I COME TO THEE. Savior, I come to thee
In all my weakness, and in all my sin;
Like Noah's dove I flee To thee, the sinner's ark, O, take me in !

I come to thee for peace!
The curse of sin lies heavy on my soul;
But thou can's cause to cease
The thunders of the law that round me roll!

I come to thee for light!
For all the flickering tapers of the earth
Can not illume the night That hangs about the spirit from its birth. CHERRY EXPECTORANT, I come to thee for rest!

For oft I laint and weary by the way;
Calm thou the troubled breast,

And give me glimpses of the coming day.

CHERRY EXPECTORANT. I come to thee for strength!

I feel I'm weak—I cannot go alone;

And so I seek at length

The aid proceeding downward from thy throne. CHERRY EXPECTORANT. STABLER'S DIARRHEA CORDIAL, I come to thee for all!

"Please help me in, I'm blind!" It was the tiniest, sweetest voice; we all turned to see a little girl lay her hand confidingly on the conductor's arm. I took her from him as and drooping white eye-lids; but the sadness of her palor was relieved by the vivid dark gold of her hair, which fell in soft, thick rolls upon her neck. "Isn't there a dog here?" said she, pre-

"Yes, darling," said the dog's owner, as she handed it to the child, looking uncomfortable no longer; the blind face turned to hers seemed to charm away its nervousness. "What a dear little fellow," said Clytie, and the rough terrier grew popular. "Do they let you go far, alone ?" said the cross woman.

"Oh, yes." The little creature gave a low, glad laugh of triumph, "I've been to the blind school; I can do everything for my-"Would you mind saying that again, my dear? I'm very deaf," said the old gentle-

"Oh, no, I never am, now that Emy is "Who is Emy?" "Oh, my little sister; oh, such a darling; but she was ill for a long time-so long !" Clytie's voice faltered, as though she were living over again a great sorrow.

"But she is well now," I said. "Oh, yes, quite strong, and it's so nice !" "Have you many sisters and brothers?" asked the young lady.

"No, only Emy and one brother, baby Tom; he's such a great fat fellow, and he laughs you can't think how he does laugh,' If it was anything like the musical thrill his sister sent rippling through the air I should like to have heard the baby. "What does he laugh at?" asked the cross

"Oh, everything; at Emy and me, when we play Punch and Judy; and at dinner, when there's dumplings; and sometimes he lies on the floor, and laughs at himself; and we laugh, too, it's so funny."

The little one's mirth was so infectious, we all joined in with various modulations of the roar of the deaf old gentleman, who could not stop himself, and setting off again, little Clytic clapping her soft gloved hands till she made the dog bark, and the conductor looked

"Well, if I ever saw such a row." "Euston-road, please," said Clytie, turning into a business woman all at once. The unwelcome place seemed to come directly; as I turned from helping the child out, I saw the cross woman's face breaking up into tears. "It's queer," she said, "but I feel like to cry to see her so merry." I was unpleasantly conscious of what my dear mother used to call the apple in my throat; so I was grateful to the deaf gentleman for saying "Eh!" and saving the effort

We all fell into quietness, but it was curious to notice how forbearing we were to one another; the child's great loss, worn like a flower crown on the head of some pictured saint, made our petty discomforts all melt

The young lady began to play with the baby, the old gentleman with the dog, and I, who object to all gratuities on the principle of never having any money to spare, was absolutely pleased when the mighty woman handed back her change to her vanquished foe, saying:

"Never mind the penny, conductor." Even the cross woman grew quite interesting over a reminiscence of a youth she had known when she was a girl, who had recovered his sight after being blind for a year.

I think, instead of being a plucked civil service candidate, I could be a woman with a mission, I could choose that of my unconscious little Clytie.

The sight was a grateful one to all truly Christian hearts, and many seemed to see in this peaceful gathering of different sects the harbinger of that great millenium day which we are taught to expect will in due time come to bless this long distracted earth. Is it not proper for every one to cultivate this eularged spirit of Christiansity, and to labor for the coming of that day when all sectarian creeds and names shall be

It may be stated that good lawyers here give it as their opinion that the late-decision renders the Secretary of War, the Judge Advocate, and all the members of the Court which tried the assassins, liable to prosecution; while Secretary Stanton holds that it overthrows the Freedmen's Bureau, and renders the army utterly powerless in the South."-What a dreadful contemplation! To Subscribers and Advertisers.

The Lynchburg Virginian says, and we adopt its language :- "We do not know that newspaper duns ever avail much. The sums accruing for subscriptions and advertising are generally so small that each person from whom they are due thinks his is an inconsiderable item, the non-payment of which will not embarrass the publishers. All such forget that newspaper accounts are all of this character, and being so multifarious, the collection of them is necessarily slow and difficult, and considerable ultimate loss is always the result. We assert what we believe to be a fact, that not a single newspaper in Virginia is making money; while many of the leading daily papers have lost heavily the past year."

