THE DEATH OF THE CHRISTIAN

WARRIOR.

BY JAMES BUNGESFORD

"Let us cross the river, and rest in the shade of the trees." - Dying Words of Stonewall Jackson.

A hero and Ch istian lay dying;
The friends his chamber were hushed,
To his faint he calm breathings replying
Low sobs fro their bosoms that gushed.
Already he seem he with the angels,
So brightly his pale features shone;
They were showing him—holy evangels—
Their home, which would soon be his own.
Thus, ere ha was silent forever,
The last words he uttered were these:
"Let us cross," said the hero, "the river,"
And rest in the shade of the trees."

O'er fields freshly fought mem'ry hovered,
He thought of the shade and the breeze,
But the vision by any also iscovered
Suggested the stream and the trees.
Though thinking of duties still, even,
While drawing his last feeble breath
Yet he spoke of the life-trees of heaven
Beheld o'er the river of death
Seeing heaven—his home hence forever.

Seeing heaven—his home hence forever,
With angel companions like these—
"Let us cross," said the hero, "the river,
And rest in the shade of the trees."

CHARLESTOWN, VA. Tuesday Morning, May 5, 1868.

Flour and Produce Generally, State Rights-Speech of Hon. Thos. H. Seymour. No. 60 South Street, BALTIMORE. At the annual celebration in New York city, of the anniversary of Jefferson's birthday, Governor Seymour, of Connecticut, responded in the speech below published, to the first regular toast-"Thomas Jefferson, the Father of American Democracy:"

MR. SEYMOUR'S ADDRESS. Mr. Seymour, on rising to respond to the toast, was loudly applauded. He said: Gentlemen of the State Rights Society, I am proud at seeing myself surrounded by gentlemen of your association, with whom I am now and have ever been in sympathy, and as I may say in full communion on all the great issues of the day. (Applause.) I regard the present year as the most momentous of our lives—in many respects more momentous than those years in the life of Mr. Jefferson which first brought him into public notice. We are on the eve of a crisis which it seems to me involves the life or death of the very liberties for which he contended and of that independence which we suppose had been organized and secured to us by the declaration from his pen and to which his name is appended. I suppose we shall all agree that Thomas Jefferson, whose birthday we are now celebrating, was one of the most remarkable of the age in which he lived-a man-not merely a statesman, but a philosopher, and a very far-seeing one at that. We find that even on the subject of race, which is now under discussion in our country, Mr. Jefferson apprehended the very issues which agitate the country at the present day. But the statesmen of his The Shenandoah Valley, as Shown by day and of whom he was the representative were somewhat different from the statesmen portions of our country. The men of that day, if he might use the words without giving offense to any one present, were what might be called "fire eaters." (Great applause and cries of "Oh, Register," published by the Real Estate good good.") Jefferson says of Otis, in Agents, Messrs. Echols, Bell, Catlett & Co.: allusion to his celebrated speech against the "writ of assistance," that he was "a flame of And such was the class of men required at that day in order to put in motion the | 25 wide, embracing the 9 counties of Augusta, ball of that revolution which was to give us Rockingham, Shenandoah, Page, Warren, freedom and independence. (Applause.) In this crisis of our country, when attempts are being made to destroy all that was accomplished by the early fathers of American independence, it seems to me that we should study the statesmanship of those early days, in order that we may preserve that independence now menaced by a factious Congress. (Applause, and cries of "good!") I will now briefly refer to that period of his history when he first was brought forward in public life—that was some years after the Stamp Act was imposed upon the Colonies-when he made the discovery which I think we have made to-night, to-day and during the last calm that rendered them indifferent to their

These men insist that they find in that portion of the Declaration of Independence that says all men are created free and

The Oat crop of the Valley in 1860 was, 683.663 bushels, or about 1-15th of the crop of the State, (which was the 6th in this production,) or 1-252nd of the crop of the whole United States. The average was 5.17 bushel to each inhabitant; the yield of the N. E. States was 3.43, of the Middle States 8.65, of the Western States 6.51, of the Southern States 2.18. We may also remark, that oats are not the staple grain for horses as in the North and West, corn being the favorite grain for feeding, therefore, oats are not cultivated as they otherwise would be. There were raised 4,088 bushels of Barley, 1.17th of the crop of the State, and more than the crop of several large States, but this grain is little cultivated, yet it does well and the long season and climate of the Valley are very favorable to its growth. The increase in the growth of Barley in the South between 1850 and 1860, was over 300 per cent. and we produced 1-3rd of the crop of the South. The Buckwheat crop was 21,220 bushels, which was more than the crop of either of 11 States that could be named—it was 1-22 of the crop of the State, and 1-828th of the crop of the United States; it was more than the product of Tennessee or Kentucky, and nearly that of Minnesots. This grain is not much cultivated in the Valley, as it interferes with other crops, but it produces finely when grown. The average production was

.16 bushels to each inhabitant, while in the

N. E. States it was .35, and in the Pacific States .14. The Valley produced 213,816 bushelf of Irish potatoes, or 1.6 bushels to each inhabitant, and about 1-11th of the crop of the State, or 1-555th of the crop of the United States. It was more than the crop of Texas. The potato yields well here and is free from disease, but it is not used to 1-3rd the extent it is in the North and West, and therefore, is not as much cultivated. Where the quantity of wheat and corn is great, the potato is not as much used as where they are not abundant. The Valley crop of Sweet Potatoes was 13,070 bushels, which though more than were raised in either of 11 States that we The following article containing interesting | New York, is only a small crop—the soil of the Valley, except along rivers, is not sandy enough for this potato, though it does well

It was 13.5 lbs. to each person and over 66 lbs. to each milch cow. It was 1-60th of the production of the great dairy State of New York, which made 1-4th of the whole amount produced in the Union, and which, by improving its stock for dairy purposes, makes 91 lbs. of butter to the cow. The attention of the Valley farmers has been turned more to butter lately, and the product of 1867 was more than double that of 1860, judging by the amount sent to

The amount of Cheese made was 33,648 lbs. about 1-8th of the yield of Virginia. There has not been much attention given to this production, but only skill is wanting todevelop the resources of the Valley in that vice president. He wants it-he is wealthy

The Valley obtained from 70,009 sheep, 259,963 lbs. of wool, an average of 3.7 lbs. to the sheep. Its crop was about 1-10th of that of the State, and 1-239th of that of the United States. It was 1.9 lbs. to each inhabitant, the yield of the Middle States being 1.8. The yield in the N. E. States was 3.6 lbs., in the Middle States 3.8, in the Western States 2.8, in the Pacific States 1.7, and the average of the United States was 2.7. Figures which show that there is no portion of the Union can compete with this Valley, in sheep husbandry.

