WASHINGTON, November 16, 1868.

The several members of the Cabinet are not only busy in the preparation of their annual reports, but also in perfecting their arrangements for private life. Secretary Me-Culloch goes to Europe to take charge of a branch of Jay Cooke's bank to be established in London. Mr. Seward having abandoned all hope of being retained as premier under the next administration, retires to Auburn on the 4th of March next to enjoy his otium cum dignitate. Secretary Welles says he shall welcome the day that relieves him of the Navy Department and allows his return to the land of steady habits. Secretary Browning returns to his home in Illinois, upon his retirement, and will not hold over the thirty days allowed him under the civil tenure bill. Postmaster General Randall has temporarily engaged the furnished residence of Perry Fuller, in the absence of that gentleman, and Attorney General Evarts has an eye on the Senatorial succession in New

The Hon. H. V. Miller, Senator elect from Georgia, in a letter to a friend in this city, "I placed myself in opposition to nearly all my friends by frankly accepting the terms tendered in the reconstruction acts. It speaks well for their generosity and tolerance, and is not a little gratifying to me, that while I actively and openly opposed them, I retained their confidence; and they very well understand that I will, as a citizen or as a Senator, offer no factious opposition to General Grant's administration. On the contrary, so far as is consistent with my duty to the country, and my obligations to the Constitution, I will sustain it."

President Johnson expresses astonishment at the amount of paper and ink wasted upon speculations over what Minister Johnson will or will not do in England regarding the Alabama claims and other questions at issue. He remarked to a gentleman to-day that it seemed to be forgotten that Mr. Johnson went to England under instructions from his Government, and that he is not there to pursue any "after dinner" impulses, even if he were so disposed. The President expresses entire confidence in the prudence and ability of our new minister, and doubts not he will strictly follow out his letter of instructions, regardless of British dinners and newspaper

HORSE THIEF SENTENCED TO BE HUNG .-At last, one horse thief has been sentenced to death in Virginia. At the present quarterly term of the court of Chesterfield county, a true bill was found against John McCall, who stole a horse from Mr. Wells, of said county, in September last, and carried the had been in the habit of visiting, probably on the same business. Mr. Ambers conducted the prosecution, and Mr. White appeared for the defendant.

The prisoner was found guilty and sentenced to be hung on the 18th day of. December next, A motion was made for a new trial, but refused.

This is the first sentence of death that has been passed upon a person found guilty of horse stealing, under the laws of Virginia, and it will at least serve as a warning against the visits of horse thieves to Chesterfield county. We have sometimes thought if the severest penalty of the law were visited upon some of these gentry, the crime of horse stealing would become much less popular and frequent .- Petersburg Index:

- As a preliminary measure to enhance the dignity of the Presidential office, the New York Times proposes that Congress, at their next session, shall increase the President's salary from $25,000 to $100,000 per aunum. The Times argues that the former sum is altogether too small to support General Grant in proper style, and enable him to meet his necessary expenditures as Chief Executive of the Nation. We agree with the Times. By all means let us supply the means to enable our "Nation's Chief" to live as magnificently as any of the Old World crowned heads .-Let us have no mean imperialism. The people will groan under the taxes, but "let us have peace."-Richmond Enquirer.

- The New York Sun, probably the most candid and fairest paper in the service of the Radical party, in the whole Union, thus "gives up the ghost" on the question of negro suffrage in the South :

"The developments of the Presdential election indicate that in the long run the Democratic party will gain more than their opponents from the negro vote of the South. The truth is, that as the hands of the Republican party, as it has been regarded by some, negro suffrage will prove a failure."

Another Florida War.

Since Ponce de Leon first planted foot upon the peninsular State of the Gulf, and christened it "Florida," from the beauty and fragrance of its flowers, such a squabble was never known there as is now in progress between a brace of Wisconsin carpet-baggers, who have recently drifted hence and taken possession of the two principal offices of the State. Billy Bowlegs and his Seminoles at one time disturbed the peace and dignity of that small Commonwealth by raising a warwhoop among its orange groves, but the reconstruction farce now playing out there beats the Bowlegs war, all hollow.

Mr. Reed, of Wisconsin, went to Florida after the war as a postoffice agent, and got himself elected "Governor." Mr. Gleason, also from Wisconsin, where he was a lumberman, also went to Florida, and got himself elected Lieutenant-Governor. Strangers in a strange land, and having a nice, soft thing of it, one would have supposed the Wisconsinners would have dwelt together in harmony. But alas! for the vanity of human expectations! They fell out, drew pistols, and threatened one another with extermination and impeachment.

