John Brown Again.

It was ten years on the 2d of last month since John Brown was hung. The Philadelphia Bulletin moralizes on the subject in this

"It is ten years since panie-stricken Virginia hung that brave hearted, misguided old man, John Brown, and set his spirit 'marching on' upon that wonderful path which spread its widening track across this country, year by year, until the great armies of the Republic. swayed by a resistless destiny, poured themselves along it, chanting, with 'knapsacks strapped upon their backs, the immortal warsong whose simple burden is that "John Brown's body lies mouldering in the ground:

John Brown was a fanatic, and died accordng to law. Virginia and her half crazed Governor were terrified out of every attributa of mercy and tolerance, and old John Brown's magic influence, since exerted upon the world, is largely due to the extravagant sensation which Virginia made out of his mad raid upon Harper's Ferry. That raid was the act of a single enthusiastic old man, driven from a just mental balance by his personal wrongs, and it is no longer needful to defend the Republican party from the oft-repeated charge of complicity in or responsibility for his crime." It is, of course, impossible to expect truth, in aught that regards the South, from a Radical source. To extract fire from ice would be a more rational enterprise. Therefore it is not surprising to hear the Bulletin discoursing of "panie stricken Virginia," and her "halfcrazed Governor," being "terrified" into the execution of John Brown. The Bulletin knows this to be a lie, but it is precisely that knowledge which gives the chief zest to its John Brown, in his attempt to kindle insurrection in the peaceful State of Virginia, was taken prisoner on the 20th of October. 1859; he was allowed counsel, and tried with all the formalities of the law; and on the 1st of November was sentenced to be hung. In | are these: his speech at the time of receiving sentence he said : "I feel estirely satisfied with the treatment I have received on my trial. Considering all the circumstances, it has been more generous than I expected." He received to me." He was hung on the 2d of December, more than a month after his sentence -Did that look like the haste of pavic? If so, But the saddest part of the story remains to what was the hanging of Mrs. Surratt, and the told. A portion of the old stone wall rethe alleged assassins of Abraham Lincoln, the mained, and on it he clambered. But above very day after the judgment of the court? him there we no means of escape, nothing Contrast the treatment of Mrs. Surratt, a by which he could climb, nothing by which woman now believed by all to be innocent, - he could clutch. Death stared him in the refused counsel, refused the aid of clergy, face How he called for help, hour upon hangat once after sentence, and her very dead body kept from her relatives .- with the treatment by Virginia of John Brown, the acknowledged, blood-stained insurrectionist, and decide to whom the reproach of being "half crazed with terror" properly applies. It is useless to re-open the discussion about John Brown, but the man who had formed an association, with a provisional constitution and ordinances, devoting the whole South to abolition and confiscation, and to death, if resistance were made, and who in pursuance of human being had been precipitated below. that purpose, invaded Virginia, captured with an armed force the Arsenal, at Harper's Ferry, having from 100,000 to 200,000 stand of arms, imprisoned Virginia citizens and made actual war upon her soil, certainly deserved death, and if he had attempted the same in any Northern State, under similar circumstances, would, in all probability, have been hung without trial. It is only necessary to read the records of an attempted insurrection in New Y rk, in former times, the horrible treatment of the slaves, and the refusal of counsel even to plead their cause, to divine what would have been the fate of John Brown if he had tried his devilish euterprise in a Northern State. Horace Greeley himself says, in his work on "The American Conflict," where John Brown's history is properly included, that the complaints of indecent haste and unfair dealing on the part of the Virginia authorities do not seem fully justified. Mr. Lincoln: too, in his famous Cooper Institute speech, February 27, 1860, compares the act; of John Brown to that of "enthusiast" assassing in Europe, and says that it was precisely the same as Orsini's attempt on Louis Napoleon, and intimates that it was as urgent to hold New England responsible for the attempt of John Brown as Old England for

But times have changed, and John Brown is now a saint and Martyr, for whom New England would rejoice to be held responsible. Even the Bulletin identifies the "marching on" of his spirit with the "marching on" of the Union armies. The raid of "a single, lenthusiastic old man," (at the head, however, of an armed force), who was "driven from a just mental balance by his personal wrongs," (which consisted in Southern men in Kansas defending their lives when he sought to kill them) was followed in eighteen months by open and recognized war upon the South .-John Brown was the advance guard of the Republican invasion. A wonderful decade may add, has been followed by the same results which were contemplated by "that brave but misguided old man."

By some one of those unaccountable inun-lations which drive wharf rats ashere, and make poor houses yawn, the person referred to has been lively since Congress as embled, and may be seen daily in the Capital, fluctuating between. Downing's restaurant and the reception room of the Senate, a consumptive old bummer, with curled moustaches, very fierce, and a ragged old blanket thrown across his shoulders, a cane in his hand, borrowed boots, a spotted brown necktie, and a gor geously figured vest. His left hand always twisting his moustache up into additional fierceness, while his right leans heavily upon his cane to save him from twinges of the rheumatism. His face is not without imposing characteristics, and the old vagrant has fought age step by step, clutching on life desperately. His career is a mild exponent of the force of an original predilection for living off men of the world among them. He came to Washington in the hey-day of southern domination; was a convenient time-server, an amusing bar-room acquaintance, and a man of tailorly appearance, dressed in the height of splendor. For some time he kept his head level; next he descended to being a narmless curiosity whose company paid for his extortion; then he became the protege of gamblers, and worse. What a terrible struggle with hunger he has had, what secret misgivings of suicide, what human yearnings for death, what aroused instants of sincere and tearful shame we may never know. A Windering Jew in the world of politics, a dauntless outcast, too timid for crime, he has illustrated here the extremest miseries of the man who deliberately evades the social contract and trusts to the idle charities of the profligate of his own sex. The brave old vagarant is near the end of his days. The feet of invisible ravens show round his eyes. His star of precipate and grateful recognition grows more piteous. What loneliness! What resources! God help us all in

The Montana Democrat-of the st says: called upon to record occurred in Yell township, in this county, on Saturday, November 25th. The facts, as we have gathered them, "Emery Ackerman, a young man of twentyfive or thirty years of age, left Boorsboro on the day mentioned to go to his father's in Yell township, having with him his gnn, and hunting as he journeyed along. When in during his confinement several visits from Yell township, nearly home, he fell into an sympathizing Northern friends. The reverend old descried well, thirty feet in depth. been instituted A Praying Band.

