State; but by the first clause of the first section in the supplemental act, the registration is to be made of the male citizens of the United States, and as to the oath, the applicant is only required to swear that he is a citizen of the State.

I am of opinion that the phrase citizen of the State, as used in the oath, is intended to include only such persons as are citizens of the United States and citizens of the State; and that an alien who has not been made a citizen of the United States cannot safely take the oath. But, as the board of registration have only authority to administer the prescribed oath, they cannot require any further oatleor proof as to citizenship, and if an alien, not made a citizen of the United States, takes this oath, he takes it at his peril, and is subject to prosecution for perjury,

2. As to age. No one is entitled to registration who is not at least twenty-one years of age on the day that he applies for registra-tion. In this respect qualification as to age alone, for the jealous wife was on his track. differs from the qualification as to residence, and the fact that majority must exist at the date of registration has relation to the day of registration, and not to the day of the subsequent election." One point is still left unsettled-as to who are included in the phrase judicial and executive officers. But this is to be cleared up when the abstracts are prepared for the several States, which will exhibit all these officers and the duties which appertain to them. The following is that part of the opinion touching "disqualification," on account of having given "aid and comfort :"

"I am of opinion that some direct overt act. done with the intent to further the rebellion, is necessary to bring the party within the purview and meaning of this law. Merely disloyal sentiments or expressions are not sufficient. The person applying for registration is not required to clear himself from the taint of disloyalty. The meaning of Congress here becomes yet more evident, when we look at the last clause of the prescribed oath. He is required to swear that he "will faithfully support the constitution and obey the laws of the United States to the best of his ability, encouraging others so to do." This part of the oath is not exculpatory. but prommissory. It looks to the future, and not to the past, and the purpose is here manifest, to omit, as to the right to vote, the disqualification arising from past disloyalty, put in the test-cath, as disqualification from the right to exercise office. Mere acts of common humanity and charity cannot be considered as involving the party in participation in the rebellion. So, too, are forced contributions by the rebel authorities, or the compulsory payment of taxes in aid of the rebel cause .of the rebel cause, it would involve the person, and it must work disqualification under this law. Voluntary contributions in furtherance FLORIST, SEEDSMAN & NURSERYMAN of the rebellion, or subscriptions to the rebel loans, and even organized contributions of food, clothing or necessary supplies, except of a strictly sanitary character, are to be classed with acts which disqualify." Mr. Stanberry, after a careful examination of the acts of Congress, as well as all State laws bearing on the questions involved, arrives at the conclusion that there is no authority for capital of the State, eleven hundred colored voters have been registered, while but seventy white men have been recorded.

— Thirty-four divorces were granted by the supplementary act of Congress of March 23d last. If the applicant takes that, his name must go upon the register, and the inquiry whether he has sworn truly or falsely must be reserved for the court which may afterwards have jurisdiction to try an indictment for perjury. In superintending the subsequent elections, the duty of the board is to receive the votes of all whose names are upon the registration and rejectall others, not then having power to crase or add a single one.

A Mason's Secret Discovered by his Wife?

An anecdote is related of a Master Mason, well known to most of our readers, noted as he is for many acts of charity. He is, withal, a man of good presence and a great favorite among the ladies-so much so as to cause some degree of jealousy on the part of his worthy spouse. One evening, not long since, a bundle came to the house for him, labelled "private." Of course this was sufficient for female curiosity, and therefore she indulged in an inspection. Horror of horrors! Blankets, baby linen, &c., greeted her astonished vision, and dreams of two families floated through her brain. The husband soon came in, and after tea, when the wife had discovered in his eye the treachery of his conduct, (as she supposed,) The faithless husband little imagined that she, who supposed herself so foully wronged, was hovering after him. He halted before a small tenement, which he entered. Here she paused to hold a council of war. What tactics to follow she was in doubt; but she at once determined to storm the citadel, boldly knocked, and brushing past the little child that answered the summons, she stood in an instant before her husband, the embodiment of injured innocence. Her feelings were about to find expression, when the scene before her caused her to-pause. A pale and care-worn man shivering over the expiring embers of a scanty fire, and a poor woman on a sick bed, and a baby not old enough for christening, and two little girls snugly stowed away on some straw in a corner, met her ferocious gaze. She read the story at a glance, and returned home with her husband a better and wiser woman, satisfied that she had discovered the great secret of Masonry .- Lockport Journal.