Now, this ought not to be, if ever pay was laboriously earned, for work done, and value received, it is the work of the newspaper.

The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Gazette states, "upon undoubted authority," that "Senator Fessenden has, within a day or two, emphatically declared his opposition to all schemes having in view an attempted forcible disorganization of the present State Governments in the unrepresented States. The utmost extent to which he will go, when the adoption of the Constitutional amendment shall have been shown to be impossible, will be to give his ascent to an act of Congress proposing a plan to those States by which, if adopted by them, their ment may be fully re-established. It is understood that these views are concurred in by Senators Foster, Sherman, Cragin, Fogg, and perhaps others," Bogardus also descended from King William, as did also his brother Stephen Bogardus, who used himself up in Harlem stock .-These brothers were of "even tenor and date:" in other words; were of the same age. They, however, were not twins, although brothers. "and both boys;" they were "rights and lefts," and could not readily trace their descent to King William. There appeared to mother, and was also descended from King William, as appeared from a "strawberry mark on her arm." She was much older than Anneke Jans, and of different build .-She had a stoop in her shoulders, and a plantegrade walk, where she spent much of her time. She was near-sighted, and fond of 11 o'clock lunches of rye and eroton.

Anneke Jans was possessed of much 'stamps," and these she had invested in land lying along the west side of Broadway, (contagious to the Astor House, which was the uppest of the town hotels at that early day) and just out of reach of the omnibus drivers, who were also descended from King William of Holland. In the course of a few years, more or less, the land increased muchly in value, and the heirs of Trinity church leased a portion of it, which they now claim as their own, but which the heirs of Anneke Jans, so far as heard from, dispute the claim and "join issue," instead of joining the church; which they should do. In the year 1647 Anneke Bogardus (nee Jans) took down her waterfall and slept with her fathers, who were also descendants of King William of Holland. Anneke left property which had been constantly increasing in value until it is supposed to have reached at this time the enormous sum of twenty or fifty millions; but "commentators differ" as to whether twenty or fifty millions is so many dollars, or only intended to represent the number of heirs claiming to share the property, and who are also descended from King William of Holland. A proposition has been made to dispose of this vast aggregation of property on the "gift concert" plan. Somehing of the kind will have to be done at once, in order to forestall the Board of Aldermen, who are also descended from King William of Holland, and who are supposed to be moving to add the estate to the "contingent fund," which otherwise is liable to be overdrawn, on account of the enormous prices now demanded for municipal suppers at Delmonico's and other first-class restaurants. It is reported, also, that the railroad company, which is also descended from King William of Holland, is covertly making arrangements to lay a double track about 4 o'clock on New Year's morning through the entire property. To prevent this, some of Anneke's heirs have made propositions to Vanderbilt to run the Hudson River cars into it and issue convertible bonds to all the un-convertible heirs. What the end of all this will be it is difficult to foresee. A great many babies are now christened Anneke Jans and Evardus Bogardus-the commissioner of internal revenue (who is also descended from King William of Holland) having recently decided that this is not an infringement of the spirit of the law nor in violation of any of its amendments; and further, that a stamp is not required to make the ceremony legal.

Woman.

Mrs. Stephens, the story-writer, has some where thrown off this excellent passage: "Wo-man—woman—truly she is a miracle. Place her amid flowers, foster her as a tender plant, interrupted relations to the Federal Govern- and she is a thing of fancy, waywardness, and something of folly—annoyed by a dewdrop, fettered by the touch of a butterfly's wing, ready to faint at the rustle of a beetle. But let real calamity come, rouse and see her, as in a related instance, raising "I say, my friend, please run here and pick her white arms as a shield, and as her own up my oven, and throw it on—it just fell blood crimsons her upturned forehead, praying for life to protect the helpless. Trans-plant her into the dark places of earth, awaken her energies to action, and her breath ken her energies to action, and her breath becomes a healing and her presence a bless-ing; she disputes inch by inch the stride of the stalking pestilence, when man, the strong and brave, shrinks away pale and affrighted. Misfortunes daunt her not; she wears away a life of silent endurance, or goes forward with less timidity than to her bridal. In prosperity she is a bud full of imprisoned odors, waiting but for the winds of adversity It is unnecessary to add that our friend, the preacher, now believes, to a certain extent in total depravity.

Odors, waiting but for the winds of adversity to scatter them abroad—pure gold, valuable but untrained in the furnace—in short woman is a miracle, a mystery.

CHARLESTOWN, VA.

Tuesday Morning, January 8, 1807.

