JOHN G. RIDENOUR has this day withdrawn from the firm of Hough, Ridenour & Langdon, The business will hereafter be conducted under the name of HOUGH & LANGUON. In appealing to "common sense" whether any or what amount of usury may be allowed on money, it seems to me that the first question, with "common sense," would be what is money? and its first step, in the process of money, its nature, and its functions; and in doing so, particularly to inquire and lay down dogmatically, whether to the constitution of

This wont do. It is impossible, for even a bondholder, to be "pig and puppy" at the same time; and it is a poor rule that wont work both ways.

As to the material of which money should be made, I take it there has been no divine. revelation on the subject; and, accordingly, men have made money of cowries, tobacco, leather, paper, and many other articles, just as their convenience and circumstances prompted them to set up a standard by which their productions might be fairly and honestly. exchanged; so much labor for so much, and equivalent for equivalent. The substance of the exchange being production for production, and the medium of the exchange being a mere symbol, or in the language of Aristotle —who was the enemy of all usury—a "de-mand or pledge" agreed upon by society that he, who held it, might exchange it for anything he wanted. See Aristotle's Ethics, book 5th, cap. 5th. It matters not, then, what the material is, for the thing that constitutes money is the "agreement of society" that it shall be received for all products, and also for debts and taxes. The value of the money is a legal and conventional value, and is wholly dependent upon and inheres in the things of actual value for which it may be exchanged. Take away its value, acquired that "One of the Corps" tosses back, with so by the agreement of society, as a "demand or pledge" for things of actual value, and its replication who is replicated by a society of the corps to the corps of infantry, threw themselves uplicated by a six as ne uttered the wides, two isolated that "One of the Corps" tosses back, with so on the devoted band of dismounted troopers to Ord's body-guard, left their line at a full will surely be modified, if not wholly repealed," who stood between them and the heights of gallon and came thundering down upon him. exchanged. Take away its value, acquired money, would be worthless, even of gold and

Money, then, as instituted by the agreement of society, is simply a symbol, a pledge or demand of him who has it, that he shall have in exchange for it things of actual value, and that it shall be received for debts and taxes. This is money, its proper entirety, its nature and its functions. This is the whole agreement of society in regard to it. This is emphatically the "bond," and the Shylock who dares exact beyond its letter should hear ringing in his ears until they tingle-

"This bond doth give thee here no jot of blood;
The words expressly are a pound of flesh:
Take then thy bond, take thou thy pound of flesh:
But, in the cutting of it, if thou dost shed
One drop of Christian blood, thy lands and goods Are, by the laws of Venice, confiscate Unto the State of Venice."

and meant to give, only a legal value to money, and the "bond" for its institution. Society give, and meant to give, only a legal value to money—the value of being exchanged for things of actual value, and of being received for debta and taxes. But the Shylocks have construed the "bond" on the part of society as giving actual value to money, and as making it intrinsically equal in all respects to the valuable things it was designed to exchange and transfer the one for the other. For money does not pay for anything, but only by exchange makes one valuable thing pay for another. When the farmer or the laborer pays down on the counter a hundred dollars to his merchant, it is not the hundred dollars that, in fact, pays that amount, but the farmer's MB. EDITOR:

In regard to personalities, even of a harmless character, I agree with "One of the Corps," that it is best to dispense with them. I agree with him to drop them entirely.—And the more especially if the laudation, in my previous article, of Mr. Whipple, may induce him to read his pamphlet.

I know he will read it with pleasure, and find it no penance. Nor, will I insist upon it, for his conversion, that he shall read it three times—"ter pure lecto libello." If he, however, will not read it, I hope the Legislature of Maryland, and all similar bodies, will, before they meddle with a matter of so much importance.

