Mr. Harold J. Anderson. You will please to take notice, that on Friday the 1st day of May next, at the office of Robert Worthington, Esq., Commissioner of the State of Virginia, we shall take the depositions of John Moler, Robert Aldenour, Jacob Fouke, William Cleveland, Benjamin Knotts and William Silcott, William Moore, Gerard Moore, Samuel G. Stewars, Levi Silcott, Philip Ott, Henry D. Garmhart, William Strider, Butler, text by Strother, Peter W. Kamey, John T. Hinkley, M. Coyle, Samuel C. Cameron, and Geo. Needy, relative to a certain matter of controversy now depending and undetermined in the chancery side of the circuit superior court of law, to be held for Jefferson county, in which we are plaintiffs, and you are the defendants. Yours, &c. JOHN STRIDER, SAMUEL STRIDER. April 2, 1835.

ZINGANE. This thorough bred stallion and famous racer, will stand the ensuing season at my farm, Wood End, 4 miles west of Charlestown, Jefferson County, Va., commencing the 1st March, and ending July 31st, at a very low price (for such a horse) of $20 the season, payable with $10 in the season, $10 the single leap, and $40 to insure, with 20 cents to the groom in every case. While to afford gentlemen on this side of the Blue Ridge an opportunity, that can be rarely presented, of breeding from a horse, possessing pre-eminently all the valuable qualities of the genuine race horse, such as fine size, great strength, uncommon speed, undoublet purity of blood, transmitted through a long line of ancestry, combined with unfinching "game," or bottom on the turf, I have been at great pains to procure Zingane, and trust that they will make it an object to patronize him.

DISOBLION. Zingane is a dark bay, with black legs, mane and tail. He is 15 hands three inches high, of fine bone and great muscular power.

PHIDGREN. Zingane was sired by old Sir Archy, his dam the celebrated race mare Atlanta, (sold at 15 years of age for $2000) by imported Charley, his grand dam by imported Eagle, his g g d Maria, (dam by the 20 mile race at Fairfield) by Bay Yankee, his g g d, that won 19 races and broke down in her 20th; by Coler, his g g d d Partner; his g g g d d Apollo; his g g g g d d by the 20 mile race at Fairfield.

The chariot had gone over the... After death, the Bishop's features were calm and beautiful. The woe of earth had passed; no trace of agony remained. There was a noble serenity in the inanimate clay, connected with every circumstance of the Bishop's long and useful life, that made the gaze linger long over it as if he was looking upon features he should see again in some radiant scene over which the curtain of futurity yet hangs its folds.

There is one fact which will mention as a testimony against a money spending and extravagant age; this venerable saint of Christ, from his salary of one hundred dollars a year, saved in the course of his life about three thousand dollars, one half of which he understood he has left to the church, the other half to his relatives.

FROM ENGLAND. By the packet ship Europe, Marshal, which left Liverpool on the 19th of March, we have London papers of the 18th, inclusive. It will be seen by the Parliamentary sketch given below, that the Marquis of Londonderry has been compelled by the course taken in the House of Commons to relinquish his appointment as Ambassador to St. Petersburg. This was one of the first appointments made by Sir Robert Peel. It has been violently assailed by the Reformers, from the beginning, and they have succeeded in defeating it. The course of Lord Londonderry was highly honorable in the emergency. Perceiving that his continuance in that office was likely to embarrass the Ministry, he promptly, and without consultation with the Government, determined to decline the appointment.

The Liverpool Courier of the 18th, including to the proceedings of Parliament, says, "that every day makes it more manifest, that the strength displayed by the opposition, at the opening of the session, was strength altogether factitious." M. Y. Com. THE CANADAS.—In the House of Commons, on the 16th, a discussion took place on the affairs of Canada.

Mr. Roebuck entered into an explanation of the speech which he made a few evenings ago, with respect to the Canadas, and denied that he had ever advised the people of those colonies to take up arms against the mother country.

BRITISH FINANCES.—There has just been laid on the table of the House of Commons, an account of the public revenue and expenditure for the year ending January 5, 1835. The former was £46,609,606; the latter, £44,901,700, leaving a surplus of revenue over expenditure, of £1,608,155.

war under Sir William Howe, and also under Cornwallis. The London Gazette announces that Lord Cowley has been appointed British Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary at the Court of France. It was reported that Sir Robert Gordon had been appointed Ambassador to Russia.

Paris dates are to the evening of the 10th inclusive. The Correspondent of the London Times says, the fate of the American question seems tolerably secure. It was expected that the report of the committee would be presented on Saturday (March 31), and that the discussion would be brought on next week. An amendment on the motion for the adoption of the report, which is understood to recommend the simple and unconditional recognition of the treaty, will suggest that the whole question be opened up, that a rigorous investigation of the claims be entered into, and that nothing more be paid than such investigation shall show to be due. It is expected, however, that the Ministers, with the aid of those earnest remonstrances which daily arrive from all the great commercial towns of the kingdom, will be able to command a majority of upwards of 70 in favor of the simple adoption of the report and the rejection of the amendment.