A "praying band," consisting of twelve members of the Methodist Church in New York, are visiting various churches of their denomination. At the appointed hour they enter the altar, commence singing, and conduct the service in a genuine camp meeting style. The service, increasing in interest, culminates with the evening session. The house is usually densely crowded; the leader. Mr. Halsey, is one of the most renowned Methodists in New York. The evening service upens at 7 and closes at 10. It opens with a crisp song started by the leader of the band. Ministers all give way. Revival hymns, carnest prayers, short, sharp exhortations, consume the first half of the meeting Invitations are then given to come to the altar. The congregation unites in singing. While the hymn is sung the members of the band scatter through the audience exhorting individuals to seek the Lord. As the excitement begins to glow, and strong men and children come up and bow down, the scene is indescribable, clapping of hands, ringing out of "Amens !" "Glory to God !" singing praying, shouting, talking, comforting mourners calling on the congregation to cone out all at the same time-makes a scene of apparent confusion. But the whole thing is conducted on a regular system, and the excilement and enthusiasm continue to the close. When one is converted, the whole audience come to their feet and sing, "Praise God, from whom all" blessings flow."

By this wise arrangement, when the great tunnels have been accomplished, the road will then have been completed through to the Ohio river. It is proposed to have the entire line in running order within the next two years; which will then be the great central line through to the great west, making Richmond and Norfoll the great shipping marts for the produce of that vast and fertile section of the Union. This road has been, heretofore under a very able management, and it is to be hoped, that under the control of this new company of capitalists it will be pushed with the vigor its necessity demands.

POETICAL.

THE DRAD YEAR.

The ivy over shines the wall, Her purple poison berries shed; Asa-clusters blacked to their fall; The year is dead! A fleck of smber, in the cloud
That awaines the east, is dawn and light!
And day, that gloom and mist enshroud,
Makes welcome night.

As one who, seeing life depart,
Pouders the wonder of our lives,
So, at the dead year's f.et, my heart
Strange thought revives.

I think of one, a blossom set
Shining amid the snows of years;
Sweet in remembrance, in regret,
Even in tears.

I see the bright rose of her face
Flushed with the tender flush of youth,
And murtaur, amerous of its grace,
Blue eyes for truth."

Blue eyes-the summer sky less blue-They were my rapture. my despair; I knew them bright, and felt them true, Blue eyes that were!

Again I watch the cloud that lends The future all its rainbow dyes; Again its well the Plantom rends The anguish of each winter day Comes back into my heart arew;
The charma death could not steal away
Once more I view.

And in the wailing of the winds, The moan of branches swaying bare,

The ivy over shines the wall.
The berries of the ash are shed;
Under the holly's ceronal
The year lies dead. MISCELLANEOUS.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

The emnibus was already crowded with full complement of passengers, when a signal was made by a gentleman atanding on the side-walk. The driver drew up, and he, with a lady who was accompanying him, advanced to the steps.

"I am sorry to intrude," he said, apologetically, observing that the omnibus was full, "but my wife being unwell, and about to take tourney. I fear we shall be too late for 'th cars if we stop to take the next omnibus."-Then addressing a boy who sat next to the door, he said, "Would you be willing to take an outside seat, and give yours to my wife?" The boy addressed so wled unpleasantly.

and answered, "No, sir, I am not willing." Instantly another boy sitting beside George Douglas-for this was the name of the other -vacated his seat, and said, pleasantly, "The lady may have my seat."

"I am sorry to trouble you to get up," said the gentleman. "No trouble at all, sir; I can take a seat with the driver." Accordingly the stage was stopped, and Arthur Gray clambered to the top, where he found a comfortable seat, and really enjoyed his ride much more than George Douglas, to whom the satisfaction of having asserted his rights was after all productive of very little pleasure. "He was, moreover, indignant with Arthur for yielding his seat, being more than half conscious that to the rest of the passengers Arthur's conduct had appeared in a much more favorable light than his own .-When they reached their destination, the boys resumed company, and Gaorge began to assail Arthur on the course he had taken. "For my part," said lie, "I' don't believe n putting myself to inconvenience just to oblige a stranger. I think it's an imposition, their getting in at all when they saw the omnibus was full." "But you know, George, the gentleman explained that he wished to get on a particular train of cars." "Then they might have stood up, and not tried to cheat the other passengers out of their seats."

"He was willing to, but his wife was unwell. That was the reason of their making a iourney." "Then if she wanted a seat she might have started earlier. Because people won't be in time, I don't know as I am bound to sacrifice my convenience to them." "There might have been reasons that we don't know of for the delay. Besides, you know that at this time of the morning the omnibus is pretty sure to be full by the time it reaches the point where they got in! "How much do you expect to be paid for defending them?" asked George, with a

"Nothing at all," said Arthur, with a smile. But I confess I feel better satisfied with myself when I have done any one a favor, even at a little sacrifice on my part, than when I have refused."

"You must have a very tender conscience, said George, in the same disagreeable manner. Thank goodness, I am not troubled in that way. I believe in standing up for one's rights. If we don't do it we shall be pretty likely to get imposed upon at every step. just as you were this morning." "Is that the way you look upon it?" asked Arthur. "Yes," said George, "I think you allowed ourself to be imposed upon. Of course it sn't anything to me, if you like it, only don't choose to follow your example." 'Then we shall each follow our own way. said Arthur, "and that reminds me that I turn off here. Good morning."