POETICAL.

THE CRY OF THE SOUTH. A moan comes from the South—
A low, half stifled wail—
Victims of war, oppression, drouth,
Murmur, "We faint, we fall."

The maids are hollow-eyed,
The matrons weak and wan,
And energy, and hope, and pride
Have left the heart of man. Helpless as Israel's host
In Syrian wilds, unfed,
E'en in their slumber, famine-tossed
They wildly murmur, "Bread !"

Brothers, your plight we see,
Sisters, we hear your moan;
You come to us for bread, shall we For answer give a stone?

We poured at Ireland's feet
An avalanche of corn:
Shall we the nearer claim forget
Of our own race, forlorn? Our barns and cribs run o'er, The increase God has given. Share we with them - or nevermore Look in the face of Heaver.

Vile prejudice, avaunt!
Are starving men our foes?
On women; ravenous and gaunt,
Shall Faction's talons close? Alasi in this sad hour,
It shows its demon spite,
And raises high the rod of power,
The prestrate still to smite.

Our brethren's limbs it gyves,
As kindred's claim they plead,
And with a whip of serpents drives
Whom leniency might lead. It gives as conquerors give—
"Eat and be thankful, slave!"
Why should the helot wish to live?
There's freedom in the grave. Bankrupt in heart and purse, For help a people cries, And Faction, as a crowning curse, With Martial Law replies.

Life in Damascua

A traveler who has been visiting the dwelling of Assal, one of the leading citizens of Damascus, gives the following description of the building:

"When we arrived at the front of the man-Union League Club, on Thursday evening | sion we were surprised at the meenness of its and the few miserable windows stuck here and there without order or arrangement, possessing no glass, but covered with a thick lattice formed with crossbars of wood. Great, however, was the contrast between the exterior of the house and the scene that presented itself when we passed through a door opened by a slave. We saw, to our surprise and pleasure, a spacious and magnificent court, paved with Dutch tiles and marble.-In the centre of it was a large fountain, bubbling over into a cool, clear, circular reservoir of water filled with pet fish. Around this court extended a range of buildings one story high, of a pretty fantastic style of architecture, decorated with Moorish or Saracenic orna-

> "At the upper end of the court was a grotto, or alcove, floored with various colored marble, opening on the spacious area, but elevated three steps above it. A figured divan extended around the walls, and the little secluded spot presented a cool and delightful smoking retreat, from whence the large court and the murmuring fountain were most agreeably surveyed. Seating ourselves on the soft, luxuriant divan, we were served with coffee. Some black slaves, in scarlet dresses, with long white wands, then came to conduct us to see some of the apartments of the mansion and of the harem, the ladies of which were absent at a summer villa in the Garden. The buildings on the western side of the court contained a succession of detached handsome rooms; the floors were covered with a thick matting, and the ceilings were painted in a beautiful manner and with great taste. "The walls were adorned with rich carving and gilding, and all around them raised, about a foot and a half from the floor, excome upon the country with all their terrors, tended a divan covered with rich figured mixed silk and cotton stuff of Damascus manufacture. The grand saloon or reception hall on the ground floor on the northern side of the court, in which strangers and visitors are received, was far the finest apartment of the place. We first came on to a square floor - Information has been received that round, and slices of lemons and chopped almonds floating in it; then came a black slave. who held in his hand an embroidered handerchief, which he just pressed to our lips when we had ceased drinking. The presence of hands, as mentioned in the "Arabian Nights." Cups of coffee were then again handed round.

