It is the judgment of and that he wanted to get civil government pray. reorganized at the South, the quicker the better, and strictly conforming with our general I had been absent so long that I presumed, And there, all eyes turned upon him, this f course, that Congress had enacted all the brave and noble little fellow, this poor waif aws recessary to meet the event of peace, so long expected, and the near approach of which stepfather could not care for him-there he must then have been seen by the most obtuse; | knelt, with clasped hands and eyes upraised and all I aimed to do was to remit the rebel to Heaven, while he repeated audibly the army surrendering to me to the conditions of the laws of the country as they then existed. At the time of Johnston's surrender at Durham, I drew up the terms with my own hand. Breckinridge had nothing at all to do with them, more than to discuss their effect, and he knew they only applied to the military, and he forthwith proceeded to make his escape from the country, a course that I believe Mr. Lincoln wished that Mr. Davis should have brave enough to face death and be willing to succeeded in effecting, as well as all the other word .- New York Sun. leading Southern politicians, against whom public indignation always turned with a feeling far more intense than against Generals Lee, Johnston, and other purely military men. I repeat that, according to my memory, Mr. Lincoln did not expressly name any specific volved in these enterprises, cannot be too | terms of surrender, but he was in that kindly and gentle frame of mind that would have induced him to approve fully what I did. excepting probably he would have interlined some modifications, such as recognizing his several proclamations antecedent, as well as the laws of Congress, which would have been perfectly right and acceptable to me and to all parties. I dislike to open this or any other old question, and do it for the reason stated, viz., lest I be construed as throwing off on Mr. Lincola what his friends think should be properly borne by me alone. If in the original terms I had, as I certainly meant, included the proclamation of the President, they would have covered the slavery question and all the real State question which they passed, the name of Jesus greeted her, caused the war ; and had not Mr. Lincoln been and the happy words, assassinated at that very moment, I believe those "terms" would have taken the usual hunter distinguished for his skill with the course of approval, modification, or absolute rifle; and who had a supreme contempt for a disapproval, and been returned to me, like man who required 'a rest' from which to shoot, hundreds of other official acts, without the was in the congregation and listened atten-tively to you. ## POETICAL. [For the Spirit of Jefferson.] SING FOR ME.

BY WILLIE S. HIGGINS. Oh, sing for me that sweet, sad song once more "T will ease my weary weight of pain; I heard it fast in that bright land Where Miami flows over silver sand,

E'er I wore the foeman's chain. I loved that song when but a boy I roamed the orange bowers among; Our glorious land was ever bright, Our hearts were free from care or blight,

Since that blest time my sister'a blood Dyed red the sand where oft I trod; The formen fired our peaceful home; And I in other lands now roam. With scarce a friend save God.

Yes, lady, sing that song once more, 'Twill call up memories of the past ; Your harp-strings waken once again, And let me hear that sweet refrain, Perhaps it may be my last. Cameron's Depot, Jeff. Co., March 21, 1869.

NO. 34.

The quiet village of Jarrettsville, Harford county, was thrown into a state of the utmost excitement and confusion by a tragedy which occurred in its bounds on Saturday evening last, about six o'clock. Nicholas McComas, a young man living about two miles from the village, was shot and almost instantly killed by Miss Martha J. Cairos, who resides the same distance from Jarrettsville, but in a different direction from it than the house of McComas. The accounts given of the melancholy affair render it certain that McComas modity, and considered himself just as good seduced Miss Cairns over a year ago, under promise of marriage, and in January last a the Doctor around to visit his nationts. John child was born, which is living at the present frequently got a glimpse of the pretty faces time. Miss Cairns frequently importuned

McComas to fulfil his promise of marrying her, but by equivocations and excuses he evaded her requests until she felt towards him no other feeling than utter natred and determination to avenge her injuries.

On Saturday evening he had ridden into Jarrettsville for the purpose of attending a meeting of a militia company, of which he was a member, and at the time of the murder was in the yard, at the rear of the tavern .-Miss Cairns followed him to Jarrettsville, and, on arriving at the tavera, dismounted from her horse, fastened him securely, and, passing into the ladies' apartment, removed her riding that he would become a doctor. He saw in, skirt, her hat, and other incumbrances that might retard her movements. Leaving the ladies' apartment, with a Colt's revolver in her hand, she walked directly through the bar room, which was full of men, and stepped out upon a back porch, which overlooked the yard, where McComas was. Sei Statis [From the Missouri Democrat.] Dean-Boker Case in St. Louis-The Daughter of a Prominent Physician Elopes With a Carriage Driver.