The preceeding conversation will furnish a sufficient key to the respective characters of the two boys who have been introduced to the reader. George Douglas had a strong and offensive sense of independence which led to speedy completion to the Ohio river and West- a constant jealousy lest his rights should in indeed it has been since he was hung, but the ern connections. The natural consequence was, that he had the reputation of being very disobliging, and was far from popular among his schoolmates.

principal ones in the city. It would be better worth while for a boy to enter that, even at a less rate of compensation, than a smaller one; he would be likely to learn more of business. You had better call there early to-morrow morning." ... "Very well, sir," said George; "I will do

George Douglas felt quite an earnest desire to succeed in this application, not only because it would be a good situation, but because his pride, of which he had a large amount, would be flattered by his being so successful, where others failed to obtain any situation at all. Accordingly he started early for the city and took his way at once to the store indicated in the advertisement. He entered the place which after the fashion of Boston stores was narrow, but running back some distance from the front. He could see from the number of clerks behind the counters that a large business must be carried on in the establishment, and his desire on entering it increased .-

Going to the counter, he addressed one of the clerks : . "Can I see Mr. Egerton?"

"Yes. You will find him in the office, at the end of the store." George followed the direction indicated, and reached the office, which was a little room partitioned off from the rest of the stored

"He entered, hesitatingly, and glanced at a gentleman looked up as he entered, and George somewhat to his dismay, recognized in him the same person he had refused to oblige in the omnibus some time before." "I have come," he said, with some confusion of manner, hoping, however, that he should not be recognized in turn, "to apply for the situation which you adverties to be filled by a boy." "It appears to me," said Mr. Egerton, quietly, "that I have seen you before. Were you not the boy who declined giving up your then Mr. Egerton called him back. "I wish you," he said, "to understand why t is that I decline taking you. It is notmerely from a motive of anger, because you refused to oblige me, although, under the circumstances, that might be supposed to disincline me to your application, but because it indicated a general lack of disposition to oblige. Now, in our busines, or indeed, in any, it is a very important thing that those who are employed should be as affable and obliging as possible. One who possesses these qualities will sell from two to three times as much as one who is deficient. You understand, therefore, the reason why I decline to take you." George left the store not a little crestfallen. On the way the encountered Arthur, who was entering on a similar errand. He nodded coldly, not feeling very social, and Arthur was a monent after in the presence of the merchant, to whom he modestly preferred his request.. He did not recognize Mr. Egerton. but the memory of the latter was more faith-

"I will engage you at once," said Mr. Eg erton, promptly. "I see by your manner that you do not remember the favor you once did me in vielding your seat to my wife. That assures me that you are of an obliging disposition, and will make a valuable clerk."

Arthur's gratification will easily be imagined. He entered upon his duties at once. and at the present time is considered the most efficient clerk in the store. George Douglas did not succeed in obtaining a place for some time. Now, at the age of twenty-one, he receives only one third the salary which Arthur commands. He complains bitterly of this, but does not take the only means to remedy it-the cultivation of a disposition to oblige; which, perhaps, as much as anything else, is the true secret of success in life.

LIVING BY THE DAY .- I compare, says John Newton, the troubles which we have to undergo in the course of the year to a great bundle of faggots, far too large for us to lift. But God does not require us to carry the whole at once. He mercifully unites the bundle, and gives us first one stick, which we are to carry to-day, and then another which we are to carry to morrow, and so on. This we might easily manage, if we would only take the burden appointed for us each day; but we choose to increase our troubles by carrying yesterday's stick over again to-day, and adding to-morrow's burden to our load before we are required to bear it. William 'Jay puts the frogs cough as if they had the hickups, look same truth in another way. We may consider the year before us a desk' containing three hundred and sixty five letters addressed to us one for every day, announcing its trials, and prescribing its employments, with an order to open daily no letter but the letter for the day. Now we may be strongly tempted to unseal before-hand some of the remainder. This however, would only serve to embarrass us. while we should violate the rule which our, Owner and Master has laid down for us -"Take therefore no thought for the morrow, for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself."

A Boy Again.

A company of gentlemen in Rene were no ong since, whiling an evening away by singin songs and relating anecdotes, when one asked for the song of "Would I were a Boy Again at which "Old Pi Ute," (John K. Lovejay, who was present, broke out as follows:

"A boy again!" Who would be a again if he could? to have measles, mu again if he could? to have measles, mumps and itch, to get licked by bigger boys and scolded by older brothers, to stub your tues, to have the belig ache from swallowing cherry-stones, to get lousy helping Irish Alike to do his sums, to have chapped hands and from toes, to slip up on the ice, to do chores, to get your ears boxed, to get whaled by a thickheaded school master, to be made to stand up as the "dunce" for the sport of the school, to have visitors to come to the school and tell you how miserably weak and stupid you were when you were born, and to ask you what would have become of you at that interesting time in life if your parents had not been patient with and so kind to you; to cat at the second table when company comes, to set out cabbage plants because you are little, and con-sequently it would'nt make your back ache so much; to be made to go to school when you don't want to get spelled down in school, to lose your marbles, to have your sled broken, to get hit in the eye with frozen apples and soggy snow balls, to cut your finger, lose your knife, to have a hole in the rear of your only pair of pants when your pretty cousin from the city comes to see you, to be called a coward if you don't fight at school, to be whaled at home if you do fight at school, to be struck after a little girl and dare not tell her, to have a boy too big for you to lick tell you that your sweetheart squints, to have your sweetheart cut you dead and affiliate with that boy John Smith whom you hate particularly because lie set up your nose the week before, to be made go to bed when you know you ain't a bit sleepy, to have no fire-crackers on the Fourth of July, no skates on Christmas, to want a piece of bread and butter with honey and get your ears pulled, to be kept from the circus when it comes to town and all other boys go, to get pounded for stealing roasting ears, to get rup by bull dogs for trying to nip watermelons, to have the canker rash, carechism and stone bruises, to be called up to kiss all the old women that visit your mother, to be scolded because you like Maggie Love better than your own dear sister, to be told of what a scorching time little boys will have who tell lies, and are not like George Washington, to catch your big brother kissing the pretty school ma'am on the sly, and wish you was

A SETTLER .- A teacher in a western county in Canada, while making his first visit to his "constituents," came into conversation with an ancient Varmount lady, who had taken up her residence in the "back Woods." Of course, the school and former teacher came in for criticism, and the old lady, in speaking of his predecessor, asked : "Wa'al, master, what'do you think he larnt

the schollards ?"