GIVING JOY TO A CHILD.—Blessed be the hand, says Douglas Jerrold, that prepares a pleasure for a child, for there is no saying when and where it may again bloom forth.— Does not almost everybody remember some kind-hearted man who showed him a kindness in the dullest days of his childhood? The writer of this recollects himself at this moment as a barefooted lad, standing at the wooden fence of a poor little garden in his native village; while with longing eyes he gazed on the flowers which were blooming there quietly in the brightness of a Sunday morning. The possessor came forth from his little cottage; butcher who wore a white shirt and a shiny her new cap. Neither the giver nor the receiver spoke a word, and with bounding steps the boy ran home. And now here, at a vast distance from that home, after so many events of so with six bridesmaids at her heels to stand up wear out the clothes he left!' many years, the feeling of gratitude which agitated the breast of that boy expresses itself on paper. The carnation has long since withered, but now it blooms afresh.

her, and in the soft moonlight, by the streamlet that murmured sweetly by, and with the tender zephyrs sighing through the foliage, fall down on his knees, seize her jeweied hand, and breathe his deep affection in the tender accents of fond attachment, and swear by you bright orb above, always to be thine? Did he, I say? You can just bet he did'nt. You can lay out your whole revenue safely on that. William knew too much about the price of pants to go flopping around the wet grass with his best clothes on; besides, he never cared anything about streamlets or any kind of cold water, except to mix with his gin.No, sir; it was exceedingly strange, but this infatuated William met her at the alley gate, and he stood right up on his old legs and says: "Say, Moll, old gal, sposen we get hitched?" But how did Mary behave? Did she go dropping to sleep over on the bricks in a dead faint, or did she hide her gentle head of his shirt bosom to conceal her blushes? No, she did'nt, and she did'nt say, " I am ever thine, my own love, dear William !" Oh, my, no! She looked right in his vellow eves "I'm in, Billy; I'm the gal for these sort of things. . Go in !" And instead of referring him to her father, she only said, " Won't the old man bust right out when you tell him? Ha! ha!" and she laughed. But she did not ask William to mollify her fond father. No, no. She very wickedly advised him to "poke of his lip." She was a funny girl, this Mary. Now the old man was'nt wealthy, for he sold soap fat for a living, and so he did'nt think Bill was nosing around after his stamps; so, when Bill asked him, he neither ordered him fiercely away, nor did the dewy moisture gather in his eagle eye as he passed his hemstitched up there and said : " Bless you, my children, bless you !" Oh no, nothing of the sort. He just blew his old red nose on his bandanna and told Bill to take her along, for he was glad to get rid of her, he was, and William would be the same way soon, for she was awful rough on victuals, and always broke plates when she got mad. So, you see, there really was no necessity for William to come at midnight's solemn hour, in a cab, and throw a rope ladder up to her window, and whistle three times on his fingers, and then go up, hand over hand, and bring her down in one hand, and her trunk in the other, and a band box and umbrella under each arm; and a whole lot of bundles, and then get into a cab, and fly to some distant shore. That's the way it would have been in a novel; but Bill said he was'nt on that lay, so he just went out in the yard, and out of pure joy, he skinned the cat three or four times on the grape-vine arbor, and then went and got his butcher cart, and drove Mary right down to the magistrate, to get the job done for a quarter-for he said he was some on the low price. But the queerest thing of all was, that Bill had no tall, dark, ruffianly rival, with a scowling visage and black whiskers, who flew at him with a drawn dagger and a horse pistol in each hand, and a muttered curse upon his lips, and cried wildly for "Revenge. Ha! ha!" and said "Sdeth!" and "Villian, thou in love with Mollie, to be sure, but he was a weak-eyed young man, who had sandy hair and wore spectacles and a choker collar, and always looked scared when you hollered at him. So, when he saw that Bill had the best of the girl's affections, he looked all serene, and said, "Go in Billy, if you hanker for her;" and as Billy was a trifle on the hanker and got trusted for it till her speekled pullet he sailed right in.