It appears that the Constituoshun confers upon the Governor the whole patronage of the State, with enormous salaries. In the distribution of this patronage Reed offended Gleason; whereupon the latter, through one Jenkins (whererbouts not known-probably from Wisconsin), had Reed impeached, with a view to the succession. The phraseology of the impeachment articles is forcible, ratherthan elegant. The parties knew each other at home, and had no difficulty in selecting. proper descriptive epithets. In one of the articles the Governor is accused of being a liar; in another, of being a thief. The Governor retorted upon Gleason by calling him "another," and putting him under arrest.— How this dog-fight will end, and which dog will get the bone of contention (the Governorship), we do not know or care.

Death of two Centenarians. The Newcastle, Kv., Constitutionalist, cords the death of Mrs. Sally Sutherland, at the residence of her son, in Henry county, on the Sulphur fork of Drennou's Creek, aged 105 years, six months and two days .-Mrs. Sutherland was born in South Carolina on the 10th of April, 1764, and removed, while a child, with her parents to Virginia, where she married Mr. Sutherland, who served as a soldier in the revolutionary war .-Mrs. Sutherland has a distinct recollection of sceing and conversing with General Washington, and at one time the General drank water from a bucket resting on her head .-

An old negro wouldn, known as "Aunt Sookey" died a few days ago at the residence of Mr. W. W. Coombs, of Henry county, at the advanced aged of 110 years. "Aunt Sookey" belonged in early life to the Sanford family, and after the marriage of her young mistress to Mr. Coombs, became an inmate of animal to King William county, where he his family, with whom she lived to the time of her death. Sometime since she was taken with a fainting fit and fell into the fire, and was very badly burned, but for which fact she might have lived for years to come.-"Aunt Sooky" had endeared herself to all who knew her by her faithful and christian conduct, and was much beloved by those who were most intimately associated with her .-The family of Mr. Coombs and his immediate descendants will ever hold her memory. dear .- Louisville Democrat.

Ancient Cities. It is well known that great cities once stood in some portions of our distant territories which are now little better than howling wildernesses. Evidences of this are coming to light daily, and among the latest and most circumstantial may be placed the following, which is now going the rounds of the press: "Extensive ruins in Arizona, it is reported, have been discovered recently by a party of surveyors engaged in exploring the country for railroad purposes. The ruins extend for miles along the little Colorado river. Some of the walls of the buildings are yet in their places, and stand six or eight feet high .-The streets may be traced for miles. The ground is strewn with broken crockery-ware. The party found some nearly whole vessels of curious form. The ware seems to be of a different quality, and finer than that found at most of the ruins in Arizona. Many of the walls of the buildings were put up in a workmaplike manner. To all appearances, here once stood a city of many thousand inhabitants. On the east bank are the ruins of a large structure or castle, covering several acres of ground. Some of the walls are yet

Look on that form, once fit for the sculptor !
Look on that cheek, where the roses have died!
Working and waiting have robbed from the artist

Alone, in the fitting.
And wind-haunted shadows that people her earth

On Going to School.

School has begun again. I go to school every day. They won't let me play there. The boys are not allowed to whisper. I don't whisper more than forty times a day. The teacher thinks I am a very good boy. I think so, too. To be good is not to be found out. Peter Snufflins was a very good boy, because he could whisper without moving his mouth. I used to call him Muffins. He has left school and works in a butcher shop. He's going to take me to the slaughter-house some day. I learn a good many good things at school Before I went to school I didn't know half as. many tricks as I do now. I have learned to fight. Bill Stubbs said I was a gump. I Mrs. Sutherland leaves two children, and a said he was another. He called it a "swat," long line of more distant descendants to I gave him two. He tried to knock me down, and I did tumble. Just then a cop came along. If it hadn't been for that cop I'd licked Bill. The boys said Bill licked me. But it wasn't so; I slipped down on an orange peel. Besides that, I didn't want to hurt Bill. I like to fight with boys that I can lick. Boys that can lick me I don't get into musses with. I ain't afraid of Bill Stubbs.

I learned some grammar at school, and a goggerfee. But I learned to play marbles a good deal quicker. Pa says boys ought to learn only what they have got a taste for .-I've got a taste for chewing gum. I've learned a good deal of them.

Ma says that we boys are worked too hard at school. She says her children shan't study when they have a headache. I often have a headache when the lessons are hard. I am in class nine, siction Q. In a few months I go to college. I want to go to college, because the boys there carry canes and have fun, and don't speak to little boys, and can go in torchlight processions. I've been to a good many schools. Someway I change schools very often. The teachers think a change is good for me. Ma says the schools are very poor, and boys don't learn much in them. I think so too. But I know a great deal after all. I want to go in a store. Pa says I shall. Ma says I shant. Ma calls me her precious darling, and says I must have an education. I'd rather have a row boat .-I'm sure if I had a row boat, and went out every day to the river, I wouldn't have headaches so much. I tell ma that schools are very bad for the head. I want to ask ma for an excuse. We have a long desson in com-pound multiplication to morrow, and my head; begins to feel quite bad. I am.

