walton became so enamored with the beautiful widow that he bought her wedding clothes. and lavished on her every luxury that wealth could procure, until the recent affair, which led to the double homicide. Leach has been justified on the plea of

Bismarck's Personal Appearance.

The European correspondent of the New York World, who won quite a reputation as a spicy, dashing writer during the war, says that when he applied to Bismarck for a pass, the latter stated that he had purposed leaving all such business to the discretion of the field commanders; but said he smiling, "when one has come so far, and from a people we like so well as the Americans, he shall have

The correspondent gives the following free and easy sketch of the great Prussian's per-

Barbaric in stature as in method, measur ing evenly six feet two inches in height, and weighing not less than two hundred and fifty pounds. Count Bismarck is entirely a Prussian in physiogonomy; and his port and strength are feudal in their imperiousness .-Seated in an office chamber of the great Schloss or King's palace, with clerks in the ante-rooms, couriers in spurs at the hall, ready to carry his orders, a table before him filled with blanks, reports and newspapers, and the light from the screened windows falling fairly on his seated figure, you behold in common business dress, a man who might pass for fifty years of age, half bald, smooth of face, save a short and heavy moustache of grayish brown that quite overlocks the hardshut, ponderous mouth, and a nose of insignificent length, but broad and proud nostril-

His flesh is in excess, so that around the eyes it is puffy and creased, and his short, stony and undimpled chin drops a huge double-told upon his breast. His eyebrows are jagged; if they were heavier over those lood-shotten eyes he would be terrible. At the back of his deep cheeks a pair of bulldog,s ears stand out to stop all the winds and their rumors, and his hands and feet, that are determined even in rest, are large enough to win a woman's censure. So dark that he looks freekled away from the light; so listful and yet so massive that he looks like a panther in granite, this man would better befit a baron's trencher, where his vassals eat and tremble, than sit here on the waxed floors of a modern palace doing desk duty:

I expected that he would remind me of Stand Gen. Butler on a chair to help his sta-Count Bismarck that I can think of among American leaders. Near by him, on a rose-wood table, lay a Prussian officer's helmet, and if he had put it on I think that Front de Bouf would have been before me in armor.

A Case of Horrible Affection.

Yearly Advertisements by Special Contract:

A correspondent of the Springfield Republican, writing from San Francisco, furnishes the following incident, so horrible in its details that the pen of a Hawthorne might weave it into a romance:-

"Complaint was made to the health officer that the occupant of a handsome residence in one of our fashionable quarters was creating a nuisance by keeping the corpse of his wife in the building, to the great discomfort and ill-health of the neighborhood. It appears that the wife of the person complained of died about a year ago, when the husband purchased a metallic coffin and placed the corpse in one of the rooms of his residence. It was alleged more particularly that the day previous to the complaint he had taken the body from its coffin and washed it with a garden hose, afterward replacing the coffin where, at the time of the complaint, it still remained. Sincere as was this evidence of undying and unalterable affection, the spectacle of that stricken and inconsolable widower playing the garden hase upon the de-composed remains of his former partner seems to have been too much for the neighbors. The health officer thought so too, and the nuisance was abated. The whole picture, with its terrible mingling of the ghastly, and ludicrous, requires no comment.

A Preacher Murders a Ranch Proprietor--The Body Served to Travelers.

From reliable sources we learn the following particulars of a tragedy which has recenty taken place beyond the range, and which would be worthy the times of the Borgias: Some time in May last a man representing himself to be a minister of the gospel, (we could not learn his name,) stopped at an Ir-ishman's ranch, situated at Tobacco Plains, on the road from Pend d'Orielle Lake to the Kootenai mines. Here the reverend gentleman remained a long time. Soon after he made his appearance, the Irishman was missed from the locality, but as his place was in a remorte portion of the country, and as mountaineers are proverbially of a rambling disposition, but little notice was taken of his disappearance. In the meantime the quondam minister stepped into the shoes of his former host; became a veritable ranchero. and essayed to keep a public house, taking pains to inform all inquiring friends of the previous proprietor that he had bought out the Irishman, and that the latter had gone into the lower country.

This seemed a plausible story and was readily believed, until one day some friends of the missing man, who had been calling at the house and were afterwards searching for their horses, found human bones and a complete hand, upon which they distinguished freekle marks. After this horrible discovery they demanded an explanation from their late host, and were informed that the remains in question belonged to an Indian that had been recently killed, and that he would burn them. No sooner was the conversation ended than the supposed ex-preacher commenced carrying his intentions to destroy the remains into effect, but the friends of the missing Irishman mistrusting that all was not right, deterred him and commenced closely questioning him. When finally driven to the wall, he made such confessions as proved him to be the most guilty wretch that ever disgrated God's footstool by his presence. He had never bought the ranch, but had forged the bill of sale from his former landlord, and afterwards murdered him. Not satisfied with this, our informant tells us, he hacked to pieces and cooked the corpse of the unfortunate man, and served it up in variously prepared dishes to the travelers stopping at his place. We rejoice that the villainous hypocrite has been hung .- Helena (Montana) Re-