THE GENTLE THADEUS. lower house of Congress, went home during the Christmas holidays, and feasted upon the lowest of wines. After enjoying himself heartily in this way for more than a week, he has come back to the capitol with his heart overflowing in kindness and charity to all mankind, and especially towards the whites of the South, whom the war has left not only without fat things and wine, but without many of the necessaries of life-numbers of them without anything of their former homes save Butlers could not steal. The war has left no sores upon the gentle Thadeus. Even his destroyed iron works, and his lost mules, have left his temper unruffled, and his heart as melting as in days of yore. He, indeed, has increased his love for his fellow men, with his increasing years, which remind him that as he is soon to stand before his Maker and ask for mercy, it is becoming in him to mark his last acts-in-life with a charity that never faileth, and a love for his neighbor that is ever abounding. Oh! how the thanks of all living loyal Southerners are welling up to this wonderful old man, and how his praises will be sung by generations yet unborn. We hope his days may be long in the land, but if it should be otherwiso-if he should be taken away in these days of his warmly gushing, neighborly love, he may carry with him the comfortable assurance that he will be wept, honored and sung, if not by the entire people from the Petomac to the Rio Grande, at least by John Minor Betts, and the immaculate Underwood.

THE DETERMINED GEORGE. Elsewhere we have said our say about "the gentle Thadeus," and while thus talking of great men who leave their footprints on the sands of time, we are reminded of the determined George, i.e. George Koonce, the defeated candidate for "the Boreman concern out at Wheeling." George, as soon as the polls were counted, and he was marked among the "outs" by the result thereof, said that to Charlestown township, he could at once county of Page, therefore, he was determined to go to the Legislature It made no difference to him whether the Su pervisors declared somebody else elected or not; he was "bound to go to Wheeling," and if he was not fit to sit in the Assembly out there, he was fit to hit Hounshell over the head when Houn's arms were held by divers of d. G.'s brethren in the Legislature. Well Yantis beat Koonce as handsomely before the people, votingly speaking, as our young friend from Harper's Ferry beat him at Shepherdstown a few weeks previous, eye-ball-bim-ly speaking. The determined George knows full well that he was fairly beaten by Yantis. yet he has made up his own mind, and Joe Chapline's too, that his brother rads in the Boreman concern shall oust Yantis and put in Koonce. It makes no difference to the d. G. whether the polls are right or wrong, or whether he is fit to represent Jefferson or not. He is bound to get into the Legislature, and if he cannot get into it by the voters of the county, he will get into it by the voters from the other counties that make up the delightful little State, so-called, West Virginia .-

We are sorry for the voters of Jefferson; we are sorry for Yantis, and we, of course, are glad for the determined George, and although we are anxious for the Supreme Court to hurry up our county status now before it, we hope it will wait till d. G. draws his whole per diem out of Boreman's stolen pocket-book. HYPOCRICY. New England hypocricy is well illustrated in the howl she is making over the sale of some free negroes in Maryland, for the commission of various offences of which they were found guilty, and as a punishment were sold for the term of six months to the highest bidder-the negroes themselves preferring it to incarceration in the penitentiary. For this the authorities of Maryland have been subjected to the vilest abuse from the abolition press, and the usual pious howl has been set up, It happens, however, that about the for the crime of theft, a sale of a different character was made in a Connecticut town, not of persons convicted of crime, but of two old and infirm white persons, man and wife, whom the pieus philanthropists, under the laws of that State are permitted to dispose of to the lowest bidder, to prevent them from becoming parish charges, the exceeding humanity of which proceeding being heightened by the fact that a difference of one cent in the bids was sufficient to separate man and wife. Of course the quantity and quality of food furnished these poor unfortunates is in proportion to the amount of work which can be forced out of them by their masters. Com-

There is nothing in which the radicals would be more disappointed than in the vote of the negro if he was enfranchised .-We are confident that wine-tenths, or at least all the respectable portion of them would vote the straight Democratic ticket, or whatever by their old masters voted. The "mean" whites who alone compose the radical party at the South are more thoroughly detested by the negro than any one else. How many negro votes could the radicals hereabouts control? We conscientiously believe not one?

Matricides, parrioides, fratricides, infanticides and the whole catalogue of other and lesser crimes are daily perpetrated all over the pious North, and it seems that the frame-work of civilized society there is in process of a violent upheaval. This is but the beginning of that punishment which will surely follow their unbidden interference in the social and political condition of the South. The federal soldiery were taught to disregard

A QUESTION OF JURISDICTION: Sanborn vs. Ridenour .- Some six weeks ago or during the rapidly retiring months of the year 1866, we announced the gratifying intelligence that Mr. John J. When we announced the departure of the subject of this brief memoir, we were glad, and so were our readers, that the dispensations of fortune had provided him a situation away from our midst, and whilst we congratulated ourselves, we felt like offering condolence, to those amongst whom he was about to locate. We didn't do this, however, the debris that fires could not burn, and the but awaited with patience the development of events-to see what a day might bring

> At Martinsburg, the subject of our sketch was not satisfied. His affections clustered around our own beautiful town, and without notice to the community, he returned to us. He veni'd, he vidi'd, but he didn't vici.