The number of Swine in the Valley, in 1860, was 145,662 or 1-208th of the whole number in the United States and Territories, almost double the number in any of the New England States, and about half as many as in all of them, and more than in several of the Western States. It was about 1-10 of the whole number in Virginia. There were 291 Churches in the Valley with aggregate accommodations for 106.70 people, (about the entire adult population,) and valued at $545,705. These Churches were divided among 11 different denominations, viz:

There were Baptist and Methodist Churches in all the counties, Lutheran in all but Warren, Presbyterian in all but Page, Episcopal in all but Rockingham, Shenandoah and Page. The Mennonite Churches were in Augusta and Rockingham, the Tunker or German Baptist in Augusta, Rockingham, Shenandoah and Page, the Friends in Shen-andoah and Frederick, the German Reformed in all but Shenandoah, Warren and Clarke, the Catholic were in Augusta, Frederick,

Jefferson and Berkeley.

The upper and lower portions of the Valley were settled largely by Scotch-Irish and English people, and there are found the Presbyterian and Episcopal Churches, while the central portion of the Valley, settled as it was by Germans, contains most of the Mennonite, Tunker, and Lutheran Churches. The Baptists are most numerous in the lower Valley, the Catholic Churches are in Harper's Ferry. Martinsburg, Winchester and Staunton, towns upon railroads, and the Methodists are about equally distributed throughout the whole Val-

These statistics could be extended through the whole range of production, with alike satisfactory results, and we may appeal, without fear of challenge, to the census of the United States, for 1860, to verify the following assertion, viz: That there is no portion of the country with the same area and popu-lation, that yielded as much from Agricul-ture, with the same amount of labor, and til a reward is offered, and claim the same, where there was as much exemption from sickness of all kinds, as the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

FIELD AND FIRESIDE

Raising Pigs. One of the most important requirement in raising awine is to produce a thrifty, do less breed, and such as will fat readily, required but little food, and at the same time large in natural size, and early in majority: The food of a sow when rearing a litter of pigs, should be varied,—dry corn and cold water are out sufficient. Nothing is better than slope from the house, with some milk and corn med It is advisable, if the sow does not have a range of a field, to give charcoal and a little salt and sulphur every few days.

The breeding sow should not be close confined. She should at least have the lib. ty of a yard, besides her sleeping pen, so that she can get at the earth. Do not by means change her nest. Give plenty of claim wheat or oats straw—never hay—and let her arrange the bed to her own liking. If characteristics coal, vegetables, salt and little fresh meat is fed to the sow about the time she is going to have her young, there will be no danger of her eating her progeny.

When the pigs get old enough to go to the trough and eat, they should be fed be themselves. Make a passway for them, in another apartment, where the mother cann go, and feed them with milk containing a life tle boiled and mashed potato. The trough is best made of two boards nailed together in a V shape, with cross slats once in four or five inches, to keep the pigs from getting in-to their feed.

The best of the litter should always be selected, and kept for breeding, and different breeds of the first order brought together exchange. It is reasonable to believe the in-and-in breeding deteriorates the race; we know farmers who have practiced it for a number of years; and without any appariat deterioration.

any thing like perfect equality, however much we may desire it under this form of government or any other. I say of these men who are insisting on liberty and equality, that they have in the last few years of our history done more for the destruction of libersy and equality in this country than if George the Third had succeeded in subduing Jefferson and his compatriots. If the people do not stir themselves in this crisis, then I will be compelled to say out of the depth of my heart and in sackcloth and ashes, God has given you over to the tyranny which you desire. Though deeply interested in the result, the people of the Southern States, have manifest ed little concern with regard to the approach ing Presidential election, contenting themselves with leaving the matter in the hands of their tyrannical Northern rulers, with whom rests the responsibility of the prostitution of the Federal constitution. This inertness is not the result of any want of appreciation of the great interests involved; nor can it be attributed to any feeling of satisfaction with their present sad condition, but is one of the consequences of the overthrow of the power of the white, and the exaltation of the negro race. Only one purpose will actuate the Southern people in the coming contest, and those of them who are allowed to vote, will have this purpose steadily in view. They are anxious for a change of rulers, and to accome plish this, they will heartily accept any man who is avowedly opposed to the unserupulous party that is now running the country to destruction. Opposition to radicalism is the platform upon which they are willing to go into the fight, and all other issues, so far as they are concerned must be secondary to this The following article from the Richmond Enquirer, describes accurately the sentiment of the people of the section to which we allude :-

"The southern people will vote for any man whom the Northern Democracy may choose to nominate, whether he be a so-called Peace Democrat or a so-called War Democrat. The only questions we ask are in regard to his course since the war. If he has supported the Constitution and the laws thereunder since the war, and has popularity enough in the North to beat the Republican candidate, he is our man, whether his name is Hancock, or Pendleton, or McClellan, or anything else We are perfectly willing to leave 'the all-absorbing question of finance and taxation' to be regulated by a Democratic administration upon the well-known principles-of right and justice which have always characterized that party. And in considering all these things we desire to take the hint suggested in Mrs. Glass's famous recipe for cooking a hare-First catch the hare. We desire to get a Democratic administration, and everything else can be attended to afterwards.