"Couldn't say, ma'ma. Pray what did he teach ?" "Wa'al, he told 'em that this ere airth was round, and all that sort of things. Now, master, what do you think about sich stuff?-Don't you think he was an ignorant feller ?" Unwilling to come under the category, of he ignorant, the teacher evasively remarked : 'It really does seem strange, but still there are many learned men who teach these things." "Wa'al," says she, "if the airth is round,

"Oh, these learned men say that it goes round the sun, and that the sun holds it up by virtue of the law of attraction:" The old lady lowered her spects and by way of climax responded : . "Wa'al; if these high larnt men sez the sun holds up the airth, I

THE FUTURE. We adverted in a former issue to the large ly increased representation which the South and West would have in the Federal Con gress after the next census, and the decline which would be observable in the relative numerical strength of New England. We may expect, thereafter, that the system of legislation so long pursued to the exclusive advantage of the Eastern and Middle States will be efinitely abandoned. Our navigation laws will be so far modified as to break up Yankee onopoly of the coasting trade; fishing bounties will no longer be endured : and last,-but not least, the odious system of protection will give way to the regenerating influences of Free Trade. What will be the effect of these reforms on the different sections of the Republic? Even with this system of class legislation, as it now exists, the prosperity of · New England, seems on the wane. Some twelve months ago the "Shipbuilders' and Shipowners' Association of Maine" con

ence in the following significant language: "When we consider the present depresse dition of the shipbuilding business in the United States and compare it with the state of things a few years ago, what a vast and melanchely contrast is exhibited. Then, all our shippards resounded with the busy hum of industry. Joy and hope shone in every countenance. Opportunity of labor was enjoyed by all, and you had the proud satisfaction not only of giving employment to your fellow-citizens, but of sending forth to the world the finest specimens of unval architecture to the honor of your country and the increase of individual and national wealth. Our mercantile maribe was then of such magnitude. that the necessary supply to keep up its effective force sgainst disaster and decay was amply sufficient to keep your ship yards in constant setivity; and it was steadily increasing and giving abundant promise that we should become soon the leading commercial nation of the world. Now our tonnage is reduced onehalf, while other nations have vastly increased theirs; and the present operations in our ship yards are insufficient to keep up even this small amount. Many yards lie idle, and grass has grown where formerly was the busiest tread of the workmen; and the ability of our maritime community to contribute in relief of the national burdens is thus materially reduced."

Now, let these fellows be deprived of the uninst monopoly of the coasting trade, and the effect may be imagined upon the shipping and shipbuilding interests of New England. But why do we call this monopoly unjust?-Because the West and South are the shippers, and the Yankees are the carriers, and if the last reap gain from their monopoly of carrying, that gain is the exact measure of the loss which the other two sections sustain by being debarred the benefit of foreign competition.

So in the matter of important duties. The Northern manufacturers secure a monopoly of Southern and Western trade by taxing foreign importations of manufactured articles. On. many classes of goods the duty amounts to a prohibition. The Government says to the other sections, you must buy from the North, or you shall not buy at all. In regard to the raw material, however, the whole world is allowed to come into unrestricted competition with the producing sections. Not only so, but an export duty was imposed on cotton, the great staple of the Gulf States, for the purpose of giving a double operation to New England's monopoly. Not only were they -prohibited from buying the manufactured article, but they should not sell the raw material, elsewhere than at the North. The lat- frage Amendment, and opposing any change ter might buy the raw material, however, whence they pleased, without consulting any interest but their own. And y:t, notwithstanding all this machinery of sectional leg-England have reached a point of comparative Within the past month, we are told that "the Lowell cotton-mills are endeavoring to close their establishments for three weeks, in order that stocks may be diminished, and prices advanced to a remunerating rate." Accounts from other parts of the North as to this, and other branches of manufactures, are equally discouraging. Not even protection can longer avail to keep up her manufacturing prosperity. The true reason is her great Southern involuntary customer positively refuses to buy to the same extent as formerly. She will manufacture for herself. Hereafter the great magnet to draw skilled labor will gradually gravitate Southward. Since the war the States of Virginia and West Virginia alone have probably absorbed not less than ten million dollars of Northern capital. The South is slowly but surely working out the problem of her commercial independence.

In the last two years she has manufactured one hundred and forty thousand of her own cotton bales. Georgia alone has not less than one hundred cotton-mills in successful opcration. ALEX. LOUD'N & HAMPSHIRE R. R.

It is rumored that the purchasers of the Government property at Harper's Ferry have a controlling interest in the stock of the Alexandria, Loudoun and Hampshire Railroad and that they have determined to bring the same by Harper's Ferry, instead of adopting the route by Snickers' Gap, which it was supposed was most eligible. We do not know how true this impression is, or how it originated, but we think it highly probable, as any extensive manufacturers at Harper's Ferry would doubtless find their advantage in controlling a Southern route, independently of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Our readers will find elsewhere in our columns reference to the singular legal question which is likely to bring the new purchasers in conflict with the datter railroad, and this of itself may stimulate them to seek some other outlet. The county can but reap advantage from the competition of these great capitalists.

The Bonaparte Tragedy.

Statement of Mr. De Fouville-Imposi Funeral of Victo. Noir-Intense Excitement, &c.

Paris, Jan. 12 .- The Marseillaise newspaper was published in mourning yesterday, and contained the following leading article printed in large type :

"Murder committed by the Prince Pierre lapoleon Bonaparte upon the Citizen Victor Noir. The Attempt of Murder made by the Princ: Pierre Napoleon Bonaparte upon the Citizen Ulric de Fouville.

