STANZAS. By James G. B Life bath its stoahine; but the car Which flashes on its stormy ware, is but the beacon of decay; A meteor glearning o'er the grave; And though its dawning hour is bright, With fancy's gayest solouring, With fancy's gayest solouring, is done its sloud encumbered night I have ruin days its rasen wing.

Life hath its pang of deepest thrill,

Thy sting, refentless memory? Vhich wakes not, pierces not, until. The hour of joy has ecaled to be; then when the heart is in its pall, And cold affections gather o'er, Thy mournful suthem dath reeal

Bliss which hath died to bloom no more,

Life hath its bleasings, but the storm Sweeps like the desert wind in wrath, To sear and blight the loveliest form That sports owearth's deceiful path. Oh! soon the wild heart-broken wall, So changed from youth's delightful tone, Floats mournfally-upon the gale, When all is desolate and love.

Life hath its hope; a fleeting dream, A.conkered flower, a setting sun, Which casts a transitory gleam Upon the even clouds of dum. Pass but an hour—that dream hath fled, The flowers on earth forsaken lie! The sun has set, whose lustre shed A light upon the shaded sky.

POBTICAL.

The basis of, early love and truth, Which spring and wither in a day, The gems of warm confiding youth; Alas, those buds decay and die, Eve ripened and matured in bloom; Then in an hour behead them lin Upon the still and lonely tomb.

67-We desire, about the first of Octobe next, to make an addition to our form, and some general improvement in the appearance of the paper. This improvement is contemlated, in order to keep pace with the increasing patronage extended to the FREE Pages, and to give it a character worthy of competition with any weekly paper in Vir-ginia. We do not wish to be excelled by our contemporaries-nor will we be, if our readers will be as mindful of us as necessity compels us to be of them.

We have reason to believe that many per sons are labouring under erroneous impres alons as to the proceedings of the last Legis-lature, upon the subject of the removal of free negroes and mulattoes. We shall therefore take occasion, shortly, to refer to the ournal, and give a review of the bill which passed the House of Delegates, but which was rejected in the Senate-and of the causes which led to the rejection. Warlike .--- Gov.