"In regard to the action of the Democratic National Convention, our conviction is that the nomination of that body will be bestowed upon whomsoever is the choice of the Northern Democracy, for we believe that the southern delegates will be wise and prudent enough to vote en masse for whatsvever candida'e is known to have a majority of northern votes. and we shall not be surprised if the Democratic nominee for President is nominated by the unanimous vote of the Convention on the very first ballot.

"The southern people, in common with the whole country, have too much at stake upon the issue of the next Presidential election to permit mere personal feeling for any man to interfere with the plan of battle against the revolutionary, proscriptive, confiscating, and general destruction party."

THE JUBILEE!

Next Saturday, the 9th of the present month, is to be another day memorable in the annals of this county. On that day, as we are informed by published notice, the radicals of this county are to assemble in "Mass Convention" at the Court-House in Shepherdstown, for the purpose of selecting delegates to the Clarksburg State and Congressional Conventions, which are to be held on the 28th of May.

We are afraid that it will not suit our convenience to attend the proposed " Mass Convention," and yet; for the gratification of our friends, we should like to be there. We know that we shall be missed, and our absence probably remarked upon, but in advance, we must ask to be excused. We feel the worse over the matter, that we are unable to send such a substitute, as in our judgment, would do justice to the occasion, for Burton and Anderson are the last lingering representatives of radicalism that we have in our township, and neither of these, we are sure, will faithfully represent us at the county-seat. The former might possibly reflect the sentiments of the colored element, but me doubt whether circumstances will permit him to attend. Anderson having been confirmed as a trustee of the church in this town, will feel the importance of his new position pressing upon him too heavily to leave for Shepherdstown. We have an idea, however, that the whole matter might be judiciously left in the hands of Capt. Grasshopper Smith, of Smithfield, who can represent us all. It is true, he is not a resident of this county, but then' he is a magistrate here, and that will give him access to the hearts of the loyal. And then he is good on substitutes, having hired federacy. The matter is fixed-Capt. Smith Conventions. Go in Smith!

OFFICIAL CONFIRMATION

In the month of December last, a Quarterly Conference of the M. E. Church was held in the town of Harper's Ferry, under the control and direction of the Black Pilgrim of the Winchester District. The Achans in attendance saw the comfortable church and beautiful grave yard in Charlestown-in posession of its rightful owners, the only Methdist congregation in this town, and they determined that such things should not be, and that the property should be seized as an addition to the spoils of conquest, and made to contribute to the overflow of the already plethoric purse of the Northern church. To see was to covet; and to covet, was to institute proceedings to obtain... The rights of other parties, or the peace of Zion, were questions that did not come up for consideration, but the acquisition of the property, was heavily discussed,

A Board of Trustees was nominated and elected. Upon this Board-when their appointments were confirmed by the radical court-was to devolve the duty of instituting a suit of ejectment, to get possession of the property. Last week that complaisant gentleman, who holds the scales of justice for this circuit, permitted the weight of his prejudices to lean on the side of the board, and the present trustees at once kicked the beam. And now comes the "tug of war." The Southern church has possession, and the Northern church don't like the arrangement. The "Pilgrim" and his "Pet Lambs," need this patch of pasturage, and we may soon look for a process from the courts to gratify their avarice. A brief notice of the gentlemen constituting the new Board, may be interesting. First on the list, and first in the hearts of the loyalists of this county, we have that distinguished character

MR. ANTHONY TURNER, who thinks that no patriot ought to pay rebel any debt contracted before, or since, or during the war, and in this way, aided by the laws and the courts of West Virginia, he has managed to defraud not a few of his creditors, and will defraud others if he has the chance. It is not safe for a Southern man to trust him for a pound of tobacco. Besides this patriotic feeling, he is addicted to a hankering for horses, and sometimes imagines other people's horses are his own .-Whenever this feeling comes over himwhich is not a rare occurrence—he applies to the court to confirm his right of ownership. It is said, however, that this singular freak of his imagination never leads him to fancy the horse-of-a-Union man, but always fixes his longing vision upon the property of those who are suspected of at least sympathy with the rebellion. The next on the list, at least in our arrangement of it, is

SAMUEL K. LINDSEY: who has been tooting the gospel horn without much effect, for more than twenty-five years, and so strong are his propensities as a prayist that he has even been known to force a lock to gain entrance to a place of prayer. As a singist, he is one of the biggest "bulls in the pen," and has often made the welkin ring with his "melodious sonnets." He was called Samuel at his christening, after a certain scriptural character of some notoriety, whose parents are said to have "asked him of the Lord." The K. in his name stands for Kangaroo, and this was given him for his agility in jumping either way, backwards or forwards. After him, in fit association, comes

GEORGE W. ANDERSON. whose dog iron profile is familiar to every man who has ever travelled the Leetown road He is not entirely without a history, but we have not the room to present it this week .-It is suggested that he was made one of the rustees, that his sour visage might

EDITORIAL BREVITIES.

-The Washington correspondent of the New York Herald writes a long letter to rgue that the law does not require the Senate remove the President even in case of coniction, and recommends that if he be convicted that he merely be reprimanded. It would e-much more acceptable service to the Radimajority in the Senate if this correspondent would show them how they may remove Phillips concludes that Grant is only a drunkard but a man of no ideas and without opinions of any kind. The ultra-loyal will all say "Amen" o this, and then-vote for Grant, like the moral and consistent men they are.

The New York Times makes a very trong point against impeachment when it takes the ground that the Senate has no right a convict Andrew Johnson for attempting to put his own interpretation on the Tenure of Office bill. It says the Senate cannot consistently find him guilty without doing the very thing for which it would thus condemn the President. The Times justly claims that it is a disputed point, which can only be roperly-determined by the Supreme Court. - Prince Alfred, one of whose loyal sub-

There was no mention made of the matter in Cabinet, and the President seems to have acted on his own responsibility.