"I have had the weakness to believe that a Bonaparte could be other than an assassin I have dared to imagine that a fair duel was possible in that family where murder and way laying are traditional and habitual. STATEMENT OF DE TOUVILLE PARIS. January 12 .- La Marseilles publishes the following statement of M. De Fou-

On the 10th of January, 1870, at one clock Victor Noir and myself repaired to the residence of Prince Pierre Ponaparte, 59 Rue de Antenil We were commissioned by Paschal Grousset to demand of the Prince the reason for the injuries articles against M. Paschal Grousset, published in L'Avenir de

We handed our cards to two servants, who stood at the door and ushered us into a small parlor on the ground floor, at our right hand. After a few minntes we were conducted up stairs to the first floor, passed through the fencing room, and finally entered the drawing room. The door opened and M. Pierre Bopaparte entered. We advanced towards him and the following words passed between us: Sir, we came on behalf of M. Paschal Grousset to deliver a letter to you.

You are not come, then, on behalf of Rochefort, and you are not tools of his? Sir, we are here on other business, and I beg you to look at this letter. I handed him the letter, he approached the window to read it, he read it and after crushing it in his hands he turned towards us. I have provoked Rochefort, said he, because he is the standardbearer of the rabble as for Grousset. I have no reply to make him. Are you the representatives of these carrion ? Ces Charognes? Sir. I answered, we come to you to fulfill leyally and conteously the commission entrusted to us by your friend.

Are you the representatives of these wretch Victor Noir replied, We are the representatives of our friends. Then, suddenly advancing, and without provocation on our part, Bonapart slapped Victor Noir with his left hand, and at the same time drew a revolver of six chambers, which he had held concealed in his pocket, already cocked, and fired upon Noir with the muzzle of the pistol close to him. Noir staggered, pressed both hands on his breast and sank down in the doorway by which he had entered. The cowardly assassin then turned upon me and fired. I then scized a small pistol which I had in my pocket, and while I was endeavoring to free it from the sheath, the wretch rushed on me, but when he saw that I was armed he retreated, stood behind the door and aimed at me. It was then that, comprehending the ambush into which we had fallen, and reflecting that if I fired there would not be wanting those who would say that we had been the aggressors, I opened a door which was behind me and rushed out crying "murder." The streets from Place de la Concord to Rue D'Antenil were filled with vast throngs of people; carriages containing noted persons were surrounded by the crowd and their occupants cheered.

The weather was cold and a heavy rain was falling, but the number continued to increase. Between two and three o'clock more than one hundred thousand persons were assembled in the vicinity of the place where the remains reposed, M. Rochefort attended the funeral, and his appearance called forth great demonstrations of enthusiasm from the people. The remains were taken to Neuilly for interment, followed by a long procession. The crowd wanted to parade with the body through Paris, but Louis Noir, brother of the deceased, refused his consent. At the cometery there were frequent shouts of "Vive la Republique," and the Marsellaise was repeatedly sung during the day. While Rochefort and Rashall were coming down the Champs Elysees, accompanied by a great crowd, who were singing the Marseillaise. they were stopped by a regiment of troops and the crowd was ordered to disperse. Another Slice To Be Taken From Vir

The Washington Chronicle favors a propetion, first made by Simon Cameron, ("Hones mon,") when Secretary of War; to ess Virginia of her two counties lying on e Eastern Shore. This, together with the olan of the so called State of West Virginia to extend her line to the eastern slope of the Blue Ridge, would leave the old State a rather considerable affair, compared with what she once was. We copy the following from the

"We find in the Wilmington (Del.) Commercial the following letter in advocacy of the rection of a new State, to be composed of the present State of Delaware, the Eastern Shore, of Maryland, and the Accomac counties Virginia. These thirteen counties, now belos ring to three distinct States, have a close natural connection, constituting the fertile peninsula between the Chesapeake, the Delaware river, and the Atlantic ocean. All their interests are bound up in common, while they have few ties of sympathy with the continental portions of Virginia and Maryland. If the eninsula is ever to be constituted as a single State, the present time is more appropriate for the purpose than any future time can be. We are now in an era of reconstruction. New States are being yearly added in the Wes; new provinces upon our borders are knocking for admission into the Union. Above al, the Southern States are just now having their relations to the Union definitely settled .-Virginia is not yet re admitted into the Union. She would probably willingly consent to to trifling and obvious a correction of her gengraphical boundaries. Moreover, the ennial census is soon to be taken, and if such a State could be constituted in time to be inventoried as a separate entity, a great object would be accomplished at an appropriate time. The idea is not a new one. Indeed it is o natural a proposition that it could not fill to present itself as desirable to the parties chiefly concerned. About 1861 it was proposed by the Secretary of War, Mr. Cameron, in a message, but owing to the pressure of more important considerations, received little attention

"We have not asked ourselves what polit ical effect this measure would have. We look upon it in no partisan spirit, but simply as a step which would tend to the material advantage of the dwellers upon the peninsula in question. Incidentally it would have, also, the desirable effect of enlarging the boundaries of the small State of Delaware, and placing her upon a footing of greater equality with her sister States.

"Should there be any personal feeling among the residents of the Eastern Shore' about merging themselves in so small a State as Delaware, that sentiment could be contracted by giving the new State a new name. But the name which we should consider as most befitting would be one whose appropriate ness may be seen at a glance, i. c., the State of Chesapeake."

The Burdell Murder.

Something About all the Parties Concern in the Great American Tragedy,

A correspondent of the New Haven Le hus talks of the Burdell murder, his marks having been called forth by an article in that paper repeating the old rumors plicating the late John J. Eckle in the mat-

"Anybody and everybody who knew John J. Eckle, knew it was not in his nature to commit any such deed as was attributed to him, or even to countenance in any wise br shape such an enormity. He was generousto a fault, and although fond of ladies' society, he was the last man Mrs. Cunningham could have induced to second her in her design on Burdell, even had she been guilty of compassing that man's death, which is now rendered more than ever improbable, as itwas not her interest that Burdell should die.