Some time ago-it matters not how long-a dashing and good looking young Irishman obtained the situation of carriage driver to a popular and fashionable physician, whos practice is confined to the "upper ten" of Lucas place and other wealthy neighborhoods. John was a "broth of a boy," with a smooth. rosy cheek, a sparkling eye and tidy leg, and a very winning tongto in his head. As - for impudence, he had a full share of that useful comas the best man in the wide world ... In driving that appeared at the windows, and he was not too modest to return with a smile the sly glances thrown at him. One face in particular attracted John's attention, because it was very beautiful, and because, too, it threw upon hint such tender looks that his heart was carried away entirely. John, being hopelessly in love, set to work to lessen the distance existing between him and his charmer. He saw the great barrier, which, like a Giant's Causeway, separated his idol from him and he resulved to overleap it and make her his own. After revolving in his mind many plans and expedients, John came to the conclusion the example of his employer that the wand of the physician opened the doors of the wealthy and fashionable, and thay a good look ing Doctor was the pet of society. He read the list of the successful physicians of the city, and found that many of them had warried into rich families, and why should he not get signed his situation as Jehu, and read medical books diligently for several weeks, but the he reeled wildly towards the pillars, which hard words refused to stick in his memory held on the porch, she fired two more shots, because, faith, the image of the belle of Lucas neither of which took effect. many who have carefully considered the subject that if the city of Baltimore can. by sub-S500,000 to the Lynchburg and Danville line, secure their construction, and thus open these direct and first class avenues to Baltimore, this community will absolutely gain in advantages and net profits of the vast business that will be thus commanded not less than the aggregate amount ($1,500.009) in each and every year after their completion. In that judgment the Chair fully concurs. It is stated that three hundred delegates will visit Baltimore. If, when those gentlemen arrive, full co-operation is extended, and the facts and interests connected with these great subjects be presented and understood in the community and in the City Council, and aid be granted, it will undoubtedly lead to results in the commercial progress of Baltimore as important and valuable, in connection with the southern the Baltimore and Ohio road are bringing about with the trade of the West, Northwest, and the Southwest. It is related of him when he was preparing a book upon the old preachers and families of Virginia, he asked Mr. Andrew Hunter, of Jefferson county, Va., to give him some anecdotes for the work .---"Well, Bishop I have only one, and that is about yourself." "Let us have it then," said the prelate. Mr. II. then told the following : "Many years ago, when this Valley of Virginia, was a much wilder country than now, yeu preached here in Jefferson county. You used no notes on that occasion. A certain had not heard many Episcopal preachers .--After the sermon, some one asked him how he liked the preacher. The Walk at Night.

It was a lonely district in the country, and the family had neither bread nor flour. No flour could be obtained until dark, and there was no one to go for it but Annette, a young girl. A mile, and alone, part of the way through woods, the mother trembled to send her; yet they could not starve. It was moonlight and a glorious evening, and Annette bravely undertook the task. The flour was not quite ready from the mill, and she had to wait some time. Then she started homeward with her bag, looking and listening every way for sights and sounds. In the distance she heard the roll of wheels and thevoices of men shouting and singing, and coming searer. Poor girl! how she trembled and tried to hide in the shadow of the woods while they would pass. As they drew near she recognized an old familiar tune and the words of a joyful Christian hymn. Just as

ROOTING BY THE ROADSIDE.

A delegation of eminent roosters belonging to the Methodist Church, or claiming that the Methodist Church belongs to them, have visited General Grant, says the New York Democrat, to call his attention to the fact that in the distribution of offices made since he bename President the Methodist Church has not received its full share. The bishop who called upon the President claims that the Methodist Church has rendered more service to the party in power than any other, and has a right to demand a larger share in the distribution of appointments. Grant replied in substance that Mr. Cresswell, Postmaster General, was the representative of the Northern Methodist Church. Also that Mr. Lincoln appointed Mr. Harlas to the interior department at the request of the Methodist bishops, as an acknowledgment of the obligations the party was under to the Methodists for their support .-He also stated that, if one member of the cabinet was enough to represent the Methodists under Lincoln, it should be enough now; and referred the parties applying to him to the present Postmaster General, whom he presumed would see that a sufficient number of -likely that, assuming the present convention Methodists were appointed postmasters, routeagents, or something of that sort, to satisfy the demands of those followers of Christ who, for the past few years, have been politically ilar principles. Should this be the case, our Professing to love the beautiful Christ, who was all goodness ; professing a desire to choose for their model on earth men who partook in some degree of His character, the Methodists, who have knowingly and persistently, in season and out of season, worked and voted for profane, cold hearted, selfish, intemperate men, should have the fattest of offices while on earth as some make-up for the great punishment they will receive in the hereafter, if the doctrines they teach be true. ## A NEGRO PROPOSES.