They are born of poor but industrious parents, and are brought up with great care under the auspices of some of best families. They also have consumate courage. I have known a single musketeer to fite a man and his wife awl nite long, and draw the first blood. It is very easy to kill musketoze, when you can. vice-presidents, Judge Pease, of Texas, took to preserve the Union of the States and the Constitution made by our fathers. Now, how-CHERRY EXPECTORANT, ever, since the war closed. Congress suddenly the Convention, declaring that "he asked no discovers that the Southern States are not in the Union. That they are conquered provinces himself;" and then retired from the platform over which Congress has the most unlimited to the floor. Ineffectual attempts were made power, and must not be admitted until they to procure a division of the question, which have been degraded. Against this doctrine President Johnson has set his face. He desires all the States to be equal, and is only carrying out the ideas for which the war was fought. He did not think there should be suffrage] platform was adopted by a vote of any hesitation about Southern men upholding ayes sixty six, noes eight. The result was nim so far as it laid in their power to do so against those who were trying to destroy the delegates standing upon the benches. them. The Judge then spoke of the fraternal swinging their hats and shouting themselves feeling which existed at the Philadelphia Convention. No man who was there could think | hoarse.

valuable recipes, take pleasure in presenting to the Northern people insincere in their effort the world articles which now stand second to none | to reinstate the South in her former political rights He said that the Philadelphia Convention had not formed a new constitution or union. It only said that the Federal government had now all the powers it ever had, was limited by the same restrictions, in fact was the same under which the govern- England, the London Standard of August ment had been practically carried on since its formation The Judge then drew a vivid picture of the State of the country under radical rule, and contrasted it with the President's policy. It was an easy matter for CHERRY EXPECTORANT, any lever of his country to decide between them. As for the address and principles put forth by the Convention he did not endorse everything in them. If anything grates harshly on your ears the members of the Convention had no intention that it should. The spirit that actuated those men was kindness itself, and they would make Virginia as proud and free as the proudest and freest Northern State. That Convention was no common meeting. It was the lifting up of ten free commonwealths. We are engaged in a contest of life and death with the radicals. The perpetuation of liberty in the country depends on the issue of the conflict. The Philadelphia Convention is on the side of liberty and we must support it in order to save ourselves from a worse fate than death. The animus of the radical party was love of office and hatred to the South. The spirit of Johnson's policy was justice and fairness. We should understand that Convention by the spirit that animated it and not simply by the words of its resolutions.

He then spoke of those who opposed the Convention. Of course the radicals oppose it for it will ruin their schemes, if successful In the South there is a class of men with antagonistic minds. These fellows are forever picking flaws. Nothing exactly suits them. They can never see the good for looking at the minor evils. They must have everything perfect or they will not subscribe to it. Such men oppose it. Another classthe jealous people-those who never think anything right unless they do it themselves. They oppose it. There is another class who believe that the dignity of Virginia must be upheld. For these he entertained the liveliest feelings of sympathy, but asked whether dignity could not be carried too far. It may degenerate into haughtiness. This is a practical, living question and all such feelings must give way if we desire to be saved from the grasp of the despoiler. He then spoke of the importance of giving moral aid to the people of the North in their endeavors to save us. The battle of constitutional liberty was being fought, and the right would prevail. If it did not the result would be terrible for all of us. Taxation without representation would be the order of the government. The mass of the people would be disfranchised, and ground under the heel of the master, and our jails like those of Missouri would be soon filled by our ministers of the gospel for refusing to swear that which

Radical Convention on his Platform. We published some days ago Mr. Botts's platform. No one can read the following account of his movements in the Convention

adoption of the report, while still occupying the chair, he craved the attention of the Wines and Liquors, Tobacco and Convention for a few minutes, pleading as an in an hour. He complained that he had aling his authority to speak for that State.— Botts qualified his remark by drawing a distinction between old residents of Virginia and new-comers there. He asked leave to read an immensely long list of resolutions, and asked that they be made a part of the proceedings of the Convention as his own without laughing. We had never expected to see Botts sink so low: As soon as Botts (when Speed had left the chair) discovered that the negro suffrage plank would unquestionably be adopted, he too grew weak in the knees, and prepared to desert. In the midst of the debate on the excuse the necessity for his leaving the city lowed himself to be unsuspectingly placed in a false position by Speed's running away after having cast upon his (Botts's) shoulders the responsibility of presiding over the Convention at this most critical period. He announced his unwillingness to vote for the nero-sunrage platform, saying that he did not believe it would command thirty votes in Virginia. Here he was interrupted by a dozen Virginia delegates at the same moment deny-