"Burdell's record was never truly given to the public. He was the meanest vagabond in New York. He cheated his brother John's wife out of all the money coming to her; he traduced his nephew, the son of his brother, who came to New York to practice dentistry, and succeeded in driving the young man to California simply because he might lose some of his patients, the most of whom at that time were the loose characters of Church street. then the favorite quarters of the demi monde. At this time he had his office corner of Frank. lin street and Broadway. From thence he moved up to Bond street, where he was taken ningham; but by a jealous man who followed him into his den, and, then and there, Mc-Farlandized him for taking advantage of his wife, while in his power, when having her teeth attended to in his office, as it was his habit of polluting every decent woman he could. "As to Mrs. Cunningham, she was, no doubt, an intriguing widow, and got Burdell in her power so that he had to marry her, or abide by the result of a breach of promise suit, which was pending. To avoid this, Burdell privately married her (which was endeavored to be saddled on poor Eckel;) but the intention of Burdell was to but his prop erty out of his bands, and leave for Europe. which would leave Mrs. Cunningham to make the most she could of the private marriage. It was the 'bogus baby' business which centered all the public odium on Mrs. Cunning

"It was assumed by the public that if Mrs. Cunningham was guilty of the 'baby business' she was guilty of all; which is about as correct as the good old lady, 'the community,' ever reasons upon anything. The result was that John Eckel and Mrs. Cunningham were damned beyond redemption, while the true self satisfied avenger of his wife was compelled to keep behind the scenes, regretting he could not absolve the innocent, no less than the fact it was not in his power to have given his victim another stab.

Spirit of Jefferson

LOCAL MISCELLANY. Farewell Supper to B. F. Beall. Several prominent and influential citizens of our town determined to testify their appreciation of our late townsman, and editor of this paper, and their regret at his departure from our midst by tendering a complimentary supper. Accordingly an elegant entertainment was served up on the evening of the 7th instant by Mr. Gustav Brown, and the many friends of Mr. Beall met him by invitation, and extended to him their cordial sympathy and good wishes for his new enterprise in the far West, Mr. Ambrose Timberlake presided, and at his request in response to the first toast in honor of the guest, Daniel B. Lucas, Esq., expressed in a few brief remarks the kindly feelings of his fellow citizens there assembled to do the guest honor. We believe the whole community will echo the opinion announced by Mr. Lucas that "the Spirit of Jefferson had been conducted with signal ability and absolute independence, and had, under the conduct of our departing friend, secured a reputation second to that of no country journal in Virginia, or West Virginia." Mr. Beall responded in a few appropriate and feeling remarks, and said that he would take to the new duty assigned him the same energy and devotion to principle which it had been his aim to display in connection with the Spirit of Jifferson: and that he would carry with him, wherever his fortunes might carry him, the warmest recollection of his friends, and the land of his nativity. Among the guests were James W. Beller, the founder of the Spirit of Jefferson, and H. Nelson Gallaher, the remarkable editor of the Virginia Free Press, and both of these gentlemen contributed to the interest of the occasion by appropriate liable to indictment. When, however, a party toasts and happy remarks. The health of William II. Travers E.q., being drank, that and sends it by a messenger, it is not fully gentleman responded in some eloquent remarks fully endorsing the sentiments before expressed in reference to Mr. Beall's ability and fidelity, displayed in his conduct of the Spirit of Jefferson, Thomas C. Green, Esq. responded to a toast in honor of the lega profession, Dr. Mason to one in honor of the medical, and Messrs Strider, Sheetz, Me- For some years Mr. Beall was associated in Elroy and others added to the universal enjoy ment of the occasion by appropriate remarks.

FATAL ACCIDENT .- On Saturday evening last, our community was startled by the sudden and unexpected death of Miss JEANNETTE BEALL, daughter of Mrs. J. Y. and the late George B. Beall, Esq , a young lady universally esteemed and beloved by all who knew her. Miss Beall came to town on Friday afternoon, in company with her mother, in a small spring wagen, and in attempting to alight from the relicle at the crossing between the residence of N. S. White, Esq., and the store of Mr. A. W. Cramer, lost her foot ing and fell to the ground, her head striking the stone crossing. Mr. David Howell, Jr. and others went to her assistance, but she seemed but little injured at the time, and walked across the street to the store of Howell & Bro In a short time she began to complain of suffering in her head, and at the instance of Mr. Samuel Howell, accompanied him to his residence, where she received every care and attention, but continuing to grow worse, on Saturday morning she became unconscious, and at about seven o'clock in the evening expired. She had bursted a blood vessel of the brain. Her remains were interred in the Episcopal graveyard on Sab bath afternoon, her funeral being attended by a large concourse of our citizens.

THIEF CAUGHT .- About two weeks ago, Mr. John McIntyre, residing on the turnpike between Leetown and Kearneysville, missed one of his hogs, and a day or two afterwards finding its skin in the woods between his residence and that of a man named Stevens, who is an old penitentiary bird, concluded that it had fallen into his hands: On Tuesday last he procured a search warrant, and accompanied by Constable John W. Ware, proceeded to search Stevens'-house and in a short time found the slaughtered porker snugly packed away in the chimney. Stevens was rather belligeraut at first, but finally quieted down and surrendered, and was committed to juil at Shepherdstown.

RELIGIOUS .- The Four h Quarterly Meeting for Jefferson Circuit, M. E. Church, South, commenced in this place on Saturday week, and was protracted until Thursd y night last. The Presiding Elder, Rev W. S. Baird, was present and filled the pulpit on Saturday and Sabbath. During the latter part of the meeting the paster, Rev. J. W. Martinsburg, who preached several able and feeling sermons, several penitents presenting themselves at the alter of prayer.

An interesting Sacramental Meeting commenced in the Presbyterian Church on Friday, in which the pastor, Rev. A. C. Hopkins, was assisted by the Rev. Mr. Fitzgerald, of Cumberland, Md, who delivered a series of interesting and impressive discourses.