So William, you see had no trouble at all and you could'nt get up an agonizing novel about him, if you had tried. He did'nt have any urgent business that called him to a foreige land, so he had to bid her a fond good bye, and swear always to be true, and then go away and forget her and fall in love with a dark-eyed Italian girl, picking grapes in a vineyard, with a square towel folded on her head, while his forgotten and forsaken Mary, gradually faded and pined away, and baffled the physician's skill, and grew paler, and at last when the June roses were in bloom, lying gently down to die, while through the open window floated in the halmy odor of jessamine and honey-suckle. And William did'nt come home at last, and filled with deathless remorse, go daily to the cemetery and strew flowers on her grave, and teach his children

Small vs. Large Farms.

In an article on the comparative advantages of large and small farms, the American Furmer comes to the following conclusions:

"There are many positive reasons in favor of small vs. large farms. By the multiplicaextent his own employer, and his efficiency is thereby increased. By a recent report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, we learn that there are in the United States but 900,000 hired laborers, excluding freed-men, and 2,500,000 proprietors of farms. Does any one doubt that the agricultural productions of our country are greatly increased by the fact that two thirds of those engaged in the cultivation of the soil are owners of the soil? With the millions of acres of virgin soil awating the settlement of the enterprising pioneer, only minors, the ignorant emigrant, and the more indolent and unenterprising of our native population are content to remain servants of others; but the better class of laborers, as soon as they arrive at majority strike towards the setting sun, where land is cheap and fertile, and where they may become independent freeholders, and bear a hand in founding, and perchance in eventually ruling a new State. So long as we have such vast tracts of public domain inviting the settlement of any one who can muster enough money to convey them thither, and support them while they can raise a crop, our best-laborers will be restless in subordinate positions, and it will be impossible to cultivate large farms thoroughly and economically with hired laborers."

WHAT A WIFE SHOULD Be .- A Hinded authority in matrimonial affairs, says the girl must be only a third of her husband's age, not very black, not yellow complexion, not a cripple, not deformed, not vicious, not unhealthy, nor of low origin, but one who has been well brought up, and who speaks with propriety. She must not inherit a family malady, not possess a masculine appearance; must neither speak thick nor thin, nor croak like a raven; must not keep her eyes shut nor have them wide open ; must not have thick ankles, nor dimples in her cheeks, nor goose skin, nor white nails, nor red eyes, nor fat hands, nor duck-like feet. She must neither be short, nor tall, nor fat, nor thin, but very middling. Her teeth must be very close set, and her eyebrows wide apart; finally, her gait must resemble that of a young elephant.

Of course the first most important question are entitled to vote?

This the Attorney General at once determines by saying, "all who may be registered." He says "the question of qualification or disdisqualification is fixed by registration. No power is given to any other board or any other authority after registration is completed to chapge the registry." That is we presume, there is no enquiry to be made beyond the registry itself, by those who may be appointed to receive the ballots at any of the elections which are to be held under the process to which the States are to be subjected in their lamentable progress towards restoration. If there shall be perjury or false swearing in order to secure registration, the offence

It having been determined then, that all who pocrisy and meanness out of decent society; register shall be entitled to vote, the next and most important enquiry is, who are entitled to | the invocation that the Lord would raise up register? And here begin the uncertain- prophets as fast as the devil turns out scamps. ties and doubts in which the Attorney Gencral becomes immersed, and from which le | the big show, with which we have been promnever altogether emerges. He appears at one time to settle principles broad enough to a direct bearing upon it. We have not bored cover all possible cases and at another so modifies them by exceptions and qualifications as to render them worthless as rules of action.