Mr. Botts was endeavoring to play a double part in the farce, performing the duties of the chair at the same time that he claimed the privileges of a member on the floor. Cries were heard from all parts of the Convention of "Call some one to the chair or take it have ceased to have crowns; threepenny-yourself." One of our disfranchised lawyers was having a talk, the other day, with a delegate returning from the "af and af" convention at Philadelphia, in which the Fred. Douglassite expressed his opinion against the propriety of allowing social relations to be interrupted by fully established. The registration law is a political differences. Our friend agreed with him that such ought not to be ordinarily, but asked if there was not a limit to be put upon even this rule. If a former friend, said he, would stop you in the road, present a pistol at your head, demand your money, and force you to hand it over; and then say to you, I hepe you will not allow this little difference between us in our opinion upon this point of morals to interrupt our former friendly relations? Would you adopt his view and allow your highwayman friend to meet you as if nothing unpleasant had ever occurred between you? The delegate thought that the robbery should be a bar to all further social relations. Well then, said our friend, here are these West Virginia radicals who have stopped me, presented a more effectual weapon at my head, and have robbed me of my money, or my usual means of making money, have taken away food and clothing from me and my family, have thrown me and my children into almost absolute poverty, and then coolly ask me not to allow this robbery to interrupt my social relations with them! Sir, the latter case is as strong as the first-indeed the latter roberry is the worse of the two .-The highwayman, with his pistol, demands and gets what money and valuables you may have about you at the time of his act; but the radical highwayman with the constitutional amendment as his weapon, not only takes what I now have, but deprives me of the power of providing the necessaries of life for myself and those depending upon me. These constitutional amendment men are then. worse robbers than him of the road, and have no right to expect different treatment at the hands of those they rob. The returning delegate had nothing further to say. He did not inform our friend whether he had voted for the amendment or not; but we knew that he did, and are glad that he received the withering rebuke administered him. We fear, however, that this rebuke fell short of its full effect, for any white man born and reared among the gentlemen of Maryland and Virginia, who could have political association with Fred. Douglass, Anna Dickinson and John W. Forney, must have a skin too tough to wince under even such hard hits as this.

ANOTHER RICHMOND IN THE FIELD Some wags over about Shepherdstown, prostituting the stereotyped signature of "Many Voters," have announced the old Leetown fossil as a candidate for Prosecuting Attorney for Jefferson county. Shades of the departed can ye not add one more spirit to the list of aspirants? The announcement of this antiquarian is made through the Shepherdstown Register, and our paper is directed to copy. We beg to be excused. We know that we are guilty of many things that are sinful, but we hope we shall never be guilty of any part in inflicting upon our native county such gross injustice as to assist in making ex-Judge Balch its prosecuting attorney. WHERE THE MONEY GOES.

We have in Jefferson county, at this time, a very economical administration of public affairs, and by no means a lavish expenditure of the public funds. A few days ago, we were placed in possession of a tax-receipt which we append :-

Received payment, WM. B. CHAMBERS, Col., Sept. 4th, 1866. per T. H. GREEN.

Before the assessment of this tax, Mr Fleck had left this county, and removed to Martinsburg, but the tax-collector was determined to have the twenty cents, so he dispatched a deputy to collect it. This cost the township just one dollar and forty cents, which of course has to come out of the school fund. At this rate how long will it be before our school houses are re-built and our schools put in operation? Oh, glorious West Virginia, thou art indeed blessed in having such untiring tax-gathers.

POLITICS IN NEW YORK.

John T. Hoffman, Democrat, the present Mayor of New York, was nominated for Governor on Wednesday at Albany, and R. H. Pruyn, of Albany, Conservative Republican, for Lieutenant Governor. The platform adopted by the Conservative Convention endorses the Philadelphia Convention of the 14th August; deelares the Southern States in the Union and entitled to representation in Congress; affirms that the centralization of power both in Washington and New York State, is fatal to the harmony of our political system, and denounces the legislation of Con-

"NAMED A'PURPOSE" MACE, the graphic correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, says that at the recent black-and-tan Convention in Philadelphia, Governor Boreman spoke so often and so little to the point that the delegates generally concluded he must have been a'purpose."

NEW ENGLAND SPEAKETH The fall elections for the States of Vermont and Maine have taken place, and with results decidedly gratifying to the radicals. In both of these States their majorities have been increased, which we suppose may be taken as an indication of the hostile feeling of New England to a restoration of the govern-

Of all the wise laws ever enacted by a government for the protection of its people and the promotion of its prosperity, there has been none to compare with the registration act prepared by Joe Chapline, and sustained by George Koonce, in the last Legislature of West Virginia, and if those two worthies do not have a monument as imperishable as the eternal hills erected over their last earthly resting places to perpetuate the memory of their many virtues, then the fact that Republics are ungrateful, will have been trump, and one of the best devices of the age, for the punishment of offending rebels, and the elevation of incompetent men to position

The beauties of this law, its sublime effects, and its transcendent merits, have been fully experienced in this county, since May last, and we presume will continue to be experienced until radicalism receives its quietus, and honest men take the places of party tools and political gamblers who now control the destinies and direct the machinery of West friend, and I will do the same, to arrange the Virginia government.