But if this social phase of the case were all, we might be able to maintain the even tenor of our way, and in the onward progress of events, forget the presence of his "phiz,"-Not so, however. The social infliction brings in its train the adjudication of other and more important questions. Mr. S. is a living illustration of the old axiom that "effice holders never die, and none resign." Although accepting the highly responsible position of chief director and principal in teaching the ideas of the Berkeley youth to shoot,-of course, radically-he all at once becomes tired of his post, returns to our "busums," and forthwith begins to dispense the office and functions of a justice, in our township. The fact that the Board of Supervisors had considered his office vacated by his acceptance of county, and had filled the vacancy by the appointment of Mr. Ridenour made no differfice" is a hobby of Professor-Sanborn's, and it mattered not if he had packed his "traps" and returned to his "hum" in Massachusetts and remained there for a decade of years, still if the notion took him to pilgrim back interval had elapsed. Now, we confidently appeal to our old friend Justice Myers, who always stays at home, and who never for one moment, to our certain knowledge, has either by act or implication vacated his "posish," we say, we confidently appeal to him to know, whether or not, under either the Constitution of the State of West Virginia, or the laws made in pursuance thereof, any man, notwithstanding he does come from Massachusetts, can set up opposition in the business of a justice, without leave or license and thus deprive him of those fees of office, which in these hard times are a matter of such moment and which really is all that keeps body and bones together .-We can assure Justice Myers that he has our entire sympathies in this, as we conceive, flagrant usurpation of official duties on the part of Prof. Sanborn, because we believe that he and not Mr. Ridenour will be affected by it; and we hope that measures may be at once taken before the proper civil, or, if need be, military tribunal to abate the usurped functions and teach Massachusetts impudence that it can't override West Virginia laws, if it

This decision creates intense excitement, and it is now claimed by the President that the Constitutional Amendment, abolishing slavery, will yet be declared a nullity.

Several congressmen elect from the unrepresented States of the South, who have been feeling the pulse of the Northern radicals at Washington have returned home, confident in the belief that if the South would accept the Constitutional Amendments as a finality, it would be at once admitted to representation. We opine that with these gentlemen the "wish is father to the thought," and having smelt of the "flesh pots" whilst in Washington are anxious to be in the enjoyment of them, the disgrace and infamy of adopting these amendments being a small consideration when it stands in the way of their admission to congressional honors and the pocketing of $5,000 in greenbacks.

EARLY'S TROOPS. "I have repeatedly seen those soldiers submit, with cheerfulness, to privations and hardships which would appear to be almost incredible; and the wild cheers of our brave men, (which were so different from the studed hursahs of the Yankees,) when their lines sent back opposing hosts of Federal troops, staggering, reeling, and flying, have often thrilled every fibre in my heart. I have seen, with my own eyes, ragged, barefooted and hungry Confederate soldiers perform deeds, which, it performed in days of yore by mailed warriors in glittering armor, would have inspired the harp of the minstrel and the pen of the poet." After so bold a stroke of his author, no. wonder that the critic, old Doctor Brown, (the Richmond editor), boldly recommends to the Memorial Association, the purchasing of a large edition of said work.

On Monday the 24th day of December, the people of Page county held a meeting in Luray, for the purpose of giving expression an office of trust and profit in a neighboring to their views relative to the propriety and practicability of a railroad to pass through that county. The Committee appointed for ence to him. "Once in office always in of- the purpose reported the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted :--

> > The Virginia Oyster Law.

The Virginia oyster law is stigmatized by the Norfolk Virginian as "a burning disgrace, and "onerous and unjust" to the large portion of our community engaged in taking and carrying oysters. Its operation has driven from our shores to Maryland and immense trade, while the more liberal policy of the latter is securing a large revenue to the State, besides forming the nucleus of a thriving branch of