The Rats in the Mine. A miner of the Imperial Mine, of Gol Hill, Nevada, publishes in a paper of that lo-cality, the following rat story. He says: "It is not generally known, except in mining localities, that rats inhabit the mines; but such, however, is the fact. I rom the top standing to the height of twenty or thirty ground down to the lowest levels they are to be found in our mines. Some time since the Imperial Company stopped work at the lowest level for several days to repair the shaft just above it. After resuming work, the carman, who was the first to go below, went down alone to run out ore from the chutes, and as soon as the rats heard the old familiar sound come the presence of a man once more. They ran up to the carman in squads, climbed all over him, then down to the station floor again. and scampered and gamboled around in eestacies of unmistakable delight. When he started for the chute again with the car, they ran following and playing around him, and when he had filled his car with ore and started back again for the shaft, they sprang upon the car and ran all over it, and jumped and leaped as if mad. The carman sat down a moment to see what they would do, when they all huddled around and ran over him without the slightest apparent fear, and without offering to bite him. He did not hurt any of them, as he said if they could live in such a place he felt in duty bound to let them have the freedom of the city."

[From Hours at Home.] Dead Letters.

Of all the official work done at Washington, none is regarded with more interest by Office. Here sit some fifteen or twenty gentlemen—for it is a fact disgraceful to humanity that females cannot be employed, so many obscene letters poison the mails—continually engaged in opening the four or five millions of letters that annually find their way there More than 15,000 letters are daily emptied on their desks, asking to be opened. When the letter is found to have valuable contents, those contents are endorsed upon it, and the letter returned to the envelope. A record is made of all such letters, and they are at once returned to their writers, without return postage. So perfect are the arrangement that it is hardly possible that a valuable dead letter, which has once reached the office, should fail of revisiting the writer, if it is in the power of the department, to discover him .-During the past year 35,000 letters, enclosing $142,234; were received at this office, and nearly 29,000 of them, containing $130,620. were restored to their owners. But besides these money letters, there were 21,000 dead letters, containing bills of exchange, and other valuable matter, appraised at over $5,000,000; ever 49,000 containing photographs, jewelry, &c.; and 97,000 containing stamps and articles of small value; nearly all of them were returned to the original writers, and the reason why any of these letters fail of being returned is not the fault of the department, but of the writers, who either send an unsigned letter, or who will subscribe herself, "your loving Susie," or "your affectionate Adie; and as Government knows no first names, all such letters are consigned to the chopping box, and then to the paper-mill to re-appear as white paper. A noted sportsman, taking dinner at one of our New York Clubs, exhibited a diamond ing of great beauty and apparent value on is finger. A gentleman present had a great passion for diamonds. After dinner the parties met in the office. After much bantering the owner of the ring consented to barter it for $600. As the buyer left the room a suppressed tittering struck his car. He concluded that the former owner had sold both the ring and the purchaser. He said nothing, but called the next day upon a jeweller, where he learned that the diamond was paste. and the ring worth about $25. He examined some real diamonds, and found one closely resembling the paste in his own ring. He hired the diamond for a few days, pledged $1,200, the price of it, and gave $100 for its use. He went to another jeweller, had the paste removed and the real diamond set. His chums, knowing how he had been imposed upon, impatiently awaited his appearance the next night. To their astonishment they found him in rare glee. He flourished his ring, boasted of his bargain, and said if any gentleman present had a $1200 ring to sell for $600, he knew of a purchaser .-When he was told that the ring was paste, and that he had been cheated, he laughed at their folly. Bets were freely offered that the ring did not contain a real diamond. Two bet a thousand dollars each. Two bet five hundred dollars. All were taken; umpires were chosen. The money and the ring were out into their hands. They went to a firstclass jeweller, who applied all the tests, and who said the diamond was a stone of the first water, and worth, without the setting, twelve hundred dollars. The buyer put the thousand dollars which he had won quietly in his pocket. He carried the diamond back and ecalled his twelve hundred dollars, and with the paste ring on his finger went to the club. The man who sold the ring was waiting for him. He wanted to get the ring back; he attempted to turn the whole thing into a joke. He sold the ring for fun; he knew it was a real diamond all the time. He never wore false jewels. He could tell a real diamond anywhere, by its light. He would not be so mean as to cheat an old friend. He knew his friend would let him have his ring again. seller thought it was paste, and intended to defraud him. At length, on the psyment of eight hundred dollars, the ring was restored. Young Ladres .- An exchange gives some excellent advice to young ladies, who should ess unwittingly cause unhappiness:

"Young ladies, you need not flatter yourselves that you are such good students of human nature that you can always distinguish between a genuine young 'gentleman, and the mere young 'man.' Your means of judging are entirely inadequate, and the signs from which you draw your conclusions are generally false. Besides, many young men of the most honorable intentions are thoughtless. These do more harm, perhaps, than those who are malicious. The only safety for you, girls, is to move within the strictest rules of social. propriet, so far as conversation with gentlenan is concerned. 'Always keep an eye to leeward."