It would be mockery to dignify the process of registration as it has progressed here for the past few weeks, with the title of a farce. It is meaner than any farce ever enacted and those engaged in it deserve, and we think will enjoy, the scorn and contempt of every honest white man, and respectable contraband in the community. Men have been refused registration in this township whose records for loyalty would put to blush the vaunting Unionism of the registrar. We have no hesitation in saying that Mr. Sanborn has gone beyond the duties prescribed for registrars in the law for the registration of voters. and has constituted himself-with the assistance of his man Friday, another Massachusetts importation-a committee to inquire into the motives, the feelings, and the desires of

The law is explicit as to the qualification of voters, and the voters own conscience is the test of that qualification, and not Mr Sanborn's judgment. He has no right to inquire of any man what his feelings are, or have been. If he has any doubt of the loyalty of any applicant, he has only to administer the following oath :-

"--- township of ---- county, to wit.: I, A. B., do solemnly swear that I have not, since the first day of June, eighteen hundred and sixty-one, voluntarily borne arms against the United States, the reorganized government of Virginia, or the state of West irginia: that I have not voluntarily given aid, comfort or assistance to persons engaged in armed hostility against the United States, the reorganized government of Virginia or the state of West Virginia; that I have not sought, accepted, exercised or attempted to exercise, any office or appointment whatever, under any authority or pretended authority hostile or inimical to the Unifed States, the re-organized government of Virginia or the state of West Virginia; that I will support the constitution of the United States and the constitution of this state; and that I take this oath freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion.

Why was this oath provided, if the registrar was empowered to satisfy himself of the oyalty of an applicant, by a system of ques tions which only an inquiring Yankee would inflict upon an innocent man? The truth of the matter is, Mr. Sanborn is in the interest of a party who can only keep its feet by a judicious system of proscription and intolerance, and he knows that as soon as these party appliances are relaxed, radicalism will find its level, and its present supporters be consigned to ignominious obscurity.

On Saturday the books of the several townships were closed, and will at once be sent over to the grand inquisition at Sheperdstown, there to be purged of the names of those who have any conservative tendencies.

A GRACEFUL BACKDOWN.

On the 6th of the present month there was grand Conservative demonstration at Cumberland, Md., at which attempts were made by some unprincipled radicals to get up a disturbance, which was forturnately prevented by the determination and spirit of the conservatives. Foiled in this, the organ of the "Thads," the Cumberland Civilian, offered in his next issue, a most wanton insult to some ladies who took an especial interest in the gathering. For this he was waited upon by some of the gentlemen, when he retracted in the following unconditional disclaimer :-

TO THE PUBLIC. CIVILIAN OFFICE, \ Cumberland, Sept. 7, 1866. In the "Civilian and Telegraph," of the 6th of September, I offered a wanton and inpardonable insult to the ladies and gentlenen attending the Johnson barbacue held at Cumberland, on the 6th of September, 1866. I admit it was an outroge against decency, and

I hereby retract it. WILL H. LOWDERMILE.

RETURN OF THE PRESIDENT. President Johnson, whose trip through the Central and Western States, has been attended with enthusiasm at some points and deci ded rudeness at others, returned to Washington on Saturday evening. At the National Capitol he was warmly welcomed, and we hope he may remain there unmolested during the balance of his Presidential term.

From the following letter of the Hon. B. H. SMITH, the conservative candidate for Governor of West Virginia, it will be seen that the inimitable Boreman declines taking the "Stump." We present brief sketches of the remarks of the two West Virginia worthies, in the negro suffrage convention which met in Philadelphia on the 4th. The convention did alopt the negro suffrage "dogma," and that is the platform upon which Gov. Boreman has to stand. It is good enough for him and

Senator Willey, of West Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I simply rise to make an inquiry pertaining to the transaction of the remaining business of the convention. I desire to know weather it is expected that the delegates to this body from the reconstructed States represented here are to take part, either by voting or by discussion, in the report which we have been apprised this evenng will be made to morrow morning. TCries of "No, no."] Well, then, sir, I suppo the business of the convention having been finished, so far as the border States are concerned, those gentleman from the other States will not take offence if the members from those States, called by urgent business, should tleman from Texas (Gen. Hamilton) the sentiments which he has expressed. Sir, Texas has no more firmer friends than the men that dwell upon our Virginia hills. Hundreds, if not thousands, have labored in that old State in defence of that gentleman's fireside and in defence of his rights; and I think it came with a very ill grace, and it grated harshly on my ears, to hear men whom we have loved so well charging us here with enmity to their interests. No, sir, we have no such feeling, and I trust we never shall have such a feeling. We are and have been for Texas and for the South. I was obliged to my friend from Tennessee for the kind manner in which he spoke of West Virginia. Thank God, she has made a record for herself; she is beyond reproach; we have reconstructed ourselves upon a basis as firm as the Allegheny mountains, which we inhabit. (Applause.)

