ON HEALTH.

From the Journal of Health.

Summer diseases.—When a man arrives at the age of forty, if he possess but ordinary powers of observation, he knows pretty well how to take care of his health—he is able to lay down rules for himself, and will tell you how, when, or where he has been able to avoid or remedy an attack of fever or inflammation and prostration, along with a majority of males and females, who run into different kinds of excesses—they are still liable to a recurrence of sickness in various forms during the hot months; to dyspepsia, sick head aches, colic, and many other aches and pains, without any benefit from their own experience, or the advice of the more circumspect and cautious.

One of the golden rules in preserving health, or preventing diseases in summer, is TO ABSTAIN.

The stomach is the organ, the very furnace in which bilious disorders are generated. It more frequently happens that these complaints are induced by the quantity than the quality of articles eaten. Repletion or surfeiting, system, order, prudence must be our guides, and we may give the disease the dog-star. The health of many an invalid has been established by a punctilious attention to regimen: on the other hand, many a healthy man has been transformed into a splenetic, dyspeptic, meagre, jaundiced skeleton, by giving his appetite improper license, and by contemning the simplest suggestions about abstemiousness.

DISTERTY.—Receipt for curing the Distenter or Summer Complaint, in its mildest or worst stages.—Take two glasses of sweet oil—two glasses W. I. Molasses—two glasses W. I. rum—immerse them well together over a fire till it becomes the thickness of honey, so that the oil may not separate from the rest. While on the fire keep it well stirred, and when taken off continue the same till it is cold. Then the patient, if a grown person, should take a spoonful once an hour, till he finds the disease abating, then once in two hours, or as the judgment may suggest, until cured. Children to take it in like manner in proportion to their ages. The person who handles this for publication, is moved by none other than a humane motive. He has experienced cures in his own family, and knows many others of the same kind. It is a simple medicine, and not the least injurious to a delicate constitution. Let those who are afflicted, try the experiment—it will do no harm, and certainly save life. Let those who may read this cut it out of the paper and carefully preserve it.

The King.

None of the papers indulge any hopes of a favorable change in His Majesty's disorder. The London Traveller of the 31st says, "We regret to state that our private information is any thing but consolatory."

His appetite has in a great measure failed him, and he has been principally supported by port wine and water.

On one occasion he insisted, contrary to advice, upon eating some roast beef, which aggravated his sufferings. The Windsor Express of the 29th says:

The legs of the royal patient are repeatedly operated upon by M. Brodie, the surgeon, but latterly with not so much good effect. It is understood that setons have been tried, and a very profuse discharge has taken place from the parts affected. The measure of nominating a commission to exercise the functions of His Majesty in scoring the sign manual, was rendered imperative, owing to the great inconvenience experienced in several departments, through the accumulation of instruments, the completion of which was urgently called for. In many instances papers had been waiting for the royal signature for near two years.

Two public offices had each 5000 documents ready for signature. The whole of these would, in the event of the demise of the King, have been useless, and considerable expense and inconvenience must have been incurred.

A similar measure to that now proposed was, we have heard, two years ago proposed to His Majesty by the Ministers, but the King refused his assent.

As a proof, however, that the King must have exerted himself, at some personal inconvenience, to affix his signature, the writing to some of the papers signed by him recently, could scarcely be recognized as that of his Majesty.

The John Bull newspaper states that the Duchess of Clarence, who is thirty-eight years of age, is about to add to the royal family an heir apparent. The authority, however, does not command much credit.

It is said that his majesty has expressed a wish that the Princess Victoria should assume the name of Elizabeth, and that his desire will probably be complied with.

This Princess, on whom the crown of Great Britain will devolve in case of the decease in her life time of the present king and the duke of Clarence, was born in May, 1819, and her father the duke of Kent died in the January following. The London Court Journal says, that she is accomplished in a degree quite extraordinary for her age.

She speaks with fluency and elegance nearly all the modern European languages; is a very fair proficient in Latin, and has made considerable progress in the mathematics. She is also an excellent musician, and assists at the private concerts that are given almost nightly at the palace, at Kensington, where she resides.