While Benjamin Franklin was a printer in Philadelphia, it seems he published a news-paper. Among other things that received strong censure at his hands were certain modes of transacting husiness by the merchants of Philadelphia. He handled the knaves in such a manuer as to arouse their wrath, a calling a meeting among themselves, waited upon the sturdy printer, demanding to know what he meant. "Here," said they, "we have been patronising and supporting you, and this is our reward. You must change this mode of doing or we'll show you that the merchants are a power you may not trifle with. Without our patronage where would you stand?" "Gentlemen of the merchants' Committee," said the polite printer, "I am, as you see, very busy now; but call at my house this day for dinner, and I shall consider the matter over with you in a friendly manuer." The committee, congratulating themselves that old Ben was evidently frightened, came to dinner at the hour named, but were surprised to find nothing on the table but mush-made from ill-ground corn and a large pitcher of milk. The merchants' committee not being used to such coarse fare, could do nothing but watch the healthy printer while he made a hearty meal. Rising from the table he addressed the committee thus: "Now, gentlemen, he that can live comfortably on such food can live withou your patronage. I shall cease to attack those practices when you cease to practice them, and not before. Gentlemen, good night."

And for many a year Philadelphic merchants were better and far more honest owing to this incident.

Here I saw clerks taking about $500 a day I remember having read, some time ago, a boy. He did, as I dare say you know, a great deal of good in the world.

One day, when he was playing with his hoop near the banks of a deep river which tens, fern leaves, false hair, laces, paper collars, flowed outside the walls of the castle where epaulets, horns, pipes, watch cases, hoops, he lived, he espied a dove struggling in the albume, dolls, (one of them two feet high, it water. By some means the poor little creawater. By some means the poor little creature had fallen into the river and was unable to escape. The little count immediately rolled a large washing tub, which had been left and silver watches, (very little gold and silver near, to the water's edge, jumped into it, and about them, however,) bells, purses, soap, though generally very timid on the water, by sugar, tea, coffee, bows and arrows, books, the aid of a stick he managed to steer himself pictures, a box of eigars, a bottle of Jamaica across the river to the place where the dove lay floating and struggling. With the bird in his arms, he guided the tub back, and got safely to land. Atter warming his little captive tenderly in his bosom, the boy ran with it into the wood and set it free. His mother, who had watched the whole transaction, in trembling anxiety for his safety from the bedroom window, now came out. "But were you not afraid?" she asked.

"Yes, I was rather," answered the little boy;
"but I could not bear that it should die so; you know, mother, its little ones might have been watching for it to come home !"

NEGRO SUFFRAGE.

In nothing has the Radical party exhibited greater malignancy of spirit or inconsistency of action than in the matter of negro suffrage. to States where its majorities are largest, its leaders have insisted upon the adoption of the measure, but wherever it has been submitted to a vote of the people they have deliberately rejected it. And yet these people are the constituencies of representatives in Congress whose elections were secured only because, in many cases, of their earnest advocacy of an investiture of the negro with the right to vote in the Southern States. Thus the race who, at the North, have for years been in the enjoyment of the benefits of the superior civilization to whose enlightening influences it is there boasted it is subjected, is deemed wholly unfit to be entrusted with the power of the ballet; whilst in the South, where, according to the popular theory of Northern fanatics, the same race has been brutalized by slavery, and all the attributes of manhood. have been crushed out of it, is found to be the best and safest depository of the destinies of sovereign States whose governments have been committed to its charge. This ineffable act of meanness has been perpetrated- too in the face of the most glaring inconsistency

It will doubtless be remembered that after the close of the war, among the first acts passed by Congress, at the instance of Sumper, was an act for the establishment of the Freedmen's Bureau-an organization necessary, as it was alleged, for the protection of the negro from the trauds to which his ignorance was constantly exposed. It was said with all the pathos and unction which whining hypocrisy knows so well how to employ, that the freedman was the ward of the nation, that he was incapable of making a contract for a day's labor without the supervision of the friendly agent his liberators proposed to furnish him; and yet, on the heels of this legislation, came the monstrous proposition, which is now the law, that this ignorant degraded and semi-barbarous creature. thus confessedly in need of the good offices which the Freedman's Bureau presupposes. should have committed to his hands the delicate and difficult machinery of human gov- despotisma ernment, whose successful operation, through all time, has been deemed the highest achiev ment of the best minds the world has ever produced.