Allow me to say, Mr. President, that negto suffrage is no bugbear to me. In my place in the Senate of the United States. and, as I am well assured, in the face of the public sentiment of my native State, I took ground in favor of negro suffrage. [Applause. It is not from me, then, that its friends may expect any hostility or disposition to retard or embarrass them in their glorious work, or even in securing impartial suffrage in the Southern States. In that I am with them heart and hand. We do not allow rebels to vote in our section, sir; there at least, they are on a level with negroes, for neither can vote.

Governor A. I. Boreman, of West Virginia, said that the original design of this convention looked to laying before the pe the country a statement of facts upon which it was expected that the Congress of the United States would be sustained as distinct from the present Executive. He continued : Sir, I teel that the success or defeat of our cause depends upon the action of this convention-that the maintenance of the Union tself depends upon it. I feel that if this convention, including the Border States of the South who are here, shall adopt this 'dogma" of negro suffrage, as it is called, we are again irretrievably gone, and gone for ever. [Cries of "No, no."] Mr. President, I say from the honesty of my heart, that I know the temper of the people of my State, and I speak here for them. If the Border States had not been invited here to partici nate in this convention, these gentlemen from the extreme Southern States might properly take any action that would seem best to them; but here we are, sir. We are now held responsible for the action of this convention, whatever it may be, and we go back home with sad hearts, fearing that the consequence is that the flag of the Union is struck in our [Cries of "Never."

The Chair reminded the speaker of the state of the question, and requested him to limit his remarks. Governor Boraman promised to comply, and added: I believe that these gentlemen from the non-reconstructed States are earnestly seeking to do right, and promote the best interests of their section of country; but I appeal to them to take the testimony of the rentlemen who are here representing the Border States as to the true condition of affairs in that section. I profess to know ry merits-which combine clearness of dethe temper of my people better than those gentlemen. A prejudice exists that the gentlemen cannot realize. True, it may be said such a prejudice ought not to exist, but of the events described in his history. That the fact of its existence cannot be blotted out, and we have to meet facts as they are. The Chair again directed the gentleman to confine his remarks to the question, Horace Greeley, has come out with a statement of the facts connected with two or three visits he made to the White House, last winter, in behalf of a treaty of peace between the President and Congress, and how all his propositions fell through. Stonewall Jackson.

Referring to Stonewall Jackson, Governor Letcher, in his address at the Virginia Milindsome tribute to his memory:

One name is now missing from the Profesonal roll of this institution. The day when Stonewall Jackson's native State most needed his services-when all her people were looking to him for deliverance, from the troubles in which they were then involved-when the hopes of the Confederacy were centered in him-when the prayers of a people, morning and evening, ascended to Heaven, imploring God's blessing, protection and preservation of him-when the love and affection of a whole people were entwined about him,-at that moment be is removed from amongst us. He sleeps in youder Cemetery. His resting place is hallowed ground, and will be visited by countless thousands, who have been impressed with the genius of the man, as exhibited in the recent civil war-with his dauntless courage-his pure and spotless character, his christian virtues-his rigid simplicity-his disinterestedness and his self-sacrificing spirit Now, while I am up, I desire to express and disposition. The dauntless heart was my unqualified regret to hear from the gen- stricken down in the hour of victory, at Chancellorsville:

"In pride, in all the pride of woe, We tell of him the brave laid low, Who for his birth-place bled."

He is gone. This institution shall know him no more; as one of its honored Professors. His voice shall not be heard again, in the way of admonition, and in imparting instruction. It is stilled, and stilled forever in death.

He has filled the measure of greatness-he has won imperishable renown, and his name and fame will live forever. He loved Virginia with his whole heart, and died for her, n what he believed to be the cause of truth and right. His example is left to us, for imitation-and no brighter or better example can be held up before the young and rising generation. He was a man of labor, and in the changed condition of affairs, all our people now must practice industry. He was economical; and in the depressed condition of our affairs, financial, commercial, agricultural and mechanical, it behooves us to practice a ricid economy. He was systematic in business. prompt resolute and active-essential elements of success. He was patient, untiring, energetic, never postponed the work of to-day, for a more convenient season. He was gentle. kind, charitable, and studiously politealways performed his duty faithfully, and courtously. In all these respects, he had no superior, and his character and life, therefore is worthy of emulation. "Take him all in all, we nee'r shall look upon his like again." On Thursday, September 13th 1866, at the residence of Juhn A. Morris, Esq., Westehester county N. Y., by the Rev B M Palmer, D. D., Mr. THOS. L. CARTER, formerly of this place, to Miss ANNA HENNEN JENNINGS, of New Orleans At the Western Hotel, Shepherdstown, on the 13th instant, by Rev J M Green, Mr JOHN BURNS to Miss MARY STUMP, both of this county. A. J. Hamilton of Texas.