HARPER'S FERRY .- The purchasers of the government property at Harper's Ferry, says the Washington Star, claim that the Baltimore and Ohio Rullroad Company have no legal right to run their road through what was, until the recent sale, a government reservation. Permission to run their track through the Harper's Ferry property was given the Company by the Secretary of War, thirty years ago. It is claimed that this sale vitiates this permission.

BALTIMORE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.-We welcome to our exchange list the above paper, published weekly, Dr. Thos. E. Bond and Rev. R. A. Holland, editors. It is neat in typography, edited with ability, and with the name of Dr. Bond at its bead, will undoubtedly receive a large patronage.

DEPARTED .- On yesterday morning, about forty of our colored brethren took their departure from this place, enroute westward, to work on the Connellsville railroad.

CUMBERLAND VALLEY RAILROAD. TVe copy so much of the annual report of the President of this Company as is of special interest to the people of Jofferson and Clarke, He says:

"The resolutions of the Board to extend their road from Hagerstown to the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, have been already communi cated to you, and since August last the work was let to a contractor upon terms satisfactory, and he is now engaged in constructing it; the grading and making the road bed ready for erstructure will cost about $96,000, and he rails, ties, water stations, &c., about $90,-000, and we expect to have the same completed and in running order by the 1st of July next. This extension has been located to terminate at Powell's Bend of the Potomac River, with a branch to Williamsport, a distance of about two miles. But since this location, a movement has been made by the people of Virginia for a further extension of the road up through the Valley of their State, by the way of Martinsburg and Winchester, or by the way of Charlestown and the Luray Valley. Our pction, therefore, as to the terminus on the Potomac will be suspended a few weeks to meet this exigency, and until they shall have determined the route for the further extension of the road; for each of the proposed routes demands a different point of crossing the Potomac River"

IMPORTANT REVENUE DECISION .- Collector Brown, of this district, has received a communication from Commissioner Delano, in reply to a letter of the 3d instant, in which the commi sioner says, "that when a person draws a check on a bank, payable to bearer or order, and delivers it into the posession of a third party, such delivery is the issue, and the check should be stamped at that time. It could afterward be stamped validly by the collector alone. It would have no legal effect for bank officers to attach a stamp subsequently. Banks and other parties should be notified to this effect. If parties, after being notified, willfully violate the law they are draws a check on a bank in his own favor, issued until paid or accepted by the bank, and the bank officers may properly stamp it at the time of presentation to them."

THE LATE EDITOR OF THE SPIRIT .-Our friend and brother-editor of the Spirit of Jefferson has removed to a distant State. having given up his interest in that paper .fimately with us in this office-having taken re his first lessons in the "art preservative of arts." Afterward he assumed the conduct of the Spirit, and though as was only natural in two journals first politically opposed to each other, and since the war differing sometimes on minor local points, amenities were occasionally thrust aside by asperities, and we have now and then found it expedient to give each other right severe rubs, yet these exceptions only prove the general pleasant feeling existing between us, and the many years of friendly intercourse that have passed enhance our regret at his departure to a distant field of labor to which he carries our best wishes for his restoration to health and a long career of usefulness and prosperity.- Free Press.

MR. PEABODY-GEN. LEE.-We learn from the Sannton Spectator that the committee in charge of the obsequies of Gen. Peabody sent a formal invitation to Gen. R. E. Lee and the Trustees of Washington College to attend the funeral at Salem, Massachusetts. The Board of Trustees at a recent meeting formerly accepted the invitation and appointed as the delegation to represent the College, Gen. R. E. Lec. Col. Bolivar Christian, of Staunton, and Maj. T. J. Kirkpatrick, of Lynch-

Horse THIEF .- We learn from the Reg. ister that Henry Stewart, a colored man, was lodged in jul in Shepherdstown on Sunday evening, the 9th instant, charged with stealing a horse from Mr. G. II. Pendleton, near Summit Point in this county. It seems that Stewart took the horse to Maryland and sold him, and upon his return home was arrested. He was committed to jail by Justice J. F. Smith, of Middleway, to await his trial at our next Court.

NEWSPATER SPONGERS -- An exchange well says there are many persons who either take no paper at all, or else take one from another city, and when they wish to see what s transpiring in their own neighborhood they borrow the local paper from some citizen more liberal than themselves. Many men of this kind are engaged in business, and frequen grumble because people do not patron "home industry" when they practice the ve thing of which they complain.

AN EXPERIMENT .- From the Luray Co rier we take the following notice of a form citizen of Charlestown: Our townsman and enterprising citizen. M Joseph Crane, has planted fifteen pounds onion seed, which cost him sixty dollars, on three acre lot. - The seed have come up w Tongue, was assisted by Rev. Mr. Clark, of and look finely. We hope that Mr. Crane will succeed in the enterprise. The onion crop is a very profitable one, and we think the farming community would do well to keep an eye upon Mr. Crane's lot, and note the success hat shall attend his efforts.

> SETTLE UP .- By reference to a notice in our advertising columns, it will be found that Geo. W. Haines has been appointed Trustee, for the adjustment of all debts due Beni. F. Beall, prior to January 1st, 1870, for either, job work, subscription or advertising, and that said debts must be paid by the 1st of February next.

RED MEN'S CELEBRATION .- Seminole Tribe of Berryville design having a Torch. Light Procession, Dinner, &c. on the 24th instant. The Winchester Cornet Band has been engaged for the occasion.

STEEL PENS .- J. W. Randolph & English, 1318 Main street, Richmond, Va., deal in Steel Pens of every description. We have tried these pens, and can give them a cordial

The Winchester Sentinel says some day the rich products of Warren, Clarke and Jefferson will justify the construction of a road from the Manassas Road near Front Royal to Charlestown. We wonder !

- The Supreme Court will hear the argument on the Schoeppe case on the 7th of February.