The Late Wm. C. Rives.

This gentleman, who stood among the forenost of the statesmen of of the times in which he participated in political life, and whose death we appounced last week, was born in Nelson county, on the 4th of May, 1793; was educated at Hampden Sidney and William and Mary Colleges'; studied law and politics under the direction of Thomas Jefferson; was aid de-camp in 1814 and 1815 with. a body of militia and volunteers, called out for the defence of Virginia; was elected to the Legislature of Virginia in 1817,-'18 and 19, from Nelson county; and in 1822 to the same position, from Albemarle county. In 1823 he was elected a Representative Congress, and served for three successive terms: in 1829 he was appointed by President Jackson Minister to France; on his return in 1832, he was elected a Senator in Congress, and resigned in 1834; was re-elec-Senate, where he remained until 1845. commissioners sent from Virginia to the 'Peace Congress" at Washington. He was a member of the Confederate "Provisional Congress" and "House of Representatives" during the war.

A correspondent of the Lynchburg News, writing from Albemarle county, furnishes some particulars of the death and burial of Mr. Rives, which are of interest. We copy: "Yesterday evening the funeral of the Hon. W. C. Rives took place at "Castle Hill" in the presence of a large number of his friends and neighbors, including very many of the colored people. The Rev. E. Boyden, Rector of the Parish, assisted by Rev. W. C. Butler, of Charlottesville, performed the funeral services in the house and at the grave. The last resting place of the deceased statesman and patriot is a plateau of ground with southern exposure, not far from the lawn leading up to the Mansion House. Here all that was mortal of Virginia's loyson was committed "earth to earth-ashes to ashes -dust to dust," there to remain till the resurrection morn. A. mound over the grave was formed, which was well and beautifully sodded with grass, and then the hand of an affectionate daughter placed a cross of white flowers, tastefully interwoven with ivy and white ribbon, on the grave of her beloved father; a wreath of myrtle, at the head and bequet at the foot, were also placed on the grave, when the assembled company dis-

Mr. Rives' death is an unexpected event to the public, but to many in this community t was not, as they have for more than three years past seen that his hold upon life was giving away. The disastrous failure of the Southern Confederacy doubtless had some effect in shortening his days. He died, however, with his intellect as bright, as clear, and as vigorous as it ever had been during the 75 years of his life. He was a Virginian, pure and chaste; he loved her soil, her people, her institutions, her prosperity; and in her adversity and hour of trial he remained true to her, and died with his loyalty un-Radical usurping party now in power. He was hopeful, and so expressed himself, that the people of the United States would eventually do right, and restors his native Virginia and the Southern States to their true and proper positions in the Union; but if it proved otherwise, his opinion was decided that the people of Virginia and of the South should reject all the radical measures now endeavoring to be fastened upon them; under no circumstances and on no consideration would he agree to them. These were the sentiments and the advice of a Virginia statesman, who had devoted a large portion of his ifo in the service of her people and their prosperity. It is the advice of a patriot and should be heeded.

IMPEACHMENT.

The speech of Mr. Evarts, as far as it was delivered on Tuesday, did not touch any of the legal or constitutional questions involved in the impeachment itself. It was a splendid plea for justice to the President. It was an attempt to impress upon the minds of Senators the solemn nature of an oath, the high character of the Presidential office, the dignity that should attach to the tribunal itself, and the fact that the Constitution must be obeyed whether the laws are or not. If he treated every question involved in the case with the same ability that marked his discussion of these points, his speech must be pronounced. superior even to that of Judge Curtis. We give an extract which will convey a good idea of his style and matter :

"Now, what does the Constitution do for us? A few little words; that is all. Truth, justice, oath, duty. And what does the whole scope of our moral nature, and what support we may hope from higher aid extend to in any of our affairs of life than this? Truth, justice, oath, duty, control the fate, life, liberty, character and property of every citizen. Truth, justice, oath, duty, are the ideas which the Constitution has forced upon your souls to day. You receive them or you neglect them. Whichever way you turn you cannot be the same men afterwards that you were. Accept them, embrace, obey, and you. are nobler and stronger and better. Spurn and reject them, and you are worse and baser and weaker and wickeder than before. It is thus that a free government must be always held to the power of duty, to the maintenance of its authority, and to the prevalence of its. own strength, for its perpetual existence. They are little words, but they have great ower. Truth is to the moral world what gravitation is to the material world. It is he principle on which it is established and coheres. The adaptation of truth to the affairs of man is in human life what the mechanism of the heavens is to the principle which sustains the forces of the globe. Duty is acceptance of obedience to those ideas; and is, once gained, secures the operation that was intended. When, then, you have been submissive to that oath, that faith among men which, as Burke says, holds the moral elements of the world together, and that faith in God which binds the world to His throne. it subdues you to the service of truth and justice. The purity of the family and the sanctity of justice have ever been cared for, and will ever be cared for, by the ever living guardian of human rights and interests, who does not neglect what is essential to the preservation of the human race and its advance. The Furies, in old mythology, had charge of the sanctity of an oath. The imaginations of the prophets of the world have sanctified the solemnity of an oath, and have peopled the places of punishment with oath-breakers. All the tortures and torments of history are applied to public servants who, in betraval of sworn trusts, have disobeyed this high, this necessitous obligation, without which the the whole fabric of society falls into pieces. "Now, I do not know why or how it is that we are so constituted; but so it is. The moral world has its laws as well as the material world. Why a point of steel, lifted over a temple or house, should draw the thunderbolt and speed it safely into the ground, I know not. How, in our moral constitution, an oath, lifted to Heaven, can draw from the great swellen cloud of passion, and of interest; and of hate, its charge, I know not; but so it is. And be sure, that loud and ted in 1835, and served to the end of the long as those honorable. Managers, time even shall devour the people whose presence, beating against the doors of their senate-house, you so much love to taunt and menace; but as to the word which I have spoken, Heaven and earth may pass away, but no jot or tittle of it will fail.' On Wednesday, during the delivery of his emarkable speech, Mr. Evarts, to the great delight of his hearers, thus excoriated Mr. Manager Butler:-

"Now, it has usually been supposed that on an actual trial, involving serious consequences, forensic discussion was the true method of dealing with the subject; and we lawyers appearing for the President being, as Mr. Manager Butler has been polite enough to say, 'attorneys whose practice in the law has sharpened but not enlarged their intellect,' have confined ourselves to this method of forensio discussion. But we have learned here that there is another method of forensic controversy, which may be called the method of concussion. Now, I understand the method of moncussion to be to make a demonstration in the vicinity of the object of attack, whereas the method of discussion is to penetrate the position, and, if successful, capture it. The Chinese method of warfare is the method of concussion, and consists of a great braying of trumpets, sounding of gongs, and shots and shrieks in the neighborhood of the opposing force. When all this rolls away, and the air is freer, the effect is to be watched for. But it has been reserved to us, in our modern warfare, as illustrated here in the rebellion, to present a more singular and notable instance of the method of warfare by concussion than ever has been known before. A fort, impregnable by the methods of discussion (that s, penetrating and capturing it,) has been on a large, scale attempted to be captured by the method of concussion, and some hundreds of tons of gunpowder, placed in a vessel near the walls of the fort, has been made the means to the concussion of this vast experiment.diminished and untarnished; not even for an Unsatisfied with that trial and its results, the instant did he give way to the vagaries, follies honorable Manager who opened this case and madness which actuate and control the seems to have repeated the experiment in the vicinity of the Senate. [Laughter.] While the air was filled with epithets, the dome shook with invective-wretchedness, misery suffering, and blood were made the means of this explosive mixture—and here we are, surviving the concussion, and, after all, reduced to the humble and homely method of discussion which belongs to 'attorneys whose intellects have been sharpened but not enlarged by the practice of law." [General and continuous laughter. T

Mr. Boutwell, who seems to be a descendant in the direct line from the Pilgrim Fathers-having said in his speech that there was in the Southern heavens a spot across which no planet or body of any sort moved, and that the earth ought to upheave itself and send the President to this desolate region for punishment, Mr. Evarts thus takes down the other Massachusetts fledgling : "I may, as conveniently at this point as afterwards, pay some attention to to the astrononorable Manager (Mr. Boutwell) thinks hould be applied to this nevel case of imt. Cicero I think it is who says that a lawyer should know everything; sooner or later, there is no fact in history, in science, or in human knowledge, that will not come into play in his argument. Profoundly sensible of my ignorance, being devoted to a profession which sharpens and does not enlarge the mind, I can admire without envying the superior knowledge evinced by the honorable Manager. But, nevertheless, while some gues were paying attention to an unocc pied and unappropriated island on the surface of the seas, Mr. Manager Boutwell, more ambitious, had discovered an untenanted and unappropriated region in the skies [laughter,] reserved, he would have us think, in the final councils of the Almighty, as a place of punishment for convicted and deosed American Presidents. [ Laughter. ] Now, at first I thought that his mind had become so enlarged that it was not sharp enough to observe that the Constitution had limited the punishment "laughter; ] but, on reflection, I saw that he was as legal and logical as he was ambitious and astronomica for the Constitution had said 'removal from office,' and has put no limit to the distance of removal. [Great laughter.] So without shedding a drop of his blood, or taking a penny of his property, or ironing his limbs he is sentenced to removal from office and transportation to the skies. [ Laughter. ] This is the great undertaking, and if the learned Manager can only get over the obstacles of the laws of nature, the Constitution won't stand in his way. [Laughter.] I can think of no method but that of a convulsion of the earth that should project the deposed President to this infinitely distant space; but a shock of nature of so vast an energy and so great a result might unsettle even the so firm members of Congress. [Laughter.] * *

How shall we accomplish it? Why, in the first place, nobody knows where that space is but the learned Manager himself [laughter,] and he is the necessary deputy to execute the judgment of the court. Let it, then, be provided that in case of your sentence of deposition and removal from office, the honorable the astronomical Manager shall take into his own hands the execution of the sentence. With the President made fast to his broad and strong shoulders, and having already essaved the flight by imagination, better prepared to execute it in form-taking advantage of ladders, as far as ladders would go, to the top of this high capitol, and spurning then with his feet the Goddess of Liberty, let him set out upon his flight [laughter,] while the Houses of Congress and 'all the people of the United States shall shout: 'Sicitur ad astra! Laughter, loud and long continued. Here an oppressive doubt strikes me. How will the Manager get back? How. when he gets beyond the power of gravitation to restore him, will he get back? And so ambitious a wing as his could never stoop to a downward flight! No doubt, as he passes through the expanse, that famous question of Carlyle, by which he points out the littleness of human affairs, 'What thinks Boots of them, as he leads his hunting dogs over the zenith in their leash of sidereal fire? will occur to the managers. What, indeed, would Bootes think of this new constellation [laughter] looming through space, beyond the power of Congress to 'send for persons and papers?' [Laughter-] Who shall return, and how decide in the contest there begun, in this new revolution thus established? Who shall decide which is the sun and which is the moon? Who shall determine—the only scientific test-which reflects the hardest upon the other?" [Laughter ]

Interesting Law Case.

A friend at present in New Orleans, has sent us a copy of the Times of that city, dated the 23d of April. From it we extract the following notice of a most interesting case now before the Courts of that city in which not a few persons in this county are interested :-The Second District Court has been engaged for two days past in hearing the argument in the great Shepherd will case. Judge Campbell and C. M. Conrad for the heirs of James H. Shepherd, have occupied the court for these two days. Mr. Conrad had not concluded his argument yesterday, and will resume to day. Randall Hunt and Christian Roselius will reply for the heirs of R. D.