This head and front of the so called Southern loyalists lived in Alabama many years ago tary Institute, pays the following feeling and | and performed many acts of a thievish nature in Coosa and Tulladega counties. He swindled merchants and stole free negroes! If any one doubts this, it will only be necessary to prove the statement by referring to any gentleman of standing in those counties.

> He attempted to sell at New Orleans several free negroes who had been bound to him, but was foiled in his villainous purpose He then went to Texas and obtained money by mortgaging the free negro children and their mother, Aaron Burlesson, a neighbor of Hamilton, in Texas, and brother of Gen. Ed. Burleson, of Texas revolutionary fame. was in 1858 applied to by a negro woman who had been held by Hamilton as a slave for protection. She looked weak and prostrated; stated that she had ran away from Hamilton's house to avoid being beaten to death by him: that she believed she was free, but had been held by Hamilton as a slave, and claimed his protection. On examination it was found necessary to dress the wounds upon her person. inflicted by the lash, and so severe were they that her clothing had to be sponged from her person, and the worms were already at work on the neglected sores! These details are revolting, but the cause of justice requires them to be stated. Soon after this, Mr. Burlesson (whose social position is equal to that of any man in Texas,) investigated the statement of the negro in regard to her freedom, and found they were true. Hamilton finding that his appropriation of this woman years before, would be exposed, made no effort to obtain possession of her again. Hamilton, after obtaining possession of the negro children, emigrated from Alabama to LaGrange, Texas, about the year A. D. 1848, where he continued to reside until 1850, when a Mr, Conkwright was murdered by a hired assassin at night, under circumstances of peculiar atrocity. Dr. Conkwright, the brother of the murdered man soon afterwards published a pamphlet, in which he boldly charged Hamilton with first having criminal intercourse with the wife of the murdered brother and afterwards being privy to his assassination. That pamphlet was extensively circulated in Texas, its charges believed by many citizens of LaGrange, and was never responded to by Hamilton nor its author required to make atonement for its publication. The indignation existing against Hamilton at LaGrange about this time was such that he soon after removed to the town

This is the head centre of Southern Radicalism, a man whom a gentleman in Alabama would not associate with twenty years ago, and who has been branded and driven about from place to place in Texas, as a felon, an assassin, and a coward. - Montgomery (Ala.)

A nice hear was practised upon the Molungeon Convention, during its ression in Philadelphia. Gen. Grant and Admiral Farragut left the President's party, for the purpose of taking another route to Detroit, where they met the President and party. It was forthwith telegraphed to the Convention that General Grant and Admiral Farragut had left the President in disgust and would not accompany him further. It was read in the Convention, amidst the wildest expressions of delight, and published to the country in flaming capitals through the Radical press. That hoax was absolutely cruel. Grant and Farragut are not only with the President in person, but in sentiment and purpose. They mean that this Union shall be restored, and the secoded States represented in Congress.

-Rev. E. W. Pierce, sent as a missionary o Rockingham county by the Baltimore Conference, having been denied the use of the Methodist church or the Court-House in Harrisonburg, attempted to preach in the streets of that town on last Sunday, to a few colored people, when the young men of the place collected, and he would soon have been subjected to rough handling had he not been taken in charge by the Mayor. The Mayor required him to give bond in the sum of $100 to be of good behavior for twelve

The Strife of Three Cities.

[From the New York Daily News, August 29th.] [From the New York Daily News, August 29th.]

A long mooted question in musical circles has recently been permanently settled to the great satisfaction of lovers of justice generally, and especially to the delight of Southerners, who have watched the long struggle with intense interest. Boston, New York and Baltimore have been the contending parties in this prolonged dispute, which was boldly inaugurated by Messrs. Wm. Knabe & Co., of Baitimore, to determine whether the "hub," the metropolis or the Monumental City could turn out the best American piano. The great commercial town of Maryland can claim to lead And this decision has not resulted from any one stated trial, but from a series of thorough comparative tests in New York, Chicago and other important business centres in country. In every instance parties opposed to the 'Knabe piano' have been fairly beaten before an honest con mittee, or have refused utterly to meet the issue and backed down in the face of imminent defeat. This must settle the issue as fully as if a national convention had settled it, and in the future the South can boast of manufacturing the best piano of the country. Knabe & Co have been making these superb instruments for thirty years, and their fame is nothing new; but other piano concerns have sprung into existence meanwhile, claiming to beat the oid house at its own trade, and a contest with them was inevitable. Hence the various trials as above.