$1,000 Reward is offered by the proor of Dr. Pierce'a Alt. Ext. or Golden dical Discovery for a medicine that will equal it in the cure of all diseases for which it is recommended. For Bronchitis, severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consuption, it has astonished the medical faculty by its wonderful cures, and hundreds of the best physicians pronounce it the greatest medical disovery of the age. While it cures the severest coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. For loss of appetite, indigestion, dyspepsia. "Liver complaint" or "Billiousness," and constipation of the bowels, it surpasses all other known medicines. Sold When everything else has failed, don't despair until you have tried Dr. Sage's Catarrh' Remedy. DECEASED. - The train which arrived here from the west, on Saturday last at noon, brought hither for intermnet the mortal remains of Mr. Josiah Colston, who died at Berkeley springs, his place of residence, on Thursday last. The burial took place at the Episcopal burying ground. Mr. Colston was born in Cambridge, Maryland, in 1794, and was well known in various parts of the United States from a long service in the navy. He had also resided many years in Washington; D. C. He was a man of amiable character. and his death, even at a ripe old age will be regretted by a large circle of friends. [Martinsburg Star.

FUNERAL -The funeral of Rev. Philip pscomb, a well known preacher of this county, whose death we noticed in our last issue, took place on Thursday, 6th instant, from the residence of his son in-law, residing near Druid. Hill. It was attended by a very large number of denominational and other friends of the deceased, the services being conducted by Rev. Messra: Rosenthal; Walker and Sargent, each of whom spoke feelingly of the deceased, and paid a high tribute to his Christian character and virtue. The remains were deposited in Mount Olivet cometery: [ Towsoutown (Md.) Union.

ACCIDENT .- On Tuesday morning last, while workmen were engaged in hoisting turrets into position upon the new Baptist church, on King street, the rope broke and the turret, weighing several hundred pounds, fell upon James W. Bland, a young man who was superintending the hoisting, crushing his right leg badly, and otherwise injuring him-He was removed to his home, and received proper surgical attention.

Martinsburg Star.

- A young man named, Richard Wright left Middletown, Frederick county, about noon on Saturday week, on some business matters at or near Cedarville. On his return, when about half a mile from Cedarville, his horse became unmanageable, and threw him; fracturing his skull, breaking the collar bone and the jaw bone, from which death ensued in a few minutes; so sudden and teribly fatal was the injury, that he never spoke a word

- The Schoeppe case is still under lively discussion in the German press of this country. The Philadelphia Freie Presse of Wednesday had a communication from three Germans in Carlisle, named Lewis Faber, T. Kramer, and P. Kaffenberger, stating that they knew Dr. Paul Schooppe, from Gelm: nv. and that there is no identity between him and the Berlin forger mentioned in Professor Gueist's letter.

BLIND. TOM .- This wonderful musical pro gidy will give a concert in Hagerstown this week. We hope he will revisit Charlestown Darsed bring - There are many ladies who would prefer to make their own and their children's dresses, but for the difficulty in cutting and fitting their properly-the ordinary charts being very high priced, and at the same time, so complicated as to be available only to professional dicesmakers; after long practice. An eminent modiste of Paris has recently issued "THE UNIVERSAL GUIDE IN DRESE-MAKING," which overcomes this difficulty entirely. It contains a superior mode of measuring, perfectly exact, yet so easy that it can be applied by any one in itself worth more than the price of the whole work. Also a complete scale of patterns for all sizes, from the largest adult to the smallest child. Together with printed Rules and Explanations, by means of which any lady can make her own and her children's dresses in the best style. To dressmakers it is invaluable. And the low price at which.

Three COLTS rising and a years old. it is offered (only ONE DOLLAR) places it within the reach of all.

It is for sale by J. WICKLIFFE. (Box 665,) Newark, New Jersey, sole agent for the United States. Sent by mail, post paid. In writing for it give | Bed your name, Yown. County, and State in full. December 21, 1869-1y.

A Standard History by Gen. Lee. A WORK OF NATIONAL AND PERMANENT

Memoirs of the War. BY GEN. HENRY LEE.

Thoroughly Revised and Annotated by GEN. ROBERT E. LEE. Who has added a Full Biography of his Father. One vol. octavo. 640 pages, with new Steel Por-traits of Gen. Henry Lee, Gen. Robert E. Lee, and Gen. Nathaniel Greepe; beautiful Steel En-gravings of "Marjon Crossing the Pedee," and the "Surrender of Gernwallis;" a Sketch of the Lee Homestead in Virginia; and five original Mana and Plans. Maps and Plans.

American Armies during the Revolutionary War, in he Southern Department of the United States, is the standard work on the subjet of which t treats; and th's edition, revised and corrected by Sen. Robert E. Lee. the distinguished son of the Author, is made doubly interesting and valuable by a complete Biography of His Father, prepared b It is a work whose value is permanent, for it re-lates to the foundation of this great nation, and details a history of which every American citizen is proud. While the history is chiefly of operations at the South, yet considerable space is devoted to Northern ovements and battles, thus giving the work a national value.

The historical value and interest of this excellent, The historical value and interest of this excellent history icake it a work which will be nurchased by all persons who buy books at all, while its thorough correction and revision by Gen. R. E. Lee, and the addition of his new biography, prepared by him from private and, personal naterists never before given to the public, give it greatly increased and peculiar interest. The fact that it is the only book now published, even in part from Gen. Lee's pen, gives it an interest possessed by no other work.

Among the new materials introduced in the biography, are important letters fem President Madography, are important letters f om President Madison, Gens Lafavette, Greene, and Hamilton, Goy.

Rutledge, and others; letters to Washington, Mad-ison, Gov Reed, Gen. Wayne, and others; and a most interesting series of letters to his eldest son, Charles Carter Lee, in which his advice and instruction in regard to his son's studies, reading, and general conduct, are fully given.

The Work is handsomely printed and bound;
the Steel Engravings and Lithographed Maps are engraved in the most artistic style; and no expense nor care have been spored in its preparation to make it worthy al ke of its subject and its author. THE BOOK IS SOLD-ONLY BY CANYAGEING AGENTS.