On the 30th of May Mr. Brougham presented a petition to the House of Commons, praying for the abolition of capital punishment in all cases of felony. It was a petition signed by bankers, and by bankers only, of no fewer than 214 cities and towns of the United Kingdom. The signatures consisted of the names of 223 banking firms, 36 joint stock banking companies, and 302 individual bankers—being in all 771 signatures. This shows, beyond all question, how decided the bankers in general, throughout the nation are convinced of the ineffacy of the existing law, and how much they hold in abhorrence those periodical sacrifices of human life, which, under the pretence of especially protecting their property, exhibit only the sad spectacle of human blood unprofitably wasted.

will be before the people. We wish the master had not stirred so early.

Nomination for the Presidency.—At a public meeting in Jessamine County, Kentucky, on the 21st inst., after san-dry resolutions on the present state of public affairs, the following was agreed to:

Resolved. That our distinguished fellow-citizen, HENRY CLAY, the firm and tried friend of internal improvements, of the tariff, and the great interests of the whole country—the firm patriot and statesman—be recommended to the support of the people, as the successor of Gen. Jackson to the Presidential Chair; and that a committee of twenty persons, for Jessamine County, be appointed, for the purpose of promoting his election, by co-operating with his friends in other counties and States; the chairman of this meeting to be one of said committee, and to appoint the remainder of the number; the committee to have power to fill vacancies from time to time.

On the 26th of the same month, at a large and respectable meeting of the citizens of Bourbon County, in the same State, the following was adopted among other resolutions:

Resolved. That we highly approve of the proceedings of the people of Jessamine county in nominating our distinguished fellow-citizen, HENRY CLAY, as the successor of Gen.
Jackson in the Presidential Chair; and that we most cordially unite in recommending him to the choice of our fellow-citizens of the United States at the next Presidential election.
They know him as the undoubted friend and able supporter of internal improvements, of domestic manufactures, of the Union of the States, and of the pure spirit of our institutions. His name is identified with the prosperity of his country, and with the cause of Liberty in both hemispheres. His principles are the principles of the American people. His merits stand upon the archives of the nation, and is an imperishable record of the monuments of freedom."

listened to with absorbed attention, and is spoken of as an extraordinary production. The thirteenth regular toast given at the dinner was—"The States—HENRY CLAY." Such a nation merits such a President." The Orator of the day had said, "Let the name of HENRY CLAY be heard from beyond expression of feeling when the toast to respond, in fact, to the call.

Thus, the motion made by the People of Kentucky has been seconded by the People of Rhode Island, and in little more than two years will be put

8th. Carbuncles or parts affected by frost.

TO THE PUBLIC.

The following communication, addressed to the proprietor of Judkins' Ointment, from the subscriber, will be of interest to him.

It is highly interesting. The gratuitous manner in which it is made, exhibits feelings of no ordinary character towards suffering humanity; and is certainly well deserving of public attention.

WASHINGTON, JAN. 22d, 1830.

Sir.—It has been my wish for a considerable time, to communicate to you the good effect with which I have used the Ointment invented by Mr. Judkins, and which I now understand is made and sold by agents appointed by yourself. I have applied this ointment during the last three years, to every species of tumour and wound, without failure to produce a cure in every instance. I consider it the most decided and efficient remedy in all cases of tumour, by the cause what it may, and I have found nothing so good for wounds of any description. It is proper to add that the cure is instantaneous. "White Swelling," given over by the most distinguished physicians as incurable, and which have been so, would, without any difficulty, be cured if the patient was under the treatment of Judkins' Ointment. I mention these two cases, which fell under my immediate notice and management, as a decided evidence of the efficacy of this remedy in cases of tumour and of ulcers. Have experiences as decided, the good effect of this remedy in the cure of Felons, and of every species of fresh wound. It seems to me that any one who will observe the operation of this Ointment, must be satisfied as to its beneficial effect. I can with the utmost confidence recommend the use of this valuable remedy.

I am, sir, very respectfully,

JOHN TALIAFERRO.

To Mr. CHARLES HERSTON, Proprietor of Judkins' Ointment, near Fredericksburg, Maryland.

MOUNTAIN GATE, Frederick co. Va.

To CHARLES HERSTON.—Desire it is a duty which I owe to my fellow beings, to inform them of the good qualities which your most valuable ointment (Judkins') possesses.

In the early part of last fall, I, in my trade, in removing some blisters which I had on my hands, and which were very painful, and which I could not remove, applied this ointment, and which I have since used ever since, and which has been of great service to me.

It seems to me that any one who will observe the operation of this Ointment, must be satisfied as to its beneficial effect.

I can with the utmost confidence recommend the use of this valuable remedy.