These mad architects of ruin seem not to have discovered the truth apparent to all others, that whilst attempting to inflict an irreparable injury on the people of the Southern States they do not escape the consequences which they vainly believe they are imposing on their supposed victims. They lose sight of the fact that the Senators and Representatives of the reconstructed States of Florida, Alabama, &c., which have been delivered over to negro rule, are the equals, in point of power at least, of the Senators and Representatives of New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania; and that the electoral votes of the former States for President and Vice President of the United States count quite as much as an equal number from the latter. Our only hope of a redemption from this iniquitous scheme is that sooner or later its authors will discover that what they intended as bunishment of a class of the citizens of the country, must by a principle of eternal justice, be shared by themselves.

CONTEST .- We understand that the Democratic delegates elect to the Legislature of West Virginia, from this county, have received notice from their radical opponents of intention to contest their right to seats in the House of Delegates under the certificate of the Board of Supervisors of the county .-This is just what everybody expected, and the result of it will probably be, that the bration : radical Legislature will confer the seats upon those whom the people have rejected. Radicalism has too strong a hankering after the spoils and honors of official station, to permit this county to be represented by Democratic delegates, if rascality and fraud can accomplish a different result.

The Baltimore American says:-"Gen Grant has already, in private conversation, expressed the hope that the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution, proclaiming universal suffrage, without distinction of race or color, will be one of the first acts of the approaching session of Congress. Colored suffrage having been forced upon the Southern States by Congressional enactments, he deems it no more than right that the North should also adopt the same kind of suffrage."

- Alabama it is telegraphically reported has gone for Grant for President. GRANT AND SUFFRAGE. The first great difficulty that will confront

Grant upon assuming the Presidential chair is now being engendered in the bosom of the party that elected him. The Yates, Sumner and Hewards, in the Senate, aided by kindred spirits in the Rump House, have concected cheme to introduce a bill declaring universal suffrage throughout all the States, thus pullifying an express constitutional reservation, and overthrowing the Constitutions of a great majority of the States. The Jabobin leaders, says the Columbus (Ohio). Crisis think they are justified in proceeding to this extremity by the result of the elections in Minnesota and Iewa-States that do not contain five hundred negroes—that have adopted a constitutional amendment allowing negroes the right of suffrage. The fanatics who have this villainous usurpation in charge will make a bold fight for their hobby, and if Grant ventures to break with them on this subject at the outstart, they will torture him through his administration, if they do not propose to harl him from his seat. Grant has repeatedly and emphatically expressed opposition to negro suffrage anywhere; and if he is a reasonable man, he must be opposed to its enforcement upon an unwilling people by a sweeping neasure of a Rump Congress. If he should submit to, or approve of, such a measure, all his military renown and all his Presidential power will not save him from the eternal execration of the people. On the other hand, he may be tempted by the bauble of an imperial crown and a perpetual lease of power. to favor the proposition of universal suffrage. with a view to completely break down and disgrace the ballot box and popular elections. disgustall right thinking men with its farcical character, and thus pave the way for the monarchy and the "strong one man government" for which the Federalists and their natural successors, the Abolitionists, have always longed and prayed. In either case, the scheme will place him in a dilemma at the outset of his administration, the solution of which may compel him to show his hand, or divulge his policy, if he has any, much sooner

Her protest must be heard. assumption by a caucus of the Rump Congress of the power never granted to that or any other Federal party, to annul this judgment, to overthrow the State Constitution and trample upon the clearly expressed will of her electors, should be resisted with all the means in the possession of her people. This hide ous usurpation has long been predicted by the Democracy as one of the ultimate objects of the desperate band of reckless usurpers who lead the Abolition party; but the people could scarcely be made to credit such an eno mity. It will doubtless confront them in all its shameful reality within the ensuing year, and they will be literally driven to the adoption of the only remedy left to freemen to redress intolerable wrongs. Universal suffrage-the promiscuous voting of every body without qualification and without challengeis but a preliminary step towards the total overthrow of the elective franchise, and the establishment of a hereditary monarchy, moneyed aristocracy, or an absolute one man

South Carolina.

An address has just been issued by the Democratic Central State Club, which concludes as follows:

Fellow-citizens, we address you in the spirit of hope and faith. God in His providence has seen fit to dehy to us the triumph which we deemed essential to the welfare of the State. If we cannot win, let us seek to deserve success. To the manhood of the State do we appeal. Let the Democratic party of South Carolina remain a power and an in fluence in the State. Keep your ranks undivided. Adhere to your political principles until better ones invite you to their adoption From failure gather wisdom; out of defeat get patience and resolution. Preserving your idelity to the eclectic principles of your party go bravely and earnestly to work in the field material development. Thus building up the State upon the basis of labor, and surrounding our political creeds with the solid muniments of wealth, intelligence and virtue, we will redeem our broken fortunes, heal our bleeding wounds, and ere long secure the peaceful triumph of those wise and virtuous elements essential to the dignity of the State and the prosperity of the people. EDITORIAL BREVITIES.