We would suppose that when he had reached conclusions thus expressed by him: "Whether we consider the disability as arising out of a participation in a rebellion or commission of felony, the mere fact of such participation or commission of felonious offence does not of itself work disfranchisement," and further: "I am not aware of any law of the United States (the law of Congress of course included) which works disfranchise ment as to right of suffrage by force of the act itself, nor does such consequence follow from conviction for treason or conspiracy to commit treason, or for any other act of participation in the rebellion,"-we say when these conclusions have been arrived at, we would imagine that the whole subject had been most naturally and pointedly disposed of. The reasoning it seems to us would be this: No one has ever been convicted of treason for participation in the late war, nor can any one be disfranchised for any act of participation in it, according to the foregoing opinion of Mr. Stanberry; therefore every one complying with the prescriptions as to age, residence, &c., must be entitled to vote. This it seems to us is the inevitable deduction from the method of argumentation by the Attorney General. But Mr. Stanberry does not hold a very firm position even on his own conclusions. Hence he declares that the provisions of the acts of Congress do not apply to citizens who have been members of constitutional conventions, and yet in the very next sentence he declares that members of the particular conventions that passed the secession ordinances are proscribed. This then is a very palpable modification of the view that no disfranchisement is wrought by an act of participation in rebellion. This, the earliest movement on the part of the Southern States in the direction of the late war, is visited by one of the severest disabilities that can be inflicted on the citizen. One important question has been considered by the Attorney General, and has we believe for the first time received the legal construction of any imporfant officer of the Federal government; and that is, the true signification and legal meaning of the term " engaging in the rebellion." It is the opinion of the Attorney General that the phrase "engaging in rebellion," does not apply to conscripts. Officers, whether judicial or executive, engaged in the preservation of order or enforcing the civil law, are not thus embraced. No enquiry is to be made as to the past opinions or sentiments of the applicant for registration. He is only held responsible for direct overt acts, done with the intention of aiding the rebellion. The term " aid and comfort" also receive interpretation. They are not to be applied to such acts as the payment of taxes to the Confederate government, nor to include the acts of common humanity or charity. But space will not permit us in this issue, to analyze the opinion further. Next week we will endeavor to move, and act, on the theatre now inhabited by us, will need some explanation of the system of legerdemain and unparalleled rascality, which elevated to position, place and power the unclean and unanointed horde that has made a den of hieves of the bright temple in which our political fathers worshipped; will naturally inquire how dishonesty completely usurped the place of integrity; how old things passed away and all things became new, but laws, but which the Attorney General all the blurred with a hideousness, that has caused angels to weep over the deep damnation of our taking off. They will seek some plausible solution for the utter annihilation of virtue, and the installation of corruption in its most loathsome and repugnant form, and will wonder how vice seized the reins and dominated with such unblushing effrontery. All this may be made plain by a simple obituary of republican liberty, which received its death which presents itself is who, under the act, blow from the hands of the grand, high-pressure, progressive, moral-idea party, which, for some mysterious reason, not yet unfathomed, was allowed to acquire ascendancy. And this obituary notice should be followed by some badge of mourning-deep and profound-in all the pages required to recount the reign of radicalism-a reign that outstrips in its diabolism any that has ever cursed a free people. The vices and corruptions of the representative specimens of this party we have endeavored to exhibit to the public gaze, and with Dr. Bond, "we think that in the present age there is no grander power entrusted to man than the combination of an eye to see villiany, a heart to burn with indignation at it, and a tongue or pen equal to the privilege is to be referred to the civil tribunal for trial of stripping shams, tearing lion skins from asses, scourging rescality, and laughing hyand most heartily do we unite with him in Some may say what has this to do with ised entertainment? We answer that it has and disgusted our readers for the past month with the public displays of vice and immorality in high places, without a purpose-and that purpose its dethronement, its extirpation, its annihilation. We have entered upon our task with the fixed conviction that