Awayup in Michigan there are a few Amer ican citizens over whose countenances is spread the distinguishing impress of Senegambian darkness. These are the especial pets of rad icalism, and the philanthopic Northern heart throbs with irrepressible emotions for their elevation and improvement. The word of light and truth is read to and taught them, and the missionary labors of zealous radical daughters, are onerous in the extreme. Sabbath after Sabbath, in cities and towns, these pet lambs are gathered within the fold, and the bread of life is broken to them after the peculiar style of Puritania. A story is told of a young lady who labored in one of these colored Sabbath schools in Detroit. Being an enthusiast, who had swallowed the doctrine of the equality of the races with the same avidity that a duck would swallow a tadpole, she had devoted herself to the instruction of a class of colored boys, in whose advancement in divine knowledge she felt an especial pride. Under her indefatigable zeal, her boys had mastered the chatechism, and one of them had progressed so far as to feel bimself authorized to propound a question to his adored teacher. This he did by note, in the following style :-

Census of Charlestown.

We have of late heard conjectures as the number of inhabitants in Charlestown .----From the fact that many new buildings have been erected since the war, and that all theold houses are occupied, the inference has been drawn that there was a decided increase in population. But a carefully taken census does not justify this inference, and as well as our memory serves us as to our population before the war, we fall about fifty short of what we had in 1860. One of our employees; with a view to gratify a public desire, voluntarily engaged to ascertain the number of our inhabitants, and on Saturday evening last completed his labors. On figuring up he produces the following result : Wurres_Male Adults

OUTRAGE NEAR DUFFIELDS .- A correspondent writing to us from Duffield's, under date of April 20th, furnishes the following account of an attempt at robbery and murder near that place :-

11 . .....

A shocking affair occurred near here yesterday afternoon. A young fiend about 22 years old, clad in a black frock cost, cap, Ac., professing to be on the hunt of work, vealled at the house of Mr. Edward Sullivan, (a foreman on the railwad ) one mile West of this place, on the B & O. R. R., and findhoover for defence. ing no one at home but Mr. Sullivan and a girl about 8 years of age, undersome enquiry about the hands. After being informed that pone were near, he demanded all the money. new trial. in the house, and said if they gave an alarm he would shoot them both, at which time he looked out of the front door. Mrs. S., taking advantage of the opportunity, tried to make her escape out of the back door, but the wretch, still bent on accomplishing his object, ran around the house, and grabbing a pick handle, met her near the door, struck her's severe blow on the head with it, and then fied in the direction of Charlestown .- copy so much of the proceedings of the Board A couple of boys followed in sight of him nearly to Charlestown, hoping to get assistance enough to capture him, but night overtaking them they were compelled to give up the chase. Others were in pursuit, but returned without getting sight of the villain. Mrs. S. has a bad cut on her head, but is doing well. The physician says he thinks there is no danger. NEGRO SPOUTING .- On Wednesday eveming last, at the colored Baptist Church, of this town, our unbleached American population, was entertained with a lecture from Mis. Fances Etlen Watkins Harper, a colored lady of some fame, who hails from the Athens of America, the far off town of Bosting. We did the hear the lecture, as the evening was pust too warm for comfortable or agreeable confinement in a close room with so larges an number of the genus African as attended the lecture. We understand , however, that the sable lecturess spread herself in real Bostonian style, making the greatest display possible, with the smallest amount of infortuation. Her subject was "The Nation's Great Opportunity," which, we must of course suppose she understood, for how could a Boston negro or negress, who has had opportunities of listening to Senator Sumner, fail to be familiarized with the necessities of this great nation, and appreciate fully the grand period for striking tioner and the community. the successful blow for its glory and renown. Mrs. Harper has studied her part of the dramaand if we may credit accounts, plays it to perfection. If she will visit us again, and deliver her lecture, when the auturn frosts have come to dissipate the minsmatic influences of a crowded room, we will go to hear her, and secting the line between himself, and histhen will be prepared to give her a first class