Shepherd. Rarely have the bar and an audience been held in profounder and more interested attention than by the masterly presentation of the facts and law for the plaintiff by Messrs. Campbell and Conrad. The history of the case, running through a correspondence of the late R. D. Shepherd for the last thirtyfive years, had all the interest of a romance. The theory of the plaintiff is that Mr. R. D. property by a will which was accompanied by distribute the property among certain of James H. Shepherd's heirs. The existence of this letter is proved by a small envelope which was found in the papers of the succession of James H. Shepherd, and was endorsed by Mr. Shepherd with the words, "Letter of instructions of J. H. S. for R: D. Shepherd, or, in case of his death. for Abraham Shepherd,"-another brother. This is the only vestige extant of this letter. It is, however, frequently referred to in the correspondence of Mr. R. D. Shepherd with the members of his family; and a most searching analysis of this correspondence is believed to establish the character of these instructions, and to justify the claim of the contained in this letter of instructions. It is charged that Mr. R. D. Shepherd suppressed or destroyed this letter in order to defraud his nephews and nieces of what they would be enfitled to under it, or that the said letter created a substitution which was illegal under our law, and would cause the property to revert to the heirs at law of Mr. James H.

These propositions were enforced with great ability, and were illustrated by many interesting sketches of the characters of the several nembers of the Shepherd family: The defendant in the suit are the only daughter and two grandsons of Mr. R. D. Shepherd-Mrs. Peter C. Brooks and sons, of Boston.

A REASON FOR GRANT'S ELECTION -

Corry O'Lanus met a member of the Methodist Conference from New England, and he says this happened : "How is it, my sanctified friend," said I. "that being down on the use of tobacco you endorse Grant, who is the champion smokist of the country? He can smoke more cigars and talk less than any other man in the United States, yet you go for him?".

"Ab, my beloved friend," said the conference chap, "there is profound wisdom in this the groveling worms of the earth cannot penetrate. We would exalt Grant that he may he visible throughout the land as a warning and an example to youth of what a man who amounts to, where he is smoked out."

BEHIND THE SCENES Budget of Gossip by Mrs. Lincoln's

We copy as follows from a review of the book just asued by Mrs. Lincoln's colored milliner, entitled " Behind the Scenes :" STEPHEN A DOUGLAS ONE OF MRS. LIN-

Mrs. Keckley relates that Mrs. Lincoln from her earliest childhood, was convinced that she would be the wife of a President .-When a young lady, she was, says the book, courted by Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Douglas .-The latter offered himself and was discarded. He-pressed his suit more boldly:

"Mary, you do not know what you are re-You have always had an ambition to become the wife of a President of the United States. Pa don the egotism, but I fear that in refusing a hand to night you have thrown away your h t. chance to ever rule the White

"I do no understand you, Mr. Douglas."
"Then I will speak more plainly. You. know, Mary that I am ambitious like yourself, and something seems to whisper in my ear, 'You will be President some day.' pend upon it I shall make a stubborn fight to win the proud position." "You have my best wishes, Mr. Douglas still I cannot consent to be your wife. I shal become Mrs. President, or I am the victim of false prophets, but it will not be as Mrs. I have this little chapter in a romantic history from the lips of Mrs. Lincoln herself. At one of the receptions at the White House, shortly after the first inauguration, Mrs. Lincoln joined in the promenade with Senator Dougles. He was holding a boquet that had been presented to her, and as they moved along he said: " Mary, it reminds me of old times to have you lean upon my arm.' You refer to the days of our youth. must do you the credit, Mr. Douglas, to say that you were a gallant beau." "Not only a beau, but a lover. Do you remember the night our flirtation was brought to an end?" "Distinctly, You now see that I was right. am Mrs. President, but not Mrs. Douglas. "True, you have reached the goal before ne, but I do not despair. Mrs. Douglas-a nobler woman does not live-if I am spared, may possibly succeed you as Mrs. President.' Mrs. Keckley then describes the lovemaking of Mr. Lincoln, his rejection, his despair and his final acceptance by Miss Todd. The Hendon story is spoken of as "a ple ant pie e of fiction." The whole affair, related in this book, is an illustration of the delicacy of the parties engaged in the work.

Passing over vast amount of other matter, we come to he campaign of 1864, and Mrs. Lincoln's thod of conducting it,

In 1864 mue doubt existed in regard to the re-election of Mr. Lincoln, and the White House was beseiged by all grades of politicians. Mrs. Lincoln was often blamed for having a certain class of men around her. "I have an object in view, 'Lizabeth," she said to me in reference to this matter. "In a political canvass it is policy to cultivate every element of strength. These men have influence, and we require influence to re-elect Mr. Lincoln. will be elever to them until after the election, and then, if we remain at the White House, I will drop every one of them, and let them know very plainly that I only made tools of them. They are an unprincipled set, and I don't mind a little double-dealing with hem."

" Does Mr. Licoln know what your purpose is ?" I asked. "God, no; he would never sanction such a proceeding, so keep him in the dark, and will tell-him of it when all is over." Mrs. Lincoln was extremely anxious that her husband should be re-elected President of the United States. In endeavoring to make a display be soming her exalted position. she had to incur many expenses. Mr. Lincoln's salary wa inadequate to meet them, and sle was fored to run in debt, hoping that good fortur would favor her, and enable her to extri te herself from an embarrassing situation? She bought the most expensive goods on oredit, and in the summer of 1864 enormous unpaid bills stared her in MRS. LINCOLN'S DEBTS.