But whether "One of the Corps" reads the "little book" or not, I find he agrees with Mr. Whipple, substantially, in his first proposition for the discussion of this subject. Mr. Whipple's first proposition regards the right of the public over money, and "One of the Corps" says that "society may forbid any and the none case, "no one would be hurt;" a "breatt could make them as a county of the county and the sequence of the county and county of the him merchant; It is not the hundred dollars that, in fact, pays that amount, but the farmer's wheat and coru, or other products, that it as not, pays that amount, but the farmer's wheat and coru, or other products, that it as not in power of the laborer. The money is only the medium of payment. But, the Shylocks would persuade you that the intrinsic and actual value is in the money, so meant it. Now, society which made money, so meant it. Now, society which made money, so meant it. Now, society could not so mean it, because it is not in power of society to give actual value to a thing that does not itself countin actual value. Our mipotence only could do this, and then by way of a miracle. To illustrate between legal and actual value that inheres in the mature of things and their usefulness, you have only to destroy, side by side, things of legal value as money, and cities, and could actual value is in the money, and cities of the labore. The mouey is be hurt;" a "breath could make them as a breath has made;" a little printing and en-graving would soon put all things to rights; but in the other case of actual values destroyed, there would be want and solitude, and de tion, where peace and plenty abounded before. This, I think, should teach the difference between things of actual value and things of legal value, between the productions and in accept his premises that, usury on money may, or may not, be allowed, according to the teachings and dictates of "experience and common sense," and we will "fight it out on that line," appealing to "common sense" first.

In appealing to "common sense" first.

in the reasoning to decide whether any, and what usury should be allowed on money, would be to contrast the effect of usury or no usury, limited or unlimited usury, in making money? and its first step, in the process of money answer the sole purpose for which it reasoning to come to an answer, to define was introduced and instituted, to wit, as a "labor-saving invention, authorized and regulated by government for the convenience of the people" in exchanging their productions.

For surely this was the purpose for which it was instituted, and by no means as a sort of "floating island" of Laputa, with gold, instead of the "load-stone," to hang it heavily over the heads—and ready to grind them to powder -of all the energies, industries, wealth and labor of the people. And to be controlled and managed by a crew of piratical gamblers and usurers, as was done in New York, in the infamous gold speculations of September last.

If money was only instituted as such a "convenience," and as a mere "pledge and demand" for things of value and to exchange money, it would all the better answer the and, without any cost to him, coins and stamps his bullion, and hands it back to him enhanced -for the "pious bondholders" who, to save by the character of money—a "demand for 7th of May the march of the Federals comand pledge of" all other property, and solely receivable for debts and taxes. I repeat, 'common sense" would say society had given so instituted should be used for the purpose of exchange solely, and not concentrated and perverted by non producing gamblers, to bring about financial convulsions and swallow up as an earthquake the labors and fortunes of the productive classes of men. The most limited usury is a perversion of the true use and character of money, and, forever, tends to distribute wealth with gross inequality; to make unfairly a few rich and many poor; and, in the true words of Lord Bacon, to bring "the treasure of a realm or State into few hands; for the usurer being at certainties, and the other at uncertainties, at the end of the game most of the money will be in the box, and ever a State flourisheth when wealth is more equally spread."

Believing all usury, whether in a metallic or paper currency, pernicious to the best in-terests of society, I don't hesitate to condemn it more in a paper or mixed currency, than in the metallic; and I will merely add, in regard ef the country. Statistics show the annual increase of the value of the property of this country to be three per cent. Interest should

In a word, to take a hint from the advice of the old philosopher to the pirates in the storm, when they called loudly on Jupiter: "Keep quiet; if Jupiter finds out you are here, he will sink the last man ot you."

PORTICAL. GERALD'S MILL.

At noon, at eve, at early dawn, Came pouring in great sacks of corn— And the miller tolled, and tolled it still, And told the toll at Gerald's Mitt.

Here justice, too, would oft invoke Th' majesty of the law when broke, And Squire H. and Justice Phil Would try the case at Gerald's Mill. Then Vulcan wiped his swarthy face And lounged across to hear the case—The dusty miller left his till, and both lorget his grist and mills.

But years have fied since then, also lead or priests have said full many a mass—The country lolk no more at will Discuss the crops at Gerald's Mill.

The well jed teams of former years Are now replaced with sorry steers; And worn out certs creep down the bill With scanty loads, to Gerald's Mill. The smith's good forge no longer rings. "The anvit chorus," Yulcan surge—And tho' th' store is standing still, No wares are sold at Gerald's Mill.

The miller, too, has changed since then— His form less round, his face more thin— And his voice you'll find both cracked and shrill Should you ask him aught of Gerald's Mill. At twilight hour half leaning o'er, He may be seen, just in the door— Musing upon the good and ill— The gain or loss at Gerald's Mill—

Whilom the Ta, through forest brown, And Standfield's everglades weeps down, Murmuring—sye, and ever well, Beneath the walls of Gerald's Mill. March, 28th, 1870.

