Great crowds of people thronged the entrances both of the House of Peers and the House of Commons. Strong es of the Police were in attendance to preserve the peace; and the mob amused themselves by cheering the popular members of both Houses, and hissing and hooting the friends of Ministers. The Tory Lords and the Bishops were received with tremen-dous yells. The liberal Peers were huzzaed. The hostility to the Duke of Cumberland was manifested in

The Lord Chancellor entered the House exactly at two o'clock. Gentlemen. As Mr. Herstons' agents for the tale of Dr. Wm. Judkins' patent specific ointment, I would inform you that last summer I was afflicted with a sore log—the fame of Judkins. Ointment induced me to get a jug of it—but it happened not to be of Mr. Herstons' nake. I used it according to the printed direction, but my leg kept getting worse.

Mr. Herstons, travelling to the west, stopped at my house; during the time, on looking at the ointment I had, he immediately promounced it not of his make, and furnished me with one which was. On opening and smelling it is was sensible of the difference, although it looked like it. I then applied the eigenment his gave me to my leg; it became is a state of amendament on using the lirar plaster, and so continued until it get quite well.

This comment is certainly very valuable, and it spould be a pity it should be lost to the public by Sire-It has been my wish, for a considerable time, to communicate to you the good effect with which I have used the Oistment invented by Mr. Judkins, and which I now understand in male and solidly seents appointed by yourself. I have applied this Ointment, during the last there applied this Ointment, during the last there applied this Ointment, during the last there is a state. I create the produce of timour, and which I now understand in male states. I create the produce of timour, be the case, what it may, and I have found nothing as good for wounds of any description. It may be trought to add that the cure of a tumour called White Swelling, given over by the most distinguished physicians as incurable, and which they decided would, without amputation, prove fatal to the patient, was under my immediate notice offered by the use of Jadkins' Ointment, and the patient is in fine health, his limb affected by the tumour being restored to a perfect state of soundness.—Also, that the lrg of an aged man, which has been wounded, and exhibited one decadful nicerated surface from the knee to the foot, and which for more than two years had been considered incurable, was effectually cured by the application of Judkins' Ointment. I mention these (we case which fell under my jumediate notice and management, as a decaded evidence of the effect of this remedy in cases of tumour and of ulceral have experienced as decidedly the good effected this remedy in the cure of Felons, and of every species of feels wound. It seems to me that any one who will observe the operations of this Outerment, must be satisfied as to its beneficial effects. I can with the tutnost confidence recommend the use of this valuable remedy, it am, sir very respectfully.