THE LONDON STANDARD of March 30th, contains the following article upon this subject: The commission of the Chamber of Deputies, appointed to examine the project of law for granting twenty-five million of francs to the government of the United States, has terminated its labours; and the report will be presented on Monday or Tuesday next. The debate will then begin. The report will advise that the grant be made to the extent demanded. Much will depend on the nature of the intelligence received at this particular crisis from America in France; if it be hostile, the Chambers will, in all probability, refuse to confirm the report. Letters were in Paris from Toulon on the 13th, stating that the Ramier steam boat which had put into port Mahon on her way from Algiers, had noticed no vessels on the coast of Minorca but an American man-of-war, a frigate, and a cutter, which were closely watched by the French frigate La Bellone. The naval force of the United States in the Mediterranean consists only of the Delaware a ship of the line, 64 guns; the Potomac, frigate of 50 guns; the John Adams, a ship's sloop of 24 guns, and the Shark, a schooner of 8 guns. It is said, however, that the Etats Unis, (a frigate) the Constitution (a frigate) and the Peacock, (a ship's sloop) are to be sent to this sea.

Ohio and Michigan.—The Delaware (Ohio) Gazette of Saturday 11th inst., mentions the arrival at that place, of Colonels Swayne and Andrews (two of the Governor's staff) on their return from the Northern Frontiers. These officers state, that although Michigan does not acquiesce in the right of Ohio to establish the line in question, the Commissioners of the latter were not to be molested in running the Boundary line. The understanding is, that neither party will pursue hostilities, or resort to military preparations, with the expectation that Congress at their next session, will settle the whole matter in controversy definitely.

A fine compliment justly bestowed.—"Hannah More was not only an ornament of her sex, but a benefactor of her race. Her pen and her whole life, protracted to extreme old age, were consecrated to the best interests of mankind. Her numerous writings exercised a powerful and salutary influence both politically and morally, on the country, and perhaps on the age in which she lived; and it was her singular good fortune, or rather her providential privilege, to render religion not only popular with the humble, but even fashionable with the great—and that without compromising its spirit or abating the wholesome rigor of its demands." [Charleston Courier.]

A curious account is given in Malcolm's Persia, of Shaikh Mhydeen Abdool Kauder. Being induced to undertake a religious life, after the fashion of his country, his mother taking out eighty deenars; as he says, gave him half, as all his inheritances, the other half being reserved for his brother. She made me swear when she gave it to me, never to fall a liar; and afterwards made me swear, well, exclaiming, "Go, my son, I give thee to God. We shall not meet again until the day of judgment." I went on well till I came near Hamadan, when our kiffah was plundered by sixty horsemen. One fellow asked me what I had got? "Forty deenars," said I, "are sewed under my garment." The fellow laughed, thinking, no doubt, I was joking. "What have you got?" said another. I gave him the same answer. When they were dividing the spoil, I was called to an eminence, where their chief stood. "What property have you, my little fellow?" said he. "I have told your people already," I replied; "I have forty deenars sewed up carefully in my clothes." He desired them to be ripped open, and found my money.

From the Richmond Compiler. Travelling Facilities.—The facilities for travelling are now so great, that "time and space" are almost annihilated. The writer of this article, a few days ago, was breathing the mountain air, (some of it a little pinching, by the way,) and, in forty-eight hours, had traversed a distance of 291 miles, spending half a day in the pursuit of his business, in one of the cities.

Life of Cicero.—Messrs. Lucas and Deaver have in the press, and will shortly publish, the Life of Cicero, by John Stricker, Esq. of this city. We have been favored with the perusal of a few pages of this work in anticipation and feel it due to the learned and eloquent author, to recommend it to the public patronage. Mr. Stricker is well known to the citizens of Baltimore as a young gentleman of liberal education and fine talents, and as possessing peculiar claims to encouragement in his literary labours. But independent of all considerations personal to the author, the Life of Cicero should be in the hands of every man who desires to have a detail of interesting facts given in chaste, and elegant language; nor can we doubt that there will be a ready and rapid sale of the work. We understand that the subscription list is already extensive, and we are certain that hundreds only require to be notified of the contemplated publication to enrol their names among its patrons. It will give us pleasure to receive their signatures and hand them to the publishers.

The Caterpillars.—Who shall decide when Doctors disagree? We inserted the other day a paragraph, based upon information from a very intelligent gentleman of the medical profession, in which our readers were congratulated that if the severe weather of the last season had killed the fruit, it had also killed the Caterpillars. If, however, the following notice of that matter be correct, we have rejoiced prematurely.—Nat. Int.

Caterpillars.—It has been announced by the National Intelligencer, that the Caterpillars have all been killed by the severity of the winter. The Editors came to this conclusion from having examined some cocoons, in which they found no living insects. The Editors are not aware, probably, that the Caterpillars pass the winter in the egg, and not in the cocoon. The cocoon is merely a place of accommodation for the insect while passing from the larva to the perfect or butterfly state in summer. The butterfly deposits her eggs on the small green limbs of fruit and other trees, where they remain till the vivifying rays of the vernal Sun bring them into active life. The nest of eggs resembles a ball of Shoemaker's wax, wound firmly round the young limb, about half an inch wide, and an eighth of an inch thick. On looking closely at it, it resembles honey comb in formation. But the object of this is, not to discuss natural history, but to point to every person who has a tree on or near his premises, to commence war upon this most detestable of all insects. They are now coming out by thousands, and are easily destroyed. If every body would now begin, they can be easily prevented from extending their ravages the ensuing summer. Only look at it: Two young caterpillars killed now, will prevent the existence of about sixteen millions in the course of the season; for they breed three or four times each summer, and each time produce about 400. Half of them being females, say 200, multiplied by 400, makes 80,000 for the second brood; half being females, 40,000, multiplied by 400, makes sixteen millions for the third brood! Don't this speak loudly in favor of the maxim that "a stitch in time saves nine." G. B. S.

Suppressed Postscript.—The Nashville Banner informs us there is a Postscript to Gen. Jackson's letter to the Rev. Mr. Gwin, which was not published. "This postscript," says the Banner, "had it been kept private from the first, we should have had no right to allude to it; but as many have seen it, and as it is whispered about that it contains a reflection upon a member of Congress high in the estimation of his constituents, and upon the Editor of the (Nashville) Republican, it is due to those gentlemen that we should request that if he laid before the public." The gentleman alluded to is doubtless the Speaker of the House of Representatives, (Mr. Bell,) who, we have long foreseen, was to be sacrificed by the Van Burenites. We hope the Postscript will be published. Lynchburg Vir.

THE FREE PRESS. CHARLESTOWN. THURSDAY, APRIL 22, 1835.

On Monday last the election took place in this county at the Court House and the various precincts. At an early hour, the Court House was crowded, and the voters were addressed by the candidates for Congress. We were prevented from attending—a circumstance which we deeply regret; for Mr. Cooke's speech is pronounced to have been a splendid exhibition of the charges (contemptible as some of them are), which have been industriously circulated to injure him. The result of the election will be found in another part of the paper.

It will be seen that Messrs. Griggs and Berry, are elected; and that Mr. Cooke (the Whig candidate for Congress) obtained a majority of seven votes over the administration candidate, Col. Edward Lucas, the late Representative from this District. Hampshire and Morgan, the only remaining counties in this District, will both vote on Monday next. Mr. Cooke goes thither with a majority of fifteen votes; but whether this advantage will be retained, or whether it will be cancelled, and a woful score run up on the other side, we know not. The result, we admit, is not so favorable to Mr. C. as we anticipated. Col. Lucas, who has never before been in this county, (and he has repeatedly been before the people here), has, it is true, been out-run by a few lengths; but we had some expectation of seeing him distanced. He received, it is true, a smaller number of votes, by 193, than he received in this county two years ago; but we did expect a still greater diminution. The votes given to him in 1833, when Col. A. G. Smith was his competitor, amounted to 558; on Monday last, he received 365.

The voting cannot, we think, be properly taken as a test of the strength of parties in this county. Various circumstances, which we do not choose to designate, prevented the real majority of the Whig party from manifesting itself. Had the question been one of pure Jacksonism, unconnected with neighborhood relations, and other relations and other circumstances which sometimes sway the judgment; had it been, for instance, a Presidential election; had the query been, "Are you for Van Buren, or are you for?" the result, we are confident, would have been far different. We do not vaguely conjecture, but we speak from estimates which we think are correct, when we say that the real Whig majority in this county must be so far above the apparent, as to number between 75 and 100. Taking the lowest candidate on each side, we have for Berry, (Whig,) 396 for Morgan, (Adm.) 310

Majority for Berry, 86 Now, what just cause can be shown, to prevent us from taking this as the Whig majority of Jefferson? Some Jackson men in this neighborhood, it may be said, voted for Griggs instead of Morgan. True; but then a number of Whig votes in the Smithfield precinct were given to Cameron, in preference to Berry. Thus, the loss sustained by Morgan was counterbalanced by the loss which Berry sustained on the other side; and the difference between them, as we said before, may be fairly taken as the Whig majority of Jefferson.

OUR RAIL ROAD. This work is progressing daily, as appears from the lively scenes along the line. The following will be interesting to our readers: Our rail-road, its progress and prospects.—Stockholders and others interested in this important work, (and who in this community does not feel an interest in it?) will be pleased to learn, that the graduation is now finished from Harper's Ferry to Winchester; that a large proportion of the necessary timber is either delivered or prepared for delivery—and that arrangements have been made for procuring the iron and locomotives without further delay. Contracts have been closed, and are now in the progress of execution, for laying the rails and finishing the entire work, out and out, by the first of November next—early enough to affect the price of the growing crop. Nothing is wanting to secure this happy result but attention on the part of the stockholders to the calls on the board. The instalments must be paid, or the work must necessarily languish. The stockholders will find new encouragement in this matter of paying up, in the fact, that the stock of the Baltimore and Ohio rail-road, which, while that work was unfinished, had fallen to one third of its nominal value, has now, that the road is done, suddenly risen to par—and in the further fact, that the stock of every finished rail-road in the United States is above par.