"Vice is a monster of such hideous mein, That to be hated, needs only to be seen." The misfortune of the present age is that men love notoriety, even if it comes through infamy. The thirst for power has dethroned virtue, driven patriotism to the wall, and overpowered every emotion that is not in perfect consonance with open and avowed rascality. What do the radical rulers of West Virginiaher Governor, her Legislators, her Judgescare for the prosperity of the country or the welfare and happiness of the people? How much and to what extent do they feel for the wails of the suffering or the groans of the over-burdened tax-payer? They are after position, the notoriety of position, the emoluments of position, and for these they are willing to sacrifice the liberties, and the lives if necessary, of their subjects. They have already ignored the chart of our republicanism, and are not even willing to abide by a constitution of their own making. And why?-Because to do so would endanger their continuance in power; it would imperil their hold upon position. The voice of the people is against them, and that voice is stifled; they cower from an expression of public sentiment, for they know that would consign them to the shades of irretrievable infamy,

The animals which we have had on exhibition in our columns from week to week-the McKevits, the Chaplines, the Warners, the Koonces, the Turners, the Faymans-are but the depraved tools of these corrupt and unpatriotic rulers, selected of course with special reference to their fitness for the performance of their parts of the programme, and their admirable adaptation to the successful execution of the work assigned them. We have exposed them, and shall continue to expose them, so long as they continue in their course of infamy and oppression, and whenever we hear of any particular meanness in which they or any of their clan have been participants, we shall hold them up to public scorn and contempt. The day may comewhen some feeling of remorse will creep over their iron-clad consciences, and if such should be the case, and there are indications of a genuine repentance, we may cease our expo sitions, but we can never regard these parties in any other light than as the assassins of liberty, who have sacrificed principle for the loaves and fishes of office.

But from the quantity of the finny tribe that has been unloading at our depot the past week, in some instances a hundred barrels per day, our merchants evidently design to vitiate the taste if not corrupt the morals of our mutton-loving, beefeating and ham-devouring community. Confiscation Again - Mr. Stevens getting Excited-Another Letter.

LANCASTER, PA., May 20, 1867.

Dear Sir:—Short as your letter is, I fear I cannot answer it without violating an injunction of my medical adviser not to suffer myself to become excited. You live in a region which was two or three times invaded. by the armies of Jefferson Davis. In the by the armies of Senerson Davis. In the sounties of Bedford, Fulton, Franklin, Comberland, Adams and York they visited almost every farmer and other inhabitant, and plundered them of their horses, cattle, provisions, wagons and money when found, besides some detached cases, They lay in ashes a thriving village of 6,000 people, and turned the in-habitants houseless into the streets to seek shelter in fence corners. No provision has been made, or is making, to reimburse the plundered citizens. By the law of nations, a government makes no compensation for damages done by an invading army, unless such government is victorious, when it always provides by treaty for the payment by the vauquisted enemy. A government which ne-gleots to make such provision on behalf of its plundered citizens, is basely negligent of its

A quasi peace exists between the late belligerents, the terms of which are dictated by Congress, which is under the control of the Republican party. Nothing but the proceeds of the confiscation of a small portion of the property of the wealthy rebels can be applied to pay the damages inflicted by the maranders, unless it be paid out of the treasury of the United States. A few republican meteors, always erratic in their course, are flitting through and exploding in the Republican af through and exploding in the Republican atmosphere. They attract sufficient attention to enable them to assure the amiable rebels who inflicted this injury that they need fear no confiscation—that nobody of any note in the North is in favor of imposing such pun-ishment for the sake of remuneration or justice. They assure them that nothing shall be taken from Aikens's estate of millions-from Hampton, Davis, Orr, Faulkner, or from a thousand others, who are still worth their hundreds of thousands, to reimburse the loyal men North and South who were plundered of their estates, and to aid your poor neighbors to rebuild their humble tenements.