We knew the enemy's infantry were ruarching in column through a piece of woods, and the object was to fire upon the head of the column as it debouched, to give the idea that their further advance would be contested and to compel them to develop a line of battle with skirmishers thrown out, &c. The desired effect was obtained: the head of the enemy's advance was scattered, and it was the major of the state with only with some difficulty a line of battle with skirmishers in front was formed to continue the advance. I was sitting on my horse near Breathed and directed him to withdraw his gun, but he was so much elated with his success that he begged to be allowed to give the enemy some more rounds. He fired until their line got so close that you could hear them calling out: "Surrender that gun you rebel son of a b—h." Breathed's own horse had just been shot. The cannoneers jumped on their horses, expecting of course the gun on their horses, expecting of course the gun-to be captured and retreated rapidly down the hill. Breathed was left alone. He limbered the gun up and jumped on the lead horse.—
It was shot from under him. Quick as lightning be drew his knife, out the leaders out of the harness and sprang on a swing horse. It was also shot from under him just as he was turning to get in the road. He then severed the harness of the swing horse, jumped upon one of the wheel horses and again made the desperate trial for life. The ground was open between the piece and the woods; the enemy had a full view of the exploit; and Breathed at last dashed off unharmed, almost miraculously escaping through a shower of bullets."

This timely act of daring helped to impede the march of the federals, and as every moment's delay at this particular juncture was of the last importance, its influence upon the ultimate issue of the campaign can scarcely be estimated. As it was, the advance of the enposition at the Court House, but a prigade of the first division of Longstreet's corps arrived in time to drive them out before their main body reached the ground. > Pierre Bonaparte and the Saddler's Daughter.

> One day when Prince Pierre Benapart was driving to the races, some part of the harness gave way. Fortunately a saddler's shop was close by; and while the broken harness was being repaired the Prince regaled himself with a glass of water and discovered how marvellously pretty was the saddler's daughter who served him and courtsied so modestly to his Royal Highness. True, he had seen beauty in its most artistic and cultivated forms. bewitching and dazzling enough to turn even a Prince's head a score of times. But this roadside flower captured the Prince with the strategy of loveliness, and his heart was left behind him as he rode on to the races. The Prince, like other men, found is difficult to live without a heart, and he was not long in winning that of the saddler's pretty daughter: The story can hardly be repeated too often, as what succeeded was so knightly and true, and withal so rare. The Prince decided to marry her, and so placed her at school, from which she emerged with the necessary acquired graces. She was quick and ant, and so extremely good-looking that, when Prince Pierre presented his wife to the Emperor, his Majesty was gracious enough to forget her origin, and received her cordially. It would finish beautifully to add that the Empress. imitated the Emperor in his reception of her. But alas! Eugenie, who is the most charming bigot in France, drew her robes about her in scorn at the presumption. But for all that the wife of Prince Pierre graces the court circles of Paris, or did until Auteuil, and the people take pride in her.

THE CHENOKEE ROSE,—The legend of the Cherokee Rose is as pretty as the flower itself.

An Indian chief, of the Seminole tribe, was taken prisoner by his enenmies, the Cherokees, and doomed to torture, but fell so seriously ill that it became necessary to wait for his restoration to health before committing him to the fire. And as he lay prestrated by disease in the cabin of the Cherokes warrior' the daughter of the latter, a young, dark faced maiden, was his nurse. She fell in love with the young chieftain, and, wishing to save his life, urg him to escape; but he would not do so unless she would flee with him. She consented.— Yet before she had gone far, impelled by soft regret at leaving home, she asked permi f her lover to return, for the purpose bearing away some memento of it. So retrac-ing her footsteps, she broke a sprig from the white rose which climbed up the poles of her father's tent, and, preserving it during her, flight through the wilderness, planted it by the door of her new home in the land of the Seminoles. And from that day this beautiful flower has always been known, between the capes of Florida and throughout the Southern States, by the name of the Cherokee rose.

SHE HAS NO MOTHER.-What a volume of sorrowful truth is comprised in that single utterance, "no mother!" We must go down the hard, rough path of life and become inured to care and sorrow in their sternest forms pefore we can take home to our own experience the dread reality no mother without a struggle and a tear. But when it is said of a frail young girl, just passing from childhood toward the life of a woman, how sad is the story summed up in that short sentence! Who shall now check the wayward fancies? Who shall now bear with the errors and failings of the motherless daughter? Let not the cup of sorrow be overfiwed by the harshness of your bearing, or your sympathizing coolness. Is she heedless of your doings? Is she forgetful of her duty? Is she careless of her move-ments? Remember, oh remember, she has no mother.