Mrs. Facoln has a long conversation with Mrs. Keery in regard to her debts, and her plans for seeting their payment. We quote: "I ov altogether about $27,000; the principal fortion at Stewart's in New York. You understand, Lizabeth, that Mr. Lincoln has but little idea of the expense of a woman's. wardrobe. He glances at my rich dresses, and is happy in the belief that the few hundred dollars I obtain from him supp!y all my wants. I must dress in costly materials. Shepherd was made legatee of his brother's | The people scrutinize every article that I wear with critical curiosity. The very facta sealed letter directing him at his death to of having grown up in the West subjects me to more searching Servation. To keep upappearances I mus have money, more than Mr. Lincoln can spare me. He is too honest to make a penny outside of his salary; consequently I had, and still have no alternative but to run in debt." "And Mr. Lincoln does not even suspect how much you owe?" "God, no !"-this was a favorite expression of hers-"and I would not have him suspect. If he knew that his wife was involved to the extent that she is, the knowledge would drive him mad. He is so sincere and straightforward himself, that he is shocked by the duplicity of others. He does not know a thing about my debts, and I value plaintiffs to be recognized as heirs at law, or his happiness, not to speak of my own, too egatees, under the testamentary dispositions | much to allow him to know anything. This is what trouble me so much. If he is reelected. I can eep him in ignorance of my affairs; but if he is defeated, then the bilis will be sent in, and he will know all :" and something like a lasterical sob escaped her.

Mrs. Lincoln metimes feared that the politicians would set hold of the particulars of her debts, and ge them in the Presidential campaign again ther husband; and when this thought occurred to her, she was almost crazy wi anxiety and fear. Wher in one of these excited moods she

"The epublican politicians must pay my debts. andreds of them are getting immensely is the off the patronage of my husband, and it is at fair that they should help me out of my mbarra ment. I will make a demand of jem, and when I tell them the facts they cann t refuse to advance whatever money I require."

A piquant char is that upon the exhibition and sale of the wardrobe. All the correspondence is given in full, and the whole digraceful affair is paraded at length.

O Deatl where is thy sting!" Peaceful as the modest droot ing of the morning flowret before the sharts of where is thy sting!" Peaceful as the modest droop-ing of the morning flowret before the shade of re-tiring day, was the passing of her pure spirit from earth to Heaven. Seemingly a gentle alumber closed her eyes; they opened but to behold—not again the gilded toys of earth—but the blessed real-ities of her true home above, in the bosom of her God.

It is meet as Christians to rejoice that, by faith do.we, in our exile, deeply regret the parting. Not in the home-circle alone, will her place be vacant and her presence missed; for during a quarter of a century and more, she has been known, and welcomed, and honored, and loved in every household of our time-worn village Who now will stand in her stead at the bedside of the suffering and nizing, with her gentle whisperings of hope of consolation? No Ku Klux.-We den't know "THE WANGS" are, except as their character is revealed in the annexed communication, which a valued friend in Winchester requests us to publish. If the Radicals of West Virginia knew who he was, they would swear he was a "Ku Klux," and would warn all men to beware of him and his circle. The writer says, "each member acquitted himself handsomely by relating a story, or singing a song," and he tries to create the impression that this little "circle" into which he was initiated was a social gathering of jolly Irishmen, who had met together to imbibe "Potheen," and nothing more. Wonder if the chances of Fenian success did not receive consideration at this meeting? And didn't you endorse the movements of the K. K. K?

"THE WANGS"-Who has not heard of the "Wangs?" But who they are, or where they came from, has been a mystery, no doubt to many of your subscribers. Having heard. that the "Wangs" had a circle in a neighboring city, and determined to ascertain their origin, while on a business tour in the suspected city some weeks since, I placed myself under the parental care of a friend who happened to be one of the "Wangs," and who offered to introduce us to some of the "lights" some evening when in session. From him I learned that the "Wangs" dated their existence from a period so remote as the invasion of Ireland by Oliver Cromwell, who broke up a society bearing this name in the County Wicklow, its designs being suspected to be treasonable to the Government. But there were some few-probably not more than half a dozen-who clung to it. In consequence of the troubles which followed, many of them emigrated to this country, and established a few circles, which have ever since been maintained; their only object being sociability, or what we call in this country a stag party. So in the kindly care of my "Wang" friend

I sallied out, one fine evening, in search of the circle. After walking some distance, we finally stopped in front of a very neat two story brick house on a prominent street, and rang the bell. In a few moments the door was opened: Upon inquiry for the "Wang," we were ushered into a handsomely furnished parlor. After divesting ourselves of our greatcoats and hats, we were announced by the servant to the circle, which consisted of some half a dozen gentlemen, - most of Mile- the usual day for our Floral Decoration. sian birth-enjoying themselves with all comforts and ease imaginable-playing a small introduced, -with the assistance of my friend | street. who is thoroughly conversant with the names:

The "Wang" alias "Our Own Orator," from Bumber; "Great Nature," from the Vale of Avoca; "Wren" from Ballypoladdy; "The General," from Ballyraggott; "Bob, from Catonsburg.

After exchanging compliments, etc., and chatting for some time, having proved myself of good social qualities, the "Wangs" resolved unanimously to initiate me into the society. So, upon the earnest solicitation of my friend, who assured me of no bodily injury, I resolved to become a member. At a signal given by "The Wang"-who, by the way, wields considerable influence. wa adjourned to the library, where we found the sideboard bountifully supplied with the best the market could afford, and the rarest mines. I must mention particularly a certain liquor which they called "Coleraine Potheen," which "Great Nature" took particular pains to recommend a small dose of on the "half-shell, as it was good for "cold feet." We remained for many hours in the library, and rarely have I witnessed such a flow of wit and humor. Each member acquitted himself admirably by relating a story, or singing a song. The wee hours approaching, the "Wang' society closed by a song called "Shells of the Ocean," to which full justice was done by departure: I am much pleased with my new circle .-Such has been my experience amongst the memorable "Wangs."

FIRE! FIRE!!-From our exchanges we see that the citizens of Winchester have been aroused by this startling cry many times within the past few weeks, and we can almost imagine, during our midnight reveries, that we hear the fearful alarm in Charlestown .-We have called the public attention several times to the alarming state of affairs, in this particular, in our midst, and have met with no response. We have neither engine, hose, or an organized fire department, and were a fire to break out to night in the heart of the town, we would have to witness the terrible destruction of our property, and perhaps our lives, without raising a hand to stay the progress of the devouring element. Wa have Heard one or two of our prominent sitizens speak of, moving in this matter, and we hope that something will be done, and that speedily.