People will have their prejudices in favor of one or another maker, and must be humored in them; but an article so long tried as this—one that has so often proved superior and freely accorded this palm by the best judges of Europe and America, has certainly more than ordinary claims upon a purchaser's attention. Substantial, durable, handsome to look at, delightful to listen to, keeping in tane longer than any other known, having a delicate touch and giving such quality and purity of tone as only a "Knabe" can, we cannot but commend the universal verdict in their favor. The great Southern house is again being extended to meet the wants of its immense and constantly increasing business, and this triumphant success, overlapping a quarter of a century, is, after all, the true and indisputable test of worth. test of worth.
A visit to their elegant warcrooms, No 650 Broad way, in this city, will demonstrate the superiority of these celebrated instruments still more fully than any description which could be given of them. NEW ADVERTISEMENTS

Five sweet, false years I lived for her; -A mocking dresm-a syren song, And day by day I wondered how That life could last so long.

And all things liv'd and lov'd in her; Doves mated, and the moss rose blush'd, Even the tranquil grass was stirr'd, As with a passion hush'd.

She liv'd and all the hours were hers, Her name was rang on ev'ry chine She came-'twas noon she pass'd, 'twas She's gone-there's no more time!

Old times! old times! ah then my heart Was a live brand, and all aglow; Now, a cold senseless cinder on This ashen waste below.

She's dead, and I have buried her Deep under my life's fretful wave, Without the solace of a tear— The kindness of a grave!

All About Tin.

Tin is a short word, but full of meaning. If a poor fellow's pockets are empty, he is said to be "out of tin." If Mr. and Mrs Smith celebrate their tenth wedding anniversary, it is called "a tin wedding." Then what a gathering of friends! each with a present of tin-ware. But it is all a mistake -The ware called "tin" is only a wash of tin over sheet iron. As well might we speak of plated ware as bright silver. - While our extensive country produces nearly all metals from gold to lead, including spelter—which has only been found within the last ten years -there has never yet been discovered a tin mine. Should one be found, "may we be there to see," and take a few shares in it .-While the lead barons of the West have become very wealthy, with prices from three to eight cents per pound, what must be the profits of a mine of tin, when the metal brings from thirty to forty cents? Tin is used for various purposes, other than for "Britannia." The fine black cloths we get from France are colored by a solution of tin. The most beautiful colors in carpets are made by a chemical process which requires pure tin in the composition. The best and most reliable tin is imported from Dutch India island of Banca .g It is taken from Banca to Rotterdam, and there sold by auction at semi-annual sales; and from there sent to all parts of of the civilized world. A small quantity is Malacca or Straits tin, so named because it reaches us through the Straits of Malacca. A small quantity comes from China, but the Celestials have so many ways of cheating that their tin is very unpopular. Our English neighbors send us great quantities of their Cornwall tin, and they consider it superior to all other; but while it is pure, it is not so soft as Banca, and Brother Jonathan prefers the latter, for which he is willing to pay a high price. From South America we have small supplies, but it is an inferior quality and very drossy.

nea_A gentleman in a fair and regular standing in one of our fashionable city churches entered one of our leading music shops some time since and stated his wishes in this wise: "Have you Solomon's song? I want to get a copy. "No-no," said the salesman, not being able to recollect at the moment any lithographed sheet with that title. "No, I am afraid not."

"Ah," said the amateur, "perhaps it isn't out yet. Our rector spoke of it last Sunday as a production of great genius and beauty, and I want my daughter to learn it."

The shopman, with what gravity he could command, regretted that they had no copies in yet, and the customer left just in season not to hear the loud laugh at the desk behind the green curtain.

- Chapman, a witty lawyer of Hartford, was busy with a case at which a lady was present, with whom he had already something to do as a witness. Her husband was also present-a diminutive, meek, forbearing sort of a man-who, in the language of Mr. Chapman, "looked like a rooster flushed out of a swill barrell," while the lady was a large portly woman, evidently the better horse .-As on the former occasion, she baulked him on the cross examination. The lawyer was pressing a question urgently, when she said with vindictive fire flashing from her eyes, "Mr. Chapman, you needn't think to catch me you tried that once before." "Madam," said the lawyer, putting on his most quizzical expression, "I havn't the slightest desire to eatch you, and your husband looks as if he was sorry he ever did."

-An old gentleman living in the interior of Mississippi some years ago sent his son to New Orleans to accept a mercantile situation offered him. He was a youth of high moral character, and his father took great pains to acquaint him with the fact that vice, in its most attractive garb, would surround him constantly. "But," said he, "remember, my son, that your religion will carry you through wrong, and you will not fail to reach Heaven at last; and the man who goes to Heaven by way of New Orleans deserves the highest | Mail Train, reward of the righteous."-N. O. Picayune.

She was seated at the piano and singing, 'Do they miss me at home.' I thought they did, about meal .ime."

THE PLEDGE. BY THE BARD OF MARBLE HALL:

In Baltimore, famed for ladies fair, Lived a beautiful girl with flaxen hair, And bonny blue eyes with liquid light, And roscate lips, a glorious sight. The youngsters fell in love by dozens.