It is scarcely to be endured that Congress for two sessions should sit indifferent to these sufferings, and take no steps to enforce these

These remarks apply to a large, portion of Maryland, of -West-Virginia, Obio, Indiana, and Missouri, as well as to the slave States. He who can patiently listen to that putrid humanity which we now see propagated, has more command of himself than I have. Indeed, it looks as if we were still to add to the burden of our taxation to defray the expenses of transportation and the ovation of triumphant traitors. But I must stop, or I shall com-THADEUS STEVENS.

was largely composed of white citizens. He was introduced by Mr. Harris, Mayor of the city. On the stand was ex-Confederate Gen. Barringer, to whose brother, Victor Barringer, a resident of Concord, the speaker first referred as one whose correspondence with him after the war, which was published, had done so much good in the North, and made him (Judge Kelley) most anxious to visit that vicinity. The speaker continued to say that he had been heralded to them as a breeder of discord between races and interests : but that was not his mission, and if any word he had spoken tended that way they were unconsciously spoken. He came to see how Northern capital could be directed towards the development of Southern resources .-Wherever he had gone, except in one instance he was met with all courtesy and hospitality. It was so in Tennessee! Louisiana, Alabama and Georgia, and in none was he more warmly welcomed than by the general who commanded the Confederate army of Georgia (Gen. Wofford), and the general who commanded a portion of it in North Carolina (Gen. Barringer,) now present. He passed carefully over the productions and advantages of North Carolina, which grows all the cereals grown in the North, but in greater richness. its peculiar Southern productions, and vast mineral resources-of gold lying in a belt forty miles wide, besides copper, sulphur, &c. He came to them to talk in family council, after all the sufferings through which both sections had passed, and the doubt in which they both now stood, to see how these resources could be employed, and to ask that the past be forgotten, and as brothers under one flag to comoine for the general interest of the whole country. [Applause.]

[Special Dispatch to the Baltimore Sun'] More of the Judiciary Committee's Investigations.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Among the witnesses before the Judiciary Committee to-day was colonel A. K. Long, of the President's household, who was examined at length relative to the issuing of pardons, the habits of Mr. Johnson, etc. 'It is understood Colonel Long testified that the notorious Mrs. Cobb was interested in obtaining, in all, three pardons; that in these she was unknown to the president, whom she did not meet. The petitions were prepared in regular form by others, and Mrs. Cobb assisted in obtaining the pardons through third parties.

Colonel Long was also examined about the interview between Mr. Johnson and detective Baker, of which the latter has pretended to give an account. The testimony shows that there were three persons present when he ordered Baker out of the White House, and they give a very different account from Baker of what transpired. Colonel Long says Mr. Johnson, learning that Baker had placed detectives in the White House sent for Baker immediately. Upon the latter's coming into the President's office, Mr. Johnson demanded "Who authorized you to place detectives in this house ?" Baker replied, he did it by order of Secretary Stanton. Mr. Johnson then said: "Remove your detectives, and never let me see them or yourself here again when I require your services I'll send for you hymn, "The Earth is the Lord's and the "Now, go to Mr. Stanton and tell him that THE GREAT TROT BETWEEN DEXTER AND fullness thereof," and the Hon. WILLIAM H. | when I want you I will send for you." Mr. Johnson, during this time, never moved from his position at his table, and Baker's story about the President's violent manner and shaking his fist under the detective's nose is utter-

Mrs. Washington was also examined before the committee to-day relative to the manner of obtaining a pardon for her husband and (wo relatives; also, as to the statement of Ba-ker. Her testimony completely denies the detective's published account. The testimony of Hon. Montgomery Blair, on Saturday, was that he had never heard the President say he would not recognize Congress until the Southern States were admitted. He never his message to Congress.

GENTS:—Having tried several different kinds of Washing Macnines and none of them giving me satisfaction, and hearing of your "King of the West," or "American Champion," I horrowed one of them from a neighbor. I got the use of it for three weeks. The first week I followed the printed directions. The next week I used water not so hot, and found the machine did much better. I now think that my family week I used water not so hot, and found the machine did much better. I now think that my family understand the machine completely, and we would not take double its cost for it, provided we could not get another of the same kind. I am tarming, and have seen some of the worst soiled clothes that I ever saw in my life washed perfectly clean. I advise my friends to buy the machine by all means.