LIBERAL OFFER!

Wishing to conform to the Cash System as far as possible, we make the following proposition to our patrons:—All subscribers who, previous to the FIRST DAY OF APRIL NEXT, come forward and pay their subscriptions in advance, will be furnished with the Spirit of, Jefferson at TWO DOLLARS AND FIFTY CENTS, for the current year. In making this offer, we wish it to be distinctly understood that it will in no case apply to present subscribers who do not pay before that time. New subscribers will have the benefit of the same terms.

For the benefit of our distant subscribers, we will extend the above proposition until the FIRST DAY OF MAY.

JUDGE CHAPLINE.

In another column will be found a communication, written by a talented and popular citizen of Jefferson, refuting the charge made by "L," through this paper, against Judge Joseph A. Chapline, in regard to the action of the grand jury last fall, which charge was founded on a published letter of Edmund Chambers, Esq. Our correspondent, for whom we have the highest respect, we are sorry to see, seems to think that we have permitted our paper to be used as a medium of personal vituperation. The charges made against Judge Chapline we deemed, if true, of vital importance to the people of the whole county and a matter of public interest, and as such permitted them to enter our columns, aside from any personal malice whatever; and have no reason to suppose that "L," wrote his article with any such feeling, but simply as a public duty. We are glad however, that Judge C. has found so worthy a friend to defend him, and cordially give a place in our columns to his communication. As public journalists, we always aim to receive into our paper whatever may be of interest to the publie at large, and exclude all personal matters whatever, unless paid for as advertisements. At the same time, our columns are ever open to an honorable reply to anything contained therein. We aim for the right and the right only, and if we err it is underigned.

ELECTIONS IN VIRGINIA.

The registration will begin on the first Tuesday in May, and the registry will be then kept open for three days. Ten days previous to every election the registry will be opened again for two days for the purpose of amending and correcting the lists and adding to it the names of such persons not heretofore registered. On the fourth Thursday in May the elections for cities, towns and townships, will be held, but no election of county officers will be held till the first Tuesday after the first Monday in next November. The officers elected in May will not enter upon their offices till the 1st of July, and those elected in November not till the 1st of January following. No election of members of the General Assembly will take place till November of next year, and no election of Governor, Lieuteant-Governor, and Attoney General, until November, 1873.

NOT BAD FOR BOSTON.

Boston sentiment, whether political, social or theologic, rarely commends itself to our approval; but the following remarks of the Boston Advertiser, a thoroughly Republican journal, contains sound sense; and while they appear peculiarly to one class of Southern voters, they are of general interest to the

Furthermore, we hope that the vote of the blacks will be consolidated in favor of no party and of no section. There is great danse to the republic from this massing of votes on the line of nationality. We hear too much of the Irish vote, the German vote, and now we are to have the negro vote. In the case of some of the people which seek our shores there is unfortunately too much truth in the expression. We protest in advance against extending the mischevious classification to the enfranchised blacks. It ought to be understood that voters cast their ballots not as Irishmen, or Germans, or Frenchmen, or negroes, but as Americans Suffrage is not conferred in virtue of citizenship. We earnestly hope that each negro will vote according to his individual convictions, and not according to the demands of race or sections.

Last Spring the Republicans carried Morristown, New Jersey, by an average majority of seventy-nine. At the election which took place the other day fifty-four negroes voted with the Republicans, and the Democrats carried the town by an average majority of one hundred and seventy. The negroes came to the polls in the morning in procession, headed by a prominent Republican politician, who marched arm-in-arm with prominent negro. The result was such a feeling of disgust, such a revulsion of sentiment, that many Repulicans voted the Democratic ticket. As it was in Morristown, so it will be

Horrible Murders

Mother Cuts the Throaths of her Fou Children - Serious Wounding of her own Mother - Verdict of the Coroner's Jury.

An occurrence, unparalelled at least in this community for frightful and relentless blood-thirstiness, took place on yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock, at dwelling No. 99 on Central avenue, or Canal street, near Jefferson throat cut almost from ear to ear. Passing into the passage way, in the basement, a chid about two years old lay near the entrance, dead, from a frightful gash across the throat; proceeding on toword the yard, another child, about four years old, was lying across the doorway, beneath the back steps, with one of its feet engaged in a swing, also with its throat severed, and near by its body stood the mother, Mrs. Kate Marsh, with her hands dripping with blood. In the cellar of the house was dest son, James, eight years of age, with the hall, scale the stockade and so make their esthroat cut in like manner, was found in the cape. yard. The lady Mrs. Dwyer, the mother of the wretched woman Mrs. Marsh, received at once the attention of a physician, and lies now in a most precarious condition.