Frierds and acquaintances, strangers and cous-But she a crotchet had got in her head, And said she determined never to wed

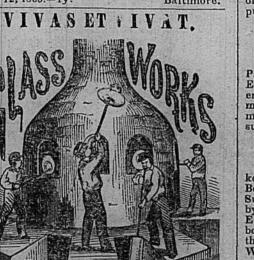

Until she loved a handsome youth Who would grant all her requests in truth, And bind him fully never to break The pledge he had taken for her sake. The young men stood aghast with fear; Some whacked their boots, some pulled their hair; Some said 'twas religion, some said 'twas money; But it took them aback and they felt quite funny.

Says he, "I love her as well as I can, Now!'ll make her the promise, both open and free, And agree to stand by it whatever it be."

The fair one stepped up to his side, And said, "Should I now be your bride, You must promise here before us all, To buy your clothes at MARBLE HALL.

No other can suit a husband of mine, The coats are so handsome, the pants divine." Says Johnny, a laughing, "You dear tittle elf. If you like them so well, get a pair for yourself."

Boston, Mass., 23d August, 1862.

Having made a careful chemical analysis of the Pancatharticonized Old Rye Whiskey of Mr. John E. Wilson, Baltimore, am pleased to state that it is entirely free from Fosil Oil, Metalic Salts, or other matters in any way detrimental to health. In aroma, richness and delicacy of flavor, it cannot be surpassed.

Respectfully yours,

G. A. LEIBIG, Analytical Chemist.

Baltimore, July 26, 1862.

Careful chemical analysis of four kinds of Whiskey—Superior Old Rye Whiskey, Superior Old Bourbon Whiskey, Superior Old Wheat Whiskey, Superior Old Corn Whiskey—Pancatharticonized by means of the patent apparatus invented by John E. Wilson, of Baltimore, Md., have shown them to be entirely free from the heavy Fusil Oils and from the apparatus often found in the pasonous metalic compounds often found in Whiskeys.
They retain the Ethereal Products, entirely free from any TAINT produced by injured grain, or careless fermentation, and being unmodified by the use of sugar, are remarkably pure products of delicate chemical operations.

Respectfully,

A. A. HAYES, M. D.,

A Wonderful Remedy: Stonebraker's NERVE AND BONE

FOR MAN OR BEAST.

WARRANTED TO CURE matism, Sprains, Swelled Joints, Sore Throcosted Feet, Poison, Sores and Bruises, Fresh Cuts, Corns, Mumps, Tetter, Pains in the Limbs and Baek, Sweeny, on man of Beast, Saddle or Collar Galls, Distemper, Scratches, Pole Evil, Fistula, &c. on Horses and Mules, and all Diseases requiring an External Remedy.

All who know and have used this valuable Liniment testify to its great virtues in removing Pains, Swellings, &c. The great success attending the use of this valuable preparation, and the extensive sale of it for the few years of its introduction to the public favor, is a sure indication of its true merits and great popularity. It is becoming extensively used in every part of the country, East, West, North and South, and wherever it is sold it takes the place of all other preparations of a similar kind. This is another strong evidence of its great power in removing all diseases incident to both Man and Beast. No Liniment has yet been made to equal it, it only needs a trial to prove its great value.

Be sure to ask for STONEBRAKER'S Preparations.

STONEBRAKER'S

COUGH SYRUP.

For the Rapid Cure of Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Spitting of Blood, First Stages of Consumption, Soreness of the Throat, and all Affections of the Pulmonary Organs.

This Syrup is an invaluable remedy for the alleviation and cure of Pulmonary Diseases. It is prompt in its action, pleasant to the taste, and from its extreme mildness, is peculiarly applicable to the use of children and persons in delicate health. As an anodyne expectorant, it will always be found to be beneficial, by alleviating and arresting the severest spells of coughing so distressing to the patient. The afflicted can rely upon its doing as much, or more than any other remedy in soothing the nerves, facilitating expectoration, and healing the Diseased Lungs, thus striking at the root of all diseases and eradicating it from the system.

All we ask is a trial of this preparation, as it has no equal in its effects, and never falls to give entire satisfaction to all who use it. We warrant it in all cases or the money refunded.

Try it—only 25 and 50 Cents a Bottle.

STONEBRAKER'S HAIR

NONE BUT THE AGED NEED NOW BE BALD. Will free the head of Dandruff, Scurf, &c.
Will prevent the Hair from falling off.
Will cure all Itching, Humors of the Scalp.
Will make the Hair soft, oily and glossy.
Will restore premature Grey Hair to its natural beauty and color.
This beilliant accounts the second of the secon beauty and color.

This brilliant preparation has gained for itself an unbounded reputation wherever it has been sold, for cleansing the head of Dandruff, Scurf, and all cutaneous affections, always preventing the hair from falling off, and at the same time making the hair soft, oily and glossy in appearance. It only needs a trial to prove satisfactory to all who use it.