- Now that the elections are over, says the Boston Post, Mr. Greeley, that rawhead and bloody bones conjurer announces that outrages the South are over too! The coincidence as remarkable as anything in fiction can be. hen a bloody outrage was needed to quicken ome kind of electoral blood, the Greeley suppoard was unlocked and out came the very article. The work being now all done, the upboard is shut and locked tight again, and he matronly Greeley turns and shakes his ingers at the people of the North with "You an have no more outrages, my children."-The farce is played out. The political philospher is now at liberty to study into the marvel of a whole people's willingness to engage in business by which they would have, as they elieved, everything to lose and nothing to gain. But such sort of blatherskite logic is recisely what is run in the Greeley mould. And all it leads to, in due boomerang sequence and order, is that these outrages have entirely eased because there is no longer any demand for them in the political market.

- From indications, the incoming admin istration is not to be marked by a system of economy. Before Grant is officially informed of his election, the New York Times advocates increasing his salary to $100,000 a year .-That journal says:

The salary of the President is 25,000 ear. It was fixed at this sum in the early days of the government. At that time i epresented five times as much if not ten times as much, as it represents now. It is altogether too small to support the President in proper style, and to enable him to meet his necessary expenditures as Chief Executive of the nation It ought to be, at the very lowest, $100,000. We have no doubt that the next Congress will take some action in this matter. President Grant should not be compelled to live in the cheap boarding-house style. - The recent Presidential election shows hat nearly five millions of votes were actually polled. Of these the Democracy cast two and quarter millions. But in Virginia, Mis sissippi and Texas elections were not held-Had the people of these three States been The State of Ohio has refused to extend permitted to vote, says the Washington Exthe right of suffrage to negroes within her press, they would have given a majority of at east 150,000. The radical attacks already made upon General Grant are but the avant courriers of quick coming propositions from the high priests of Radicalism to give Mr. Colfax, and not General Grant, the Republican electoral votes for President. - Mr. Seward, it is said, has issued an order that in all communications hereafter issued from the State Department the title of "Hon" shall be ignored. The term has grown into such disrepute by indiscriminate use as to have ensured its bestowal on negro officials -the crowning act to stamp it as an unmitigated nuisance. The salary that sufficed for Washington Adams, Jackson and Lincoln is not large enough for Grant, but it is to be increased four-fold, that he may keep the state of King. Will the tax-payers bear it in mind that no sooner have the Radicals obtained their votes than they devise new schemes to squander away the public money.

REAL AND NOMINAL VALUE.-We are apt to value a thing in proportion to what it costs. Estimated by this standard, Radical ideas are the most precious things in the world. They have cost this nation since 1860, the lives of six hundred thousand of might be erected from the remains of those who have perished.

The human mind can form but a feeble dea of the amount of money which these same ideas have cost and are costing. It may safely be put down at a million of millions up to the present time, and we are confidently informed that John Brown's soul is still 'marching on."

Such is the nominal value of Radical ideas; as to their real value they are worth just that much less than nothing. In other words, it would have been better for the country to have paid what their triumph cost, to have prevented the triumph.

We have little to say on this subject. It is just what we have been looking for, and we wait further particulars. But we do wish to ask our people one simple question. Important Suit.

The suit of the Manassas Gap Railroad Co. vs. the Winchester & Potomac Railroad Com-pany, to recover damages for the railroad iron, alleged to have been taken from the former road and placed upon the latter, is set for this Term. The amount involved is about $140,000, the estimated value of the iron taken. These rails were removed from the ed of the Manassas road and placed upon that of the W. & P. road during the last year of the war, by the military authorities of the United States, for the transportation of supplies to Gen. Sheridan's army, operating in the Valley. At the close of the war, the Winchester & Potomac road, including the rails in controversy, was restored to its owners, by order of the War Department. The form of the action is that of trover and conversion.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT AT THE WASHING TON RELAY .- On Monday night Mrs. Starkweather, aged sixty-one years, travelling from Washington in company with her husband, James Starkweather, to their home, in Michigan, was run over by the New York express train at the Washington Relay, sustaining such injuries as resulted in her death early yesterday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Stark-weather had stopped over at the Relay to intercept the express train west, and on its arrival Mr. J. W. Howser, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad agent, notified the passengers to take their seats. Mr. and Mrs. Starkweather for some reason delayed, and in attempting to cross the track to reach the western train she fell, and being rather large, was helpless. Just at this moment the New York train dashed by, and notwithstanding the joint efforts of Mr. Howser and Mr. Stark weather, she could not be entirely removed from the track. The train passed over her legs, crushing them terribly, and causing death.—Baltimore Sun, 18th.