When this law is repealed it will draw capital among us, and we will be gladdened with the sight of the white-winged messengers of commerce in our waters waiting cargoes of the delicious bivalves, for which Virginia is so justly famous. It is no use stand-ing any longer in our own light by persisting in such suicidal ideas as to believe that Virginia is the only place on the face of the earth whose waters abound with shell-fish. Maryland, in this respect, is our competitor, but, we have the advantage in knowing that we have the largest resources, and therefore, ought to be liberally disposed in proportion to their size. > I transmit herewith a communication from the Hen. William H. Seward, Secretary of State, received at the Executive Department on the 18th of June last, enclosing certain constitutional amendments which will require At the extra session of the General Assembly, in January, 1866, I presented my views at large in reference to the policy of reconstruction which had been adopted and acted upon by President Lincoln, and was proposed to be continued without variation in any material point by his successor in office. I was since ely impressed with the conviction that to bring about harmony and good feeling and restore our national affairs to the channels from which they had been diverted by the war, this was the best practicable mode in which it could be successfully accomplished. This plan proceeded upon the recognized principle that this Union could not be dissolved by any effort of the State governments -either by peaceable or violent secession, or in any other mode. The General Government was as powerless as the States in precipitating any such result. To have conceded this revolutionary power would have been a virtual abandonment of the whole theory upon which our compact was based. The States, if broken by the successful defection of a single member, would have established the inability of the Federal power to maintain its national supremacy, and dissolution would have resulted as an inevitable consequence. The revolt of the Southern States was treated, and properly so, as an insurrection against the power of the Union, and when subdued, left the States unchanged in all their former relations. This view was not controverted by the General Assembly at that time, nor have I since heard that any other plan of reconstruction, based upon the true theory of our Government, has been presented. The passage of the constitutional amendment as a condition precedent to the readmission of the States to the right of representation, presents to my mind objections of the gravest character, so long as the Constitution continues to be recognized as the supreme law under which we are acting. I may also express the opinion here, that whether with or without the authority of the Constitution, Congress should be sitate to make out the concurrence of the requisite vote of all the States, South as well as North. It cannot have escaped notice, that the proposed amendment, comprising five distinct propositions, embodies more than its language would seem to convey, and that the clause, to enforce these provisions, "by appropriate Border States at the mercy of the majority as I believe, of every principle of justice and equality among the States, and in times of high party excitement and sectional alienaany radical change in the organic law, with-tion, dangerous to the liberties of the people. I assume, without fear of contradiction, that the effect of this amendment of the Constitution as a condition precedent to the readmission of the revolted States, will be the ultimate enforcement of negro suffrage and negro equality, by indirect legislation, depriving the Southern and Border States of heir constitutional representation in the national councils, unless purchased by the elevation of the negro to the untrammeled right

Admitting the proposed amendment to be ever so just and liberal, ought it in common ustice to be thrust upon the people of the Southern States to be used as a lever to secure to the negree in that section what has not been attempted with the people of the North by direct legis-lation?

There are ten States now held in abeyance by the dominant party in Congress, without sufficient cause, as I believe. The war has ceased, and the war power of which we hear so much has ceased with it. The submission of the constitutional amendment to these excluded States by Congress is a virtual recognition that they are still in the Union, and have a right to entertain or reject it, as may seem most conducive to their political safety. Suppose they reject it, as they certainly will do, what then? Is the North to reopen the war upon them?—to dissolve the Union—for it will amount to that-by reducing them to territories, or what is worse, as some have threatened, to degrade them, by confiscating their lands and allowing the negroes to come and occupy them. The South makes no resistance to the ediet of exclusion-she can make none. She admits her utter prostration. Paralyzed in all ner relations, social, commercial and political, she calmly resigns herself to her fate. This is the universal feeling of the people of the South at the present moment, In his Message to the Georgia legislature, November 1. 1866. Governor Jenkins holds this language "To submit to injurious changes in the Constitution, when forced upon a State according to the forms prescribed for its amendment, would be one thing; to participate in making them by duress against her sense of right and justice would be a very different thing. The ifference in principle is as broadas that which distinguishes martyrdom from suicide. We had better calmly await a returning sense of justice and a consequent reflux of the tide now running strong against us.

Meanwhile, her great staples are neglected -immigration seeks to her channels, trade anguishes, and her contributions to the national burthens, so important to the general tax-payer, are represented by nearly nominal values There is no sweetness in revenge which can ustly a continuance of such a condition of

The conservative masses of the country, sooner or later, will protest against it. The dominant party cannot expect to deal with whole communities as with individuals .-They cannot coerce a whole people into relations of amity and friendship. They may make them friends by kindness and fair dealing, but not by justice and oppression. They may annihilate them by their power; but humanity would bardly uphold any party in a return to the barbaric ages, in a policy of ex-

of reconstruction to the last point of consummation. Step by step he has s'endily preserved in his plan of peace and reconstruction, with no single violation of the Constitution so far as I am capable of forming an opinion. In the act of completing his great work—of riveting the last link in the circle—he is met by the conflicting and indefinite plans of

I do not propose to pursue this argument. by the admission of loyal Representatives .-The power is with her, and I trust she may volved in her action.

We surrender much of our space for the States, whose Representatives are without the requisite qualifications upon het standard, send us loyal men, and we will admit them This would settle the question at once; the power is in her own hands, and so has resided from the origin of this controversy. South can really give no substantial guarantees that she has not already given. asked for the abolishment of slavery-she the debt contracted during the rebellion-this she conceded also. Now we are told that further guarantees are to be secured, while she is weak and powerless and at our mercy

But where is this contest to end, and what are the people to gain by it? We have just terminated one of the most stupendous conflicts that has ever marked the progress of a people, either in ancient or modern times. This nation wants repose, and still more does she want the co-operation of her whole people, in her return to the arts of peace. The Southern States so important in the geographical position which they oc cupy, and their productive power and re sources, are now awaiting the action of Congress. Their great staples in times past bave poured a golden tribute into the National freasury. Shall all this continue to be I st to us? Shall we madiy attempt to hold these States by standing armies - by despotic restrainfs, or by the good will and co-operation of the people themselves? That is the simple question which presents itself for our so lution. The Southern States will hang like a sickly and withering inculus upon the body politic, until their relations to the Union are restored. The issue involves no sacrifice of honor on the part of this Government. It is an issue of prosperity-of finance-of destiny. I should look upon the subjugation of these States and their reduction to territoral deren dencies as the greatest calamity that could befall this country; and we must trust to the wisdom and magnanimity of Congress to avert the confusion which is certain to flow from the adoption of so suicidal a policy. "History affords no justance where a people so powerful in numbers, in resources, and in public spirit, after a war so long in its duration, so destructive in its progress, and so ad. verse in its issue, have accepted defeat and its consequence with so much of good faith as has marked the conduct of the people lately in insurrection against the United States .-Beyond all question, this has been largely due to the wise generosity with which their enforced surrender was accepted by the President of the United States and the Generals in the immediate command of our armies, and to the liberal measures which were afterwards taken to restore order, tranquility and law to the States where all had for the time been overthrown. No steps could have been better calculated to command respect, win the confidence, revive the patriotism, and secure the permanent and affectionate allegiance of the people of the South to the Constitution legislation," may leave the Southern and and laws of the United States, than those in Congress, in all future time-subversive, fastly pursued by the President of the Uni-

The Executive, Legislative and Judicial Departments of this Government are clearly defined in the Constitution. Congress makes laws in accordance with the Constitution and the President executes them. But the Constitution never intended that the President should stand by and witness the passage of unwise laws, without the interposition of his veto power. I am yet to learn that in the | Lucien appealed to Bill to know "how he got exercise of his own, the President has ever. encroached upon the functions of the co-ordinate branches with which he is associated in his plan of reconstruction. There can be no conflict of authority if each keeps within its prescribed sphere, and we may safely assume that an attempt at usurpation will never tarnish the fame of the present Executive. The great obstacle in determining this vexed question of reconstruction is the future status of the negro race. The constitutional amendment means this and nothing else. The fear of disloyalty is not to be thought of for a moment; and the proposed change in the basis of representaion, points to negro suffrage, and the equalization of the races. There are four millions of negroes to be dealt with. If this element were insignificant or out of the way, there would be no talk of constitutional amendments. But the power of the South is to be held in check at least, if not appropriated by the extreme men of the dominant party.

My opposition to any further tampering with the Constitution proceeds upon the honest belief that Congress controls all the pow er needed to protect the country against disloyalty, whatever form it may assume, if any such exists, and that constitutional amendments, to force equality between the races, can only result in the ultimate annihilation of the weaker race. Some time ago the absorbing topic among political agitators was amalgamation; now it is "manhood suffrage," which means amalgamation, or the power to hold office without regard to race or color, and every other attribute of perfect equality befor the States of the North, where the colored race have never lived, and cannot be induced to emigrate. With the Southern and Border States it is a question of social and political existence. In Maryland the negro would anon hold the balance of power, if in a few years, from the swelling current of immigration alone, he did not command the numerical ascendency. The regulation of suffrage belongs to the States. I never can consent, by any act of mine, to interfere with

It is a recognized constitutional right over which Congress has no control. If any of the States think proper to confer upon the negro race the right of suffrage, and the right hold office, it is no business of ours-and it is possible that in some of the States the ous disturbance of existing relations. But ence of the two races in which the infusion of the negro is so great as to constitute an element of power, the struggle will terminate only in the complete triumph of one or the other-and it needs no foresight to prelict to whom the mastery will be awarded Entertaining these yiews, I disavow all desire to widen the breach which now unhappily exists between Congress and the Executive. Maryland has stood by the Union in the hour of its darkest peril. In this land of President Johnson has brought this work free thought and free discussion, we may surely be permitted, without violence or insult, to express houest convictions of patriotic duty and constitutional interpretation, if, this Government of our fathers, unchanged by the events of the past, is still recognized as the heritage of their children.

The bitter hatred and yindietive malice with which the President has been a sailed for his honest difference of opinion, by extrems Like the one he sent us on Christmas, it was men, augurs unfavorably for the success of finished up in the highest style of the con The responsibility is now with Congress, who may at any time adjust the relations between the States, and bring harmony to the country the people of this country. NEW YEAR'S DAY WITH THE FREEDMEN. -Whatever impressions of a serious nature the advent of the New Year may have made upon the white population of this section, it is very certain that little effect was made upon the minds or consciences of the irrepressible black. In one sense they fulfilled the scriptural injunction -they ate, drank, and were merry. Indeed, some of them were mellow, as well as merry. Some of them felt like fighting, and they fought, others wrangled and disputed without fighting, whilst some danced the horn-pipe on our streat platforms. The segro was free that day-he felt the unrestraining and relaxing influence of whiskey, and for the time he was happy-joyously happy. He had no care as to where he should happy. He had no care as to where he should a inauguration of a despotism. In doing which, lodge for the night, or where he should obtain his next meal of victuals. Negro like their reasons assigned for its rejection, and he thought only of the present and gave him. self up to bacchanalian revelry, In this respect how much a drunken negro is like a drunken white man. They are imitative creatures, and in nothing are their powers of imitation more wonderfully displayed than in this. Make a negro drunk, and give him the same color, and you could'nt tell him from rial scheme upon which our country may bea white man in the same condition. They come united, when peace will again smile upwhites, and they reel and stagger like the whites, they fight like the whites, and to complete the picture, they make fools of themwhich have been so firmly taken and so stead- selves like the whites. The fact is, whiskey is a leveller. It elevates the negro and degrades the white, until the two races are brought very closely together.

After a while Jim Harden, a little, cunning looking negro made his appearance upon the stage, He had heard Lucien charge Bill Goins to take care of the blanket, and he at once concluded that that charge left him a hole to crawl through. Lucien informed Jim that he held him responsible for the blanket. Jim was non-plussed. He didn't know ex.

The Charleston Couries, of Tuesday, noticing the various newspaper reports about a South Carolina commissiquer to Washing on.

"It appears that prior to the close of the session of our Legislature, which adjourned on Friday last, a large majority of the Senate consulted together as to the propriety of sending a member of that body to Washington, to confor with the President on the probability of the State being restored to its place in the Union should she adopt the constitutional amendment. After consulting, it was decided that some good might arise from the pursuance of such a course, and one of their number was selected for the mission. The gentleman selected was Col. T. Weatherby, Senator from Marihora' district, who immediately proceeded to Washington and sought an interview with the President. Upon his arival he found that the President was occupyed in a Cabinet meeting, and being disengaged, he determined to make good use of his leisure moments by obtaining interviews. with the leading radical members of both, houses of Congress, and conversing with them freely upon the subject of the coustitutional amendment, and the prospect of the admission of South Carolina to her rights upon its adoption. Col. Weatherby succeeded in making the acquaintance of several of-the leading radical Senators and Representatives, with whom he conversed freely and was assured by them that the constitutional amendment was the ultimatum of Congress to the Sou hern States; that its adoption by them would remove all obstacles to their being admitted to representation in Congress. Col. Weatherby, however, bad a bsequent interview with President Johnson, to whom he had been informally denuted. We learn that the interview with the President was of some duration, as well as free and candid, during which he expressed the hope that the Southern States would remain firm in their position as regards the contitutional amendment, and steadfastly reject it, believing it to be an advance step to the ble means be tortured to give offence to the opposing party. The President feels confident, from a recent decision given by the Suprome Court, that he will be sustained by that law abiding body, and that in a short time a returning sense of reason will point out some middle ground between the constitutional amendment and the projected territo-

MISCELLANEOUS. The City of Lynchburg.

Mozis Adums, who spent his Christmas in the town of Lynchburg, as a special reporter of the Richmond E.caminer, furnishes the following amusing description of the town

The geology of this portion of the State is very remarkable. I observed in my rambles (I haven't been outside the town since I came here) some admirable diluvian remains, the principal of which is a market house, found here by the first settlers a few centuries ago. The timbers in this edifice, its elevation above tide-water, and the incrustations on the butcher's blocks, attest its hoary antiquity. The best biblical students are agreed that it is a distinct and lineal relic.of Noah's ark, and it is within easy reach of some of the best drinking houses in town. The hill on which this very interesting and instructive ruin stands, is called, for some doctrinal or historical reason, Jake Knoll. Think I'll step out now, and see if I can't get a drink somewhere. No; I'll finish this. By Jove! it is raining, snowing and sleeting, at the same time. Here, more punch, quick! View from my window-slish, slesh, slosh, slush. How it pours! Plish, plesh, plash, plosh, plush. Bad walking, slippy, sleppy, slappy, sloppy, sluppy. What a town for a man with pump soles and a wooden leg to live in. Mid, med, mad, mod, mud, everywhere, and up to the hub, and somebody stole my umbrella, and I got no stilts, and it a raining pitchforks, petchforks, patchforks, potchforks, putchforks—why not punchforks? What a world this would be if it only rained hot whiskey punch three days in the week, and egg-nog on Sunday, wouldn't it? In that event I would live always, wouldn't I? Believe I'll sing.

Come thou fount of-scenes that aremeet me by Shaner's alone-old deg Tray fare the well-on tuckey and champagne this dirty Xmas weather-remind me of the MARYLAND FIRE INSURANCE COM'Y.

The ladies of this city are by far the most beautiful, accomplished and refined in the world; the men are bold and fiery as apple brandy, and the entire landscape is forty degrees above proof. On every side the contesting hills look up in a very becoming manner; the distant mountains are blue as a pop bottle, and in the West the towering Peaks of Otter stand up like-like men determined to do their durndest, or die in the attempt, The above is really eloquent, and I deserve a drink for it. Here goes. People of Lynchburg-the most hospitable people in the world-treat all the time, observe Xmas in the most sacred and festive manner, with fire-crackers, rockets, niggers, and whisky, in all its forms. People, named generally Latham, Christian, Langhorne and Guggenheimer. Gug keeps all the stores, and the rest inhabit the multitudinous hills and vales. A few named Seabury and Stabler; three kinds of Latham-one thin, dyspeptic and gloomy-hence called Grey; another with a blockhead and a forehead that runs back to his coat collar, hence called Woody; a third, called Bob, because an apothecary and eats Pharoah's serpents for supper; remarkable dwarf, named Baugh, from Baugh-naugh-claugh-baughville Court House. Other people, equally remarkable, blowers of tobacco horns and ringers of auction bells. Places of interest-Poe's Tan-

Curious effects of topography of city—peo-ple in the morning, when they come down town, sway-backed and bow-legged, from holding back going down hill; in the evening when they return home, hump-shouldered and box-ankled from leaning over going up hill. All drink liquor, live in mud half the year, wash their faces sometimes in the morning and take shares in the new Petroleum Company. Principal citizen, Col. R. Owen; got the biggist overcoat on earth, and knows how to treat newspaper men like a house a Curious Statistics.

Some statistical genius declares that "more money is expended in the United States for cigars, than for all the common schools in the country." A wag, who is undoubtedly a lover of the weed, seeing the statement going through the papers, gets off the following:

"It has been estimated that the cost of washing linen that might just as well be worn two days longer, amounts to enough in this country to more than defray the expenses of the American Board of Foreign Missions.

"The expenses of buttons on the backs of our coats, where they are no earthly use, is equal to the support of all our orphan asy-

"It is estimated that the value of old boots thrown aside, which might have been worn at least a day longer, is more than enough to buy a flannel night gown for every baby in the land. Also, that the cost of the extra inch on the fall shirt collars of our young men, is equal to the sum necessary to put a Bible in the hands of every Patagonian

- A Southern Editor is indignant at the declaration of Hall's Journal of Heaith that busband and wife should sleep in separate rooms, declaring that Dr. Hall can sleep how, when and where he pleases, but for himself, he intends to sleep where he can defend his wife against the rats and all otler nocturnal focs as long as he has got one to defend. -Two country attorneys overtaking a wagoner on the road, and thinking to crack a oke on him, asked why his fore horse was so fat and the rest so lean? The wagoner, knowing them to be limbs of the law, acswered: "That his fore horse was a lawyer, gud the rest were his clients." 7 - An Irishman was asked what was his religious belief. "Is't me, bedade, ye'd be hasking about ?" said he. "It's the same as the widow Brady. I owe lier twelve shil-lings, and she belaves I'll never pay her, and faith that's my belafe, too." - A clock is said to have the least selfesteem of any article of manufacture, as it is constantly running itself down and holding its hands before its face, however good its works.

This PILL is not the invention of a quack or an impostor, designed to impose upon public credulity, but was compounded by Dr. T. Rennolds, of Staunton, Virginia, a regular graduate and emment practitioner of medicine in this section, who, after years of careful study, so arranged the proportions of the ingredients as to render it applicable to the diseases for which it is recommended. He had no idea of ext-nding their use beyond the community in which he lived and practiced, but, after his death, which occurred in January, 1864, having left the formula for compounding them to his brother, Wm Rennolds, of Louisa county, Virginia, the latter, for reasons stated in pamphlet around box containing them, has undertaken to have them manufactured for the people of the whole State.

The pill has stood the test of ample experience, having been extensively used and highly valued by the people of this section for many years, as is substantiated by certificates contained in pamphlet around box, as well as other evidences of appreciation from many of our most distinguished and reliable citizens.

The price of this pill is FIFTY CENTS are box This PILL is not the invention of a quack or an The price of this pill is FIFTY CENTS per hox. Though this is apparently higher than the price charged for those ordinarily sold to the public, yet it must be remembered that the dose is less than one half of the latter, and consequently is just as cheap as any others.

To prove this, it is only necessary to call attention to the fact that boxes of pills usually contain from 24 to 30 pills, the average dose being from 3 to 6. Our boxes contain 12, the dose being only one for ordinary purposes, and hence the quantity is just as great in a smaller bulk, without reference to the certainty and efficiency of the remedy and obviating the serious objection to taking so many for one dose. conscient tously believe, and if we cannot succeed in introducing it to the people by stating the truth, we will not degrade ourselves or try to impose upon others by going beyond it.