AVING observed in the "Hagerstown Mail," as well as other newspapers, that Messrs. CLOTWORTHY & CO., of Baltimore, a Wholesale Drug House, have published a Card to "Agents of Stone-braker's Medicines," I deem it due to the Agents of these popular Medicines to publish another. The card of CLOTWORTHY & CO., is an ingentous affair, and is calculated to be mischievious. They state that I am not authorized to receipt for any money due Stonebraker, Hoffman & Co., leaving the inference that I am doing so, which is not the fact. They also state that "old Agencies will be supplied by wagon as herotofore," and that "applications for Agencies will receive prompt attention." This wording is very ingenious and gives out the impression that Clotworthy & Co. are manufacturing my medicines. This they have no right to do—they can sell off the stock that Stonebraker, Hoffman & Co., had on hand at the time of the dissolution, but they have no right to manufacture, neither have they the genuine receipts to do so.—Any attempt to manufacture is a vicilation of the U.S. Patent Laws, and is spurious. Agents are cautioned in reference to this ingenious card, and advised to send their orders to me at 84 Camden street, Baltimore, where I am manufacturing the genuine articles, and where I will be prepared to supply all demands after the 9th day of June next.

SAMUEL H. WOODDY, On Main Street, near the Carter House,

HAS on hand a stock to which the people of this community are invited, and he feels satisfied that those who examine it will be constrained to purchase. He does not profess to be able to self or manufacture at lower prices than any one else in the community; but this he does pledge, that he will give satisfaction to all who favor him with their patronage. If experience and strict attention to business are calculated to commend, he feels assured that he has these two requisites for success in business. Intending to work none but the most DEPARATOR CAPPILLI. Throw away your false frizzes, your switches, your Destructive of comfort, and not worth a fig; (wig, Come aged, come youthful, come ugly and fair, And rejoice in your own luxuriant hair.

REPARATOR CAPILLI. REPARATOR CAPILLI.

For restoring hair upon bald beads (from whatever cause it may have fallen out) and forcing a growth of hair upon the face, it has no equal. It will force the beard to grow upon the smoothest face in from five to eight weeks, or hair upon bald heads in from two to three months. A few ignorant practitioners have asserted that there is nothing that will force or hasten the growth of the hair or beard. Their assertions are false, as thousands of living witnesses (from their own experience) can bear witness. But many will say, how are we to distinguish the genuine from the epurious? It certainly is difficult, as nine-tenths of the different preparations advertised for the hair and beard are entirely worthless, and you may have already thrown away large amounts in their purchase. To such we would say, try the Reparator Capilli; it will cost you nothing unless it fully comes up to our representations. If your Druggist does not keep it, send us one dollar and we will forward it, postpaid, together with a receipt for the money, postpaid, together with a receipt for the money, which will be returned you on application, providing entire satisfaction is not given. There cometh glad tidings of joy to all, To young and to old, to great and to small; The beauty which once was so precious and rare, Is free for all, and all may be fair. BY THE USE OF

CHASTELLAR'S: * WHITE LIQUID ENAMEL, For Improving and Beautifying the Complexion. THE most valuable and perfect preparation in use, for giving the skin a beautiful pearl-like tint, that is only found in youth. It quickly removes Tan, Freekles, Pimples, Blotches, Moth Patches, Sallowness, Eruptions, and all impurities of the skin, kindly healing the same leaving the skin white and clear as alabaster. Its use cannot be detected by the closest scrutiny, and being a vegetable preparation is perfectly harmless. It is the only article of the kind used by the French, and is considered by the Parisian as indispensable to a perfect toilet.—

Upwards of 30,000 bottles were sold-during the past year, a sufficient guarantee of its efficacy. Price only 75 cents. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of an order, by BERGER, SHUTTS & Co., Chemists, 285 River St., Troy, N. Y.