SOLDIER'S MONUMENT. - Some tipe ago a movement was made by the ladies of our town to erect a monument over the remains of the gallant heroes of the "Lost Gause," that repose in Edge Hill Cemetery, and since that time we have heard no more of the matter. We trust they have not relinquished this laudable undertaking, but on the contrary that they will renew their efforts, and ere the summer is over we may see a memorial shaft erected over our noble slain that will be a credit to our community.

Local Correspondence: MR. EDITOR :- It may be assumed that the only safe principle of action in reference to intoxicating beverage, is that of total abstinence. I think, sir, both experience and observation confirm the above thesis. I know this is not a popular principle; its opponents are legion. It is rebutted by the church member, by the man who piques himself on his sobriety, by the unfortunate inebriate, and of course, by the seller, for if all abstain, like Othello, his occupation's gone. But, Mr. Editor, all this array of opposition does not break the position or weaken it in the least.

In this thing of tampering with liquor, we have to deal with the stern logic of facts.— Such is the insidious influence of Rum, so great the probability, aye, certainty, that the taste for it, though little at first, will acquire the strength of thirst, that the practice of taking an occasional glass will become a settled and inveterate habit, and increase in repetition through love of it, so that in nine cases out of ten, this thirst, this love for Rum becomes fixed in the individual; the sequel of which is, wreck of property, character, happiness and soul. Now and then you may meet with a moderate drinker, who, possessed of more than usual strength of will, maintains his moderation; but this is only the exception, the larger proportion of those who imbibe the ardent, become slaves to the appetite and thus are hurried along to be engulphed in the common whirl-pool of ruin. How strong, Mr. Editor, is the appeal to the moderate drinker, to forego his practice, to deny himself his daily potion, because of the pernicious example, that he may remove from the confirmed inebriate, every excuse for his ruinous habit. For while he can point to the professing Christian, or to the influential and worthy citizen, as a moderate drinker, he is likely to hold on to his cups, and thus stumble over such into a drunkard's grave. Mr Editor, it seems to me entirely reasonable that all good and true men should be willing to sacrifice personal taste and gratification, if thereby they may contribute to the salvation of the unfortunate drunkard; for with such. the sacrifice is not detrimental to health purse, comfort or happiness, whilst it may lead to "save a soul from death and hide a multitude of sins." TAL ABSTINENCE.

MEMORIAL DAY .- Other cities and towns throughout the South have reorganized their Memorial Associations, and some have already decorated the graves of their dead. Is the Executive Committee of our Association still alive ; if so we hope they will make arrangements to celebrate, with appropriate decorum,

Soon after the poor wife came in much excited, saying : "My dear Kratsalaat, I took the eggs from 'Browne,' and she has gone and sot onto an old meat axe." "Let her set," said the billious old fellow; "If she sets on an axe, may be she'll hatchet !"

- A Western orator has somewhat startled his hearers by proposing the idea of "grasping a ray of light from the great orb of day, epinning it into threads of gold, and with them weaving a shroud in which to wrap the whirlwind which dies upon the bosom of our Western praries." Justice .- Was any one present at the time? Prisoner.-No, sir. Justice.-Then, as it will be impossible for the court to prove your guilt, you are discharged.

The Washington Chronicle asserts that there are in Washington, "two fashionable gambling houses, both within half a dozen squares of the treasury building, which are exclusively for the use of 'ladies.' One, and perhaps the best furnished and most largely frequented, is situated on fourteenth street while the other is in the first ward, but a few squares distant. At these places, at nearly all hours of the day, may be found richly dressed "ladies," connected with families whose standing is high in the community, earnestly engaged in "faro." This follows, remend it to the public as a Medicine of rare and marks the Alexandria Gazette, upon the heel of the announcement in the newspapers, that in New York there are fashionable gambling saloons for "ladies." Fashionable drinking saloons for "ladies," must follow, of course. These may be considered as among "women's rights" in these days of the progress of civilization? Goood Lord deliver us!

BALTIMORE, Fcb. 10th, 1868. Dear Sir-I take pleasure in recommending your ROSADALIS as a powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one a case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other a case of scrofula, of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the for-mula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of alterative ingredient

ROSADALIS WILL CURE THE WORST CASES OF SCROFULA. READ THE STATEMENT BELOW AND DE PAIR NOT. WILSON COUNTY, Sept. 10, 1867.

Dear Sir: My youngest daughter, aged five years has been dreadfully afflicted with Scrofula nearly all her life. I tried a great many physicians, but without relieving her much; in fact, most of them said there was no hope of cure. During the last spring she was worse than ever, her body and limbs ng covered with sores and blotches-with face and eyes badly ulcerated and swollen. Whilst in this condition, I was advised by Dr. L. A. Stith to try your Rosadalis. I at once procured three bottles, and commenced giving it to her. The effect was magical. In less than a month, to my great astonishment, she was entirely well. I am yours,

THE MOST RELIABLE CUSHION need in Billiard Tables is the CAT-GUT CUSHION, Manufactured by KAVANAGH & DECKER, and Patented Dec. 18, 1806. (See Scientific American; Vol. 16, No. 11.)

It is the ONLY Cushion that possesses all the enalities essential to a PERFECT Cushion, it is the most elastic and most derable Cushion ever offered to the billiard-playing public, as is abundantly proven by the great demand for it since its introduction. The faciliarity which distinguishes the CAT-GET Cushion and renders it superior to all others, is the tightened cord of cat-get which overlies the face and edge out the rubber and running the faillength of the Cashion which prevents the ball from hedding into the rubber and jumping from the table. The addition of the cat-get cord also adds much to the elasticity of the Cushion.

The CAT-GUT Cushion has already been applied to over 1,000 tables which are in constant use. It can be applied to tables of any make for $75 per set.