It was one of the most daring robberies we have ever seen recorded, and was executed with a skill that shows the perpetrators to be experienced hands at the business. It appears that after entering, the thieves administered chloform to Dr. Barr in order to more succesfully prosecute their work. Upon accomplishing this they rifled his pockets, abstracted everything of value, and took wholesale pos-session of his keys. They then opened his bureau drawer, desks, &c., and carefully inspected their contents, and took what they deemed valuable, leaving what could not be carried away expeditiously. BE PREPARED FOR IT .- The Norfolk Journal warns the people of Virginia to be prepared for a vote on the proposed "constitution." It says the first section of the "ordinance concerning the election for ratifica-tion" of the so called constitution provided that a vote should be taken on the 2d day of last June. Suppose now Mr. Wells should attempt to spring an election upon us, under this ordinance, are we prepared for it? This is an important question, and we hope our friends will soon put themselves in a condition to answer, with one voice, that they are.

last, Mr. WASHINGTON MOBLEY, well known to many of our citizens, froze to det th on the farm of the late Maj. Thomas Briscoe, about one and a half miles from town. The deceased was in town during the day, and made some purchases at the different stores, forthis family. and late in the afternoon started for his home, near the Shenandoah river. Little is known of the immediate causes which lid to his untimely death, but it is alleged that he indulged freely in liquor before les ing town, and the inference is drawn that his condition was such as to unfit him to endure the severity of the storm, which was then prevailing, and that unconscious of his real danger, he easily vielded to the influences that were operating upon him, until his strength was too much exhausted to enable him to proceed on his way home. On Saturday morning his body was discovered, and brought to town, where an inquest was held. The decision of the jury, as we are informed, was, that he came to his death from "intemperance and exposure."

ANOTHER RAILROAD. - A gentleman from Martinsburg informs us, says the Winchester Times, that the engineers of the Pennsylvania Central Railroad are now busy engaged in running an experimental line for a railroad from Williamsport, Md., through Martinsburg, to the Frederick line, near Bunker's Hill, and nine or ten miles from Winchester. A charter for this road, was granted at the recent session of the West Virginia Legislature. It is to connect at Williamsport with a road being built from that place to Hagerstown, and is intended as a feeder to the great Pennsylvania Central, over which Simon Cameron is the presiding genius. There is but little doubt that a charter will be granted for the construction of the road to Winchester, at which point it is supposed it will stretch its arm Westward, by assisting in the completion of the Alex. Loudoup & Hampshire road, to the coal fields of Hampshire.

We learn from the same paper that at a meeting of the Town Council on Saturday evening week, a motion to reconsider the vote fixing on Market street as the route for the Winchester and Strasburg Railroad through town, resulted in a tie vote. So the motion to reconsider was lost, and the question thus settled, so far as the Council is concerned, in favor of Market street.

THE BUILDING ASSOCIATION.—It will be gratifying to the community to know that the Jefferson County Building Association, organized less than a year ago, is in the most prosperous condition, and that its beneficial results are beginning to manifest themselves. Since January last, the Association has loaned to its members, for purposes of building and repairing, nearly $12.000 - all of which has been, and is being expended, in improving the property of our town, and enhancing its value. On Saturday night last, the Association redeemed four shares of stock at $147 per share, being a premium of $113 per share. We understand that the Association will have money to loan again on the first Saturday in December,

-The Fast Tennessecan, published at Kingston, by our former townsman, WM. B. REED, has had an accession to its editorial force, which is thus referred to in its last is-

Local Correspondence.

MR. EDITOR:—Our community was startled on Saturday by the announcement that a man was found dead on the road leading to the mountain from this town. It is shown that he was in town and purchased articles of consumption and use for himself and family; that he imbibed pretty freely of intoxicating drink, and was largely under its influence. It is also said that the poor man, quor, his thirst raging within him, applied at DEATH BY FREEZING.—On Friday night one of the liquor establishments of the town for more, and was refused a drink; not because it was wrong to let him have any in his condition, but, for sooth, his money was gone. (And it may be this same dealer had helped to drain him.) But on his offering a piece of tobacco he was given the last drink —perhaps the fatal drink. It is said "the last feather breaks the camel's back"-and it may be true this last fatal drink, sundered life's thread. Now, Mr. Editor, who is responsible for this man's sudden death? It may be that he perished from cold in the pitiless storm; or, that his constitution, broken by dissipation, could not bear further strain. Be this as it may, it is patent that liquor, the liquor he drank in Charlestown, that last drink, perhaps, was the superinducing cause of his death. And sir, the question may be asked with emphasis, are not the men, or is not the man, who furnished him with liquor responsible for his untimely end? Did they not wilfully supply him with the fatal poison? Had they not a hand in sending a soul into eternity unprepared? Have they not helped to deprive a family of its head and support · TOTAL ABSTINANCE.

