The Burning of the Richmond Theatre.
The Great Calamity of 1811.

In connection with the sad tragedy, which has just occurred in Richmond, we extract from "Richmond in Bygone Days" the following account of the burning of the Theatre in that city in 1811. By which a large number of persons lost their lives.

There should be something done with the remains of the Southern soldiers, who were buried in the battle field of Gettysburg.

By correspondence and other means, it has been brought to the attention of the Hollywood Memorial Association of Richmond, that over three hundred of the Southern soldiers are buried in the battle field of Gettysburg.

Gettysburg, Pa., President of the National Cemetery Company, says in a letter to General Fitzhugh Lee: "There has never been any action by the Board of Managers of the Soldiers' National Cemetery Company here in reference to the disposition of the remains of the Southern soldiers lying on its battle-field. Neither the Association contemplated. The charges of the Association provides only for the remains of those who fell in defence of the Union."

There should be something done with the remains of the Southern soldiers. There are about six hundred marked graves, and these are fast becoming obliterated. Their names might be preserved, and the remains gathered together, into a cemetery or burial ground, if any one would take the matter in hand."

Their translated chief, General R. E. Lee, whom they followed, and fighting under whose leadership they fell, approves the plan of removing their bodies to our own soil.

The Hollywood Memorial Association have the disposition to undertake this work, but do not possess the ability, unless generously aided by friends throughout the South. They offer for ample ground, in their cemetery, and also the aid of their association, to prosecute the work, should it be found practicable to remove the bodies to Gettysburg.

To accomplish this purpose, means must be raised by the earnest efforts of the survivors of the Confederate army, the widows, the sisters, and fathers, and brothers, and friends of the slain. Every Southern State has representatives at Gettysburg: Will not active men and women, in every city and town, and county, at once volunteer to collect and send contributions?

Mrs. Geo. W. Randolph, R. E. Lee, Mrs. J. L. M. Curry.

Communications and remittances may be sent to Mrs. G. W. Randolph, 408 Grace Street, Richmond, Virginia.

Southern papers are respectfully requested to copy this appeal at once, and urge its claims upon the generous public.

Startling Discoveries.

In the "Art and Science" summary of the Old Guard, for May, we have a rather startling account of recent discoveries by M. Bechamp, and another scientific Frenchman, of the nature of blood in man and the milk-giving animals. They have demonstrated by a series of experiments that the blood globules, instead of being, as hitherto supposed, very small, are really little microcosms—infinitesimally small animals—of whom there are thus countless myriads running through our arteries and veins; that these develop into bacteria, and other minute animal forms, and that they are in the nature of true ferments. They seem to make their ground very clear, but the editor of the Old Guard, in giving some experiments by Pasteur, who, by adding water to cultured milk, has speedily generated bacteria, puts the pertinent query: "What is the specific difference between these and the Bacteria, into which, according to the observations of M. Bechamp, the microcosms of the blood globules, develop under certain circumstances?" Followed by one still more significant: "Do these microcosms exist in living blood?" We are very much personally obliged to Dr. English for the suggestion contained in those queries. It would be very unpleasant to think that we are kept alive solely because countless millions of little wiggle-tailed fellows are running races day and night through our bodies. We breathe freer when the suggestion is made that these fellows come through fermentation, when the blood has left our bodies. For all the horrors of trichina, and all that are nothing to the horror that M. Bechamp and his comrade have effected before us.

A CATASTROPHE ADVERTISED.—At the Paris Opera House, the other night, the inflammable scenery took fire. The managers alarmed the firemen, who promptly turned their hoses on the fire. At the same time the manager said: "A fine for the first person who remains still." Five francs for each one remaining still." Nobody stirred. The ballet dancers stoically allowed themselves to be deluged by the water which poured from the scenery. If one of those poor creatures caught light, or a single operator in the house had guessed what was going on behind the scenes the result would have been most disastrous, and the victims numerous. The coolness and presence of mind of the manager prevented a terrible catastrophe. The ballet dancers earned their five francs bravely. It was remarked in the house, with some surprise, that it rained heavily on the stage, but it was raining water on the floor, and the manager was raging with the chorus and supernumeraries were so calm and immovable. The act was almost finished, and by the time it came to a conclusion the fire was extinguished.

The Hollow-Horn in cattle, it is said may be cured by the following prescription: Take two tablespoonfuls of ground mustard (the finer the better), mix with sharp vinegar until the mustard is thick as sweet cream, and put half in each ear, working it as far up the ear as can conveniently be done. If the animal does not eat in three hours, give another dose. An Ohio farmer says: "I have used the above twenty-five years, and have to lose the first animal yet!"

Mr. Wm. Bodell has shown us a three-legged chicken, which he found this week. It is a curiosity, and would not fit the philosopher's definition of a man, at all. There are a good many "queer chickens" nowadays.—Shenandoah Valley.

At the last term of Ranoka county Court, an order was passed for taking the sense of the voters, on the 4th Thursday in May, on the question of a subscription of $200,000 by the county, to the capital stock of the Valley Railroad.

The prospect for a splendid crop of wheat in the Valley, was never better than it is at present. Everywhere the prospect is cheering. [Rockingham Register.]

Bless God for what you have, and trust him for what you want.