From the testimony given by various witbefore the tragedy and borrowed a butcherknife, with a blade about twelve inches in length, from the provision store of Mr. Bell, on the corner, saying that she desired to cut School No. 13, where, having requested her son James' presence in the yard, she assaulted him by cutting his throat. Thence she returned to her own dwelling, and, first attacking her mother, who was engaged in sewing, went on subsequently with her work of destruction upon her remaining children, as above described. The knife was found in the basement room looking upon the yard, and was covered with blood.

Sergent Heard, upon entering the room, in which the woman stood near the body of the child whose foot was in the swing, immediately took hold of her, At that time she appeared to be in a state of excitement, and exclaimed that her children were "now in with the crowd in the event of success. Heaven." But subsequently, on her way to the station house, she appears to have spoken all the others are secure and Moundsville has rationally about the affair, calmly admitting her guilt, stating that she was sorry for it. and would recall it if able, and alleging great suffering and trouble in her family relations. There was no evidence of her having used intoxicating drinks at any time previous to, or at the time of the murders.

The verdict of the Coroner's jury was that the four children named had come to their deaths through a knife in the hands of their mother, Mrs Kate Marsh. The husband of the woman, William Marsh, was a barber, who carried on business in this city for several years, and abandoned his wife about one year ago. It was never noted that their material relations were more ordinarily disturbed, while since her desertion she has been living with her parents at the house on Central avenue. It is said she has been living with her parents at the house on Central avenue. It is said she was in great distress at being thus dependent on her family and at being unable to obtain work, which she had sought in vain. She is about thirty-two years of age. She was taken to the City Jail, from the Eastern Police Station, last night about half-past eight o'clock, in charge of Chief Detective Wm. C. Corn and Captain Kennedy, appearing to feel keenly the terrible reality of her position. 'The names and ages of her children were as follows: James, aged eight years; William, aged six years; Mary Jane, aged four years, and Georgie, about two years old.

Drs. Yates and Badford are in attendance upon Mrs. Dwyer, aged fifty three, and entertain scant hopes of her recovery. [Baltimore Gazette, April 22.

Good Examples.

Speaking of the recent meeting of the So ciety of the Army of the Potomac, and of other organizations of a similar character, the Baltimore Statesman says:

"The efforts to make eternal the glorification of the North over the South, may be very wise and dignified, but we think one day will be regretted. In the midst of the American Revolution there was a resolution of thanks offered by Mr. Coke in the British House of Commons to Lord Cornwallis for a 'victory over the rebels" at Camden, but onmetion of Lord North the words "over the rebels" were left out, as likely to provoke too much altercation. Alderman Wilkes then bjected to the whole resolution, declaring that it was "unwise to return thanks to of ficers for achievements during a civil war.' and adding, "There was not an instance in the history of Rome granting a triumph in honor of any of her generals, for victories obtained in time of civil commotion." What a contrast to our bogus Rome!"

The animosities of civil war seems to take deeper root in the northern mind that those of foreign. No such associations followed upon the war of 1812 or that of 1846.

In Rhode Island it has been the law for years that no man could vote who did not own real estate to the value of $134. Under that provision many poor men were disfranchised. Since the adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment a number of white men have resolved to test the validity of the proscriptive property law. They want to see whether a poor white man in Rhode Island is not as good as a negro is elsewhere.

YERGER ADMITTED TO BAIL. - Jackson, April 19 .- E. M. Yerger was brought before Chief Instice Shackleford of the Sunrem ship canal via the San Juan river and the Court of Mississippi, to-day, on a writ of habeas corpus, and released on a recognizance of $15,000. The evidence taken before the Milit ry Commission for the prosecution was read and submitted without argument. The judge referred to the fact that the finding of the Commission was not approved by the President of the United States, inasmuch as no execution of the sentence of that Commission had been carried out. The evidence was conflicting on some points, and does not warrant the crime of murder. It is evident the crime was committed in the heat of passion, and therefore the case is bailable. Judge Shackleford is an appointee of General Ames. Yerger went to his residence in a carriage the same individuals who recently stole the unattended after his release. Any amount thrust upon them.

The entire plan was known to Colonel Curtis, and he made his arrangements accordingly. He expected that the intention of the convicts to obtain possession of the gate and burn the prison records would be made as soon as they overcame their guards, and he posted his force so as to shoot most of the ringleaders as they made their rush, but the convicts had laid their plans well, and attempted to delay the movement until after dark. This compelled Colonel Curtis to make the attack on them while they were in the hall instead of waiting for them to get out into the yard. Wheeling Register.

For the Spirit & Jefferson 1 Messrs, Editors: - In your Jue of March 22d, your correspondent "L." his done Judge Joseph A. Chapline signal and undeniable injustice. The charge preferred by your correspondent against the Judge, that the grand jury reported to him that it was almost unanimous in the finding of indictments against certain parties mentioned in the communication of "L." who discharged them before they finished their work. 'abruptly on purpose," is wrong. The facts are in controvention of the statements made by your correspondent, on the authority of Edmund Chambers, that Judge Chapline had official information from the grand jury that they were engaged in any "special work," but the grand jury, as is usual, after the completion of their labors came ve intarily into court, and announced that to y had completer their work, and upon the annunciation the Judge, as he was bound to for discharged them. It was not done "abru ly," and with any "purpose," but the grand pury on that oc-casion was discharged in the ordinary and usual manner. It is much to be lamented, Messrs. Editors, that your paper should be selected as the medium of personal vituperation. It impairs the usefulness and influence of your paper, while great injustice, for the time being at least, is done to the parties as sailed. SPECIAL NOTICES.

Occupational Ailments. Fresh, pure air is a vitalizing elixir. Whoever is debarred by circumstances from unrestricted access to this invisible, but powerful stimulant, needs a medicinal invigurant of some kind. The great object should be to choose the best. Popularity is a pretty good guarantee of merit in this scrutinizing and intelligentage, and tried by this criterion Hostetter's Stomach Bitters stands first among the invigorating and regulating medicines of the present day. To the wants of persons engaged in indoor employments, especially in crowded factories where even with the best possible ventilation the atmosphere is always in some degree polluted, this salutious vegetable tonic is peculiarly adapted. The nature of the ingredients is no mystery. It conntispasmodic.
The baleful effect which air that has been par-The baleful iffect which air that has been partially exhausted of its oxygen by frequent breathing produces on the vital organization, is notorious, and when to this devitalized atmosphere is superadded the mephitic vapor of botair furnaces, it becomes deleterious and depressing in the extreme.—To enable the system to bear up, even for a few hours each day against the debilitating influence of a vitiated atmosphere, a wholesome tonic and alterative is urgently required. This grand desideratum is supplied in flostetter's Bitters, which as a strength-sustaining, health-projecting agent beans rival either among officinal or advertised medicines.

THE MARSH HARVESTER IMPROVED FOR 1870.

THE undersigned has secured the agency for th Celebrated machine, and offers it to the public on the most liberal terms. Those wishing to procure one will do well to apply early, as the deusand is larger than the supply THE MARSH HARVESTER

Saves one-half the expense of binding and one man raking of.

It saves the board and wages of three men,
It saves walking and stooping in the hot sun; and your fingers are not torn with stubble.

It saves in repairs, being strongly built, and simple in construction.

It saves its cost, by enabling the farmer to secure his harvest in good season, independent of expensive and uncertain help.

It saves the cost of itself, in labor, in harvesting

It saves at least one bushel of grain per agre over other machines.

No gang of men to heard or wait upon.

There are many other advantages, in addition to the above, which the Marsh Harvester possesses over any other machine, and Farmers will de well to give it a thorough examination, and decide upon its merits accordingly. At Prompt attention will be given to communi-Cations addressed to the undersigned.

BALTIMORE CARDS.—The attention of merchants and others, is directed to the cards minister that I am not to suffer death on of Baltimore business houses, to be found in this issue of the Spirit :-

Wm. Knabe & Co., No. 850 West Baltimore street, have one of the finest Piano manufactories in the country, and are also agents for Carhart & Needbam's celebrated Parlor Organs and Church Harmoniums, all of which will be found to be of the finest quality.

Cortlan & Co., 216 and 218 Baltimore street, importers, jobbers and retailers of French China Ware, &c., have one of the largest houses in the city, and offer superior inducements.

The Baltimore Business College, under the management of Messrs. Bryant, Stralton & Sadler, is one of the first institutions of the kind in this country, and offers to our young men a rare opportunity of securing a good business education at a nominal cost. Parties wishing to attend this institution will find it to their advantage to give us a call before CONFEDERATE DEAD .- We have received a circular from the Hollywood Memorial Association, of Richmond, calling upon the people of the South for funds with which to remove the Confederate dead from the battlefield of Gettysburg to Richmond. It is, however, too late for publication this week, but will be given in our next. At the same time we have been called upon for the list of the dead at Gettysburg, published in the Spirit about the latter part of the year 1865. If any of our friends have copies containing this of the disaster to secure the treasure and li-t, they will confer a favor, and aid a noble cause by sending them to us. They were published in several numbers of the paper.

INTERESTING BOOKS .- "The Life of Christ and the Lives and Sufferings of the Holy Erangelists and Apostles," by Rev. John Fleetwood, D. D. Walks and Words of Jesus, Judge Chapline, presiding, and the following -a Paragraph Harmony of the Four Evangelists," by Rev. M. N. Olmstead.

Master Samuel J. Cramer having obtained the Agency for this county for the sale of the above works, he is now canvassing this locality for subscribers, and we hope will meet with abundant success. From a partial examination, we believe them to be excellent books, and worthy a place in every library.

SUMMIT POINT .- The Senior made a flying wisit to Summit Point yesterday, and found our old friend Hilleary, as well as his associates in business, Messrs. Willson and Johnson, busy as bees, and as clever and accommodating as ever. This firm is one of the best in the county, and we wish them that success which they so well deserve.

Clarke has been assigned by the legislature a vouthful, but accomplished and promising judge. Speaking of Mr. White's election, the editor of the Fredericksburg Herald, a member of the legislature, writes :

"The last named will be recognized as the youngest son of the late Wm. H. White of Fredericksburg. The old town has given birth to many noble, and gifted men; for purity of character and devotion to principle, Edward White will rank as the peer of any who have gone forth from her bosom."

SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY .- The Sunday School of Zion Episcopal Church of this place held their annual Celebration, or Easter Offering, on Sabbath afternoon. The celebration was well attended and the exercises of a very interesting character.

PERSONAL .- Our old friend Joseph C. Rawlins, Esq., of Rome, Ga., a native of this place, is now on a visit to this county, and gave us a call on Saturday last, Mr. R. is hale and hearty, and looking as well as ever.

EDITORIAL VISIT .- Last week we received a call from Mr. F. Execution of Andrew Leopold.

From the Shepherdstown Register we copy the following affectionate letter, written by Andrew T. Leopold, of Washington county, Md., to his mother, a few days previous to his ecution at Fort McHenry, by the Government at Washington City, upon the charges of being a Confederate spy and murderer.— His remains were afterwards interred in the soldier's pemetery at Shepherdstown. The letter was written in peneil mark upon the fly leaf of a book entitled "Glimpses of Heaven," sented him by a minister :-"A. T. Leopold derives a great deal of con-olence from this little book. I hope it may be sent to my mother. Any one who will sand this to my mother will confer a lasting favor upon a lover of religion, and all that is good. She resides near Sharpsburg, Washington county, Md.

A. T. LEGPOLE.

My Dear, Kind and Loving Mother-It is with the deepest sorrow that your humble son has to report to you the sad news of my unfortunate and much unexpected fate which is doomed for me by man, but be of good cheer. I have good grounds to think and hope that I go to a better world, for I have east myself on the mercies of our God, and look to the Cross of His Son Jesus Christ who died upon the Cross that we might have everlasting life by believing on him. I hope to meet you and my two sisters in that bright land where sin and trouble are no more.-My fate is that of a felon, but I know not the day of execution. Loss of the Golden City .- The Call of yesterday, in speaking of this disaster, says | mouth. "Golden Fleece," and the steamers "Golden Gate" and "Golden City." The resolutions subscribed by the passengers of that ill-fated steamer, praise the conduct of some of the officers, and severely criticise the actions of others. Among those who are said to have performed their duties in a brave and fearless manner, was the Surgeon of the ship. Dr. N. A. Ware. This officer is a young man, and we believe the present is his first ocean voyage; yet he is said to have stood by his post with the fearless determination of a veteran seaman. Dr. Ware is a young physician of more than ordinary attainments; a perfect gentleman, and consequently a fearless man. As an evidence of the appreciation in which he is held. we may mention that he was left at the scene baggage. O! for one hour of happiness
Such as I felt when love's deep spell
Was woven first around they heart,
Ere from its shrine they fool felt,
But now, slas! a fearful doom
Of wretchedness, and woe, and fear,
Is mine—the fate to watch and pray,
With aching heart and bitter tears.

I listen to the ceaseless stroke
Which marks the weary-hours go by,
And start and tremble at the sound
Of e'en the night wind's gratte sigh.
I rate upon my children fair,
And listen to their law, soft breath;
I'll, in my broken beart's despair,
I almost wish their sleep were death.

A blight upon the drunkard's child;
Rests ever, from life's opening morn;
O' must my loved ones feel the sting
Of the world's cold, unfeeling scorn?
Dear Savior! thou, whose soul bath felt
Deep sorrow's fearful agony.
O! fill my weary, fainting heart
With strength that only comes from thes.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A Most SINGULAR CASE.—For several years past a Mrs. Michaux has lived in a house on Main street, between Trees. on Main street between Twenty-second and.
Twenty-third streets, with no one else but a brother, who has been for years a harmless lunatic. Nothing has been seen of them for several days until Sonday morning, when the chimney of an adjoining house caught fire, and in the excitement a negro man ran in the house to give the alarm. He found, on entering the chamber, Mrs. Michaux on the bed, dead, her brother lying, beside her almost starved to death. On being interrogated he said his sister had been asleep for two weeks. She had evidently been dead for sometime, although there was no decomposition of the body, which appeared to be almost mummified. H is hardly probable that she starved to death, as $18 in United States currency was found in the bouse. Two calves in the yard and several phickers had died of starvation. She was about fifty years of age, and is said to have been very excentric, and to have had no inter-course with those around her. The brother was taken to the station-house to be taken care of and the coroner notified of the death of the old lady .- Richmond Enquirer.

NAPOLEAN'S SECRET .- The Emperor of France has made Paris the resort of the wealthy from all Europe, millions of whose money are brought from other countries and capitals to enrich that. What is the secret? Broad, beautiful streets, so paved that riding is a pleasure, and because so paved, such a saving that carriage hire is cheap; beautiful gardens and public grounds; many of these streets, gardens and grounds made by almost innumerable gas jets, more brilliant at night than day; fine hotels, large first class houses, fitted with apartment for famalies; convenient bakeries and cookeries; public amusements; streets safe at all hours of day and night; carriages so regulated that strangers are protected; busses never permit to take more than they can seat; physicians' prescriptions required to be written in the language of the country; quacks not allowed to practice, and the sale of their medicines prohibited.

DECIDEDLY NON-COMMITTAL.-Old Lady-"Can you tell me, my good man, where I can find Mr. Jones?" Pat-"Sure, ma'am, I expect it would be at his house ye would find him." Lady-"Does he live anywhere in the street here?" Pat-"Sure, no, indade; it's not for the likes of him to be living in the street at all." Lady-"You stupid fellow, I mean what number does his family stop at?" Pat-"Now, ma'am, you have me; he has six boys and four girls already, but whether he manes to stop at that number-" Lady-"O, you blockhead!" [Exit Old Lady in a tremor of indignation.]

A Touching Incident .- A poor little newsboy, while attempting to jump from a city car the other day, fell beneath the car, and was fearfully mangled. As soon as the child could speak, he called piteously for his mother, and a messenger was at once sent to bring her to him. When the bereaved woman arrived, she hung over the dying boy in an agony of grief. "Mother," whispered he, with painful offort, "I sold four newspapers-and the money is in my pocket." With the hand of death upon his brow, the last thought of the suffering child was for the poor, hard-working mother, whose burdens he was striving to lighten when he lost his life. .

A TURKISH PARABLE .- "Every man," said the dervish, "has two angels, one on this right shoulder, and one on his left. When he does anything good, the angel on the right shoulder writes it down and seals it, because what has been well done is done forever. When be does evil the angel on the left writes it down and he waits till midnight. If before that time the man bows his head, and exclaims-,Gracious Allah! I have sinned : forgive me!" the angel rubs out the record; but if not, at midnight he seals it, and the beloved angel on the right shoulder weeps."

A BLUEBEARD .- Everything has its ludicrous point of view, and funny incidents occur even on such grave occasions as funerals. A certain Bluebeard of this latitude, evercome by his sensibilities, fainted at the grave of his fourth spouse.