In old Kentucky's Mammoth Caves,
All things that owe their birth and rearing
To those recesses, dark as graves,
Are born without the sense of hearing.
With such strange sounds one's ea sare torn,
I sometimes think it had been lucky
Had I within your shade been Lorn,
Oh, Mammoth Caverns of Kentucky!

When men on politics declaim,
And yet know naught at all about 'em,
And prose for hours in language tame,
Or, having strong opinions, shout 'em;
When at all Governments on earth
They rush in manner run. a. mucky,
I wish that you had given me birth,
Gh, Marimoth Caverns of Kentucky!

At concerts where the public's pets
Sing CLARIBEL's unmeaning twaddle,
Or where shrill scoool-girls shrick duets
In tones that pierce the thickest noddle, Or when a solo on a horn
Some youth attempts, less skilled than plucky,
I wish I had in you been horn,
Oh, Mammoth Caverns of Kentucky!

And when my better-half begins Her catalogue of wrongs domestic Acatalectic anapestic a love you well, my precious wife, But sometimes I do wish, my ducky. That I could say I first saw life In Mammoth Caverns of Kentucky.

So many sounds one's hearing vex. Loud, long, lugubrious, deep, or shrilly,
And with discordant noise perplex
One's brains, until they drive one sifly;
That of I cry, "How blest is he,
How far beyond his fellows lucky,
Who boasts his natal spot to be
The Mammoth Caverns of Kentucky!"

Josh Billings on Kissing. I have written essays on kissing before this one, and they didn't satisfy me, nor dew I think this one will; for the more a man un-reduce his ignorance to a science. You can't analize a kiss enny more than you kan the breath of a flour. You kant tell what makes a kiss taste so good any more than you can a peach.

Ennyman who can set down where it is cool, and tell how a kiss tastes, haint got any more real flavor to his mouth than a knot-hole haz. Such a fellow wouldn't hesitate to describe Paradise as a fust-rate place for gardin sass. The only way tew describe a kiss is tew take 1, and then sit down, all alone, out ov the draft and smack your lips.

If you kant satisfy yourself how a kiss tastes without taking another one, how on earth can you define it tew the next man? I have herd writers talk about the eckstatic bliss there was in a kiss, and they really seem to think the new all about it, but these are the same kind of folkes who perspire and kry when they read poetry, and they fall tew writing some of their own, and think they hev

I want it understood that I am talking about pure emotional kissing, that is born in the heart, and flies up tew the lips, just like a humming bird tew her roest. Kissing an unwilling pair of lips is az mean a viktory az robbin a bird's nest, and kissing too willing opes iz about az unfragrant a recreating az making bouquets out of dandelions.

The kind uv kissing that I am talking about iz the kind that must do it or spile. If yu search the rekords ever so lively, you kant find the author of the fust kiss; kissing, like many other good things, is anonymous,

But there iz such natur in it, sich a world ov language without words, such a heap of pathes without fuss, so much honey and so little water, so cheap, so sudden, and so neat a mode of striking up an acquaintance, that I consider it a good purchase that Adam give and got the fust kiss.

Who kan imagine a greater jump of earthly bliss reduced to a finer thing than kissing the only woman on earth in the garden ov Adam wan't the man, I don't believe, tow

The Judge's pilgrimage to the Radical party has been very much like that of the man who asked the boy if he knew where Jake Kleinfelter lived. Says he, 'Can you tell me?' "Yes sir," said the boy. "Do you see our barn d wn there?" "Yes," said he. "Go to that. About three hundred yards beyond the barn you will find a lane. Take that lane and follow along about a mile and a half. Then you will come to'a branch. Go up the branch about a quarter of a mile, and then you will come to a slippery elm log. You be mighty keerful, stranger, about going on that log; you may get into the branch; and then you go on up until you get to the brow of a hill. and there the roads prevericate; and you take the left hand road, and keep that until you get into a big plum thicket; and when you get there, why then-then-then-" "What then?" LOVE AND MARRIAGE. Buckle, in his "History of Civilization," says that marriage does not depend upon love, but upon the price of corn. It is evident that children have long known this, and have even measured love as inen measure corn, as appears from their common expression, "I love you two bushels and a peck." The statistical lover does not now say, as he used to, "Amanda. I love thee; but, Amanda, provisions are cheap." There is no telling what fine novels and plays a man thoroughly imbued with this idea might produce, and particularly would he give us good songs. How imaginative would be one like this:
