THURSDAY MORNING, JANUARY 24, 1839.

Here is something inexpressibly tender. It is ddressed by a wife to a desponding husband. WEDDED LOVE.

Come, rouse thee, dearest !- 'tis not well'.

To let the spirit brood

Thus darkly o'er the cares that swell Life's current to a flood,
As brooks, and torrents, rivers, all,
Increase the gulf in which they fall. Such thoughts, by gathering up the rills
Of lesser griefs, spread real ills
And with their gloomy shades conceal
The landmarks hope would else reveal. Come rouse thee now !- I know the mind. And would its strength awak

Proud, gifted, noble, ardent, kind-Strange thou should st be thus shaken Strange thou should be But rouse afresh each energy, But rouse afresh each energy, Throw forcestiveshoughts this wearying and prove our speed more consistent was a second he angry storms of earthly wo.

Full well I know the generous soul Which warms thee into life : Each spring which can its powers control,
Familiar to thy wife;
For deem'st thou she could stoop to bind Her fate unto a common mind?
The eagle-like ambition, nursed
Prom childhood in her heart, had first
Consumed with its Promethean flame The shrine, that sank her so to shame Then rouse thee, dearest! from the dream

That fetters now thy powers; Shake off this gloom—Hope sheds a beam To gild each cloud which lowers; And though at present seems so far The wished-for goal, a guiding star The wished-for goal, a guiding star With peaceful ray would light thee on, ands be won ; That quenchiess ray, thou'lt ever prove, Is fond, undying, wedded love!

Mr. Strange made a speech in defence of his position, and Mr. Brown in defence of his each Senator taking occasion to remark, that he did not consider the resolutions as instructions, and to discuss the merits of the public question involved in the resolu-

Mr. Clay, of Ky. took occasion to rejoin to the last part of their remarks, and to defend North Carolina from what the Senators called a fraud upon instructions, and to other severe remarks disrespectful to the Legislature of North Carolina.

The rejoinder of Mr. Clay called forth replies from the North Carolina Senators, especially from Mr. Brown, who spoke of Mr. Clay in a manner that caused a good deal of excitement in the Senate Chamber. He reminded Mr. Clay of the Americen System, and said that it had done more to shake the pillars of the American Union than any thing else that had been done in the Republic. He twitted Mr. on this day to the jury, it's a pity. Not satisfied with this, Mr. Brown concluded by classing Mr.

Mr. Clay rejoined in a manner more bland, and in language as courteous as could be used-freeing himself entirely from all excitement, and defending himself with great dignity. He would not notice his personal allusions, and contented himself with giving the reasons for defending North Carolana from the aspersions uttered against her by the Senators from that State.

ADDRESS.

I have risen for the purpose of making a few remarks in relation to the Society of which we are members, and if possible to redeem it from many very grave, though false and unjust charges, alleged against it. And at the same time, by the kind indulgence of this enlightened audience, I will endeavour to expatiate briefly upon the principles by which we profess to be governed, and the relative duties we are norally bound as members of the Independent Mac-tvor Clan to exercise towards each other. Which, together with our utility, shall constitute the different. propositions to which I would most repectfully invite your kind attention, and submit to your deliberate consideration. Brethren, allow me before entering ipon the discussion of the different points oficed, to congratulate you upon the present condition and future prospects of our Association. Although an increase of numbers is not at present a source of congratulation, yet there are others of a to-day cause the heart of every member to expand in grateful adoration to Himthat holdeth in his hands the destinies of each and all of us, and not us only, but of the whole human race. When I cast my eyes, Brethren, upon each familiar face, and suffer my mind to take a retro. spective flight to the time of our organization at Harpers Ferry, and consider that we are called to celebrate our second anniversary, it is a reflection of a truly pleasing character, that of our little band of Brothers, though some have given us the parting band, and have gone to seek in the fertile valleys of the West a home more congenial to their wishes, but that none have been called through the providence of an All-Wise God to sink beneath the paralizing hand of death, and go to "that bourne from whence no traveller returns." And to-day, Brethren, let us renew our vows to Almighty God, and in deep sincerity of heart, and fervency of mind, return our unfeigned thanks for the protecting care, and solicit a continuation of those blessings so essentially requisite to our future happiness, prosperi-

y and ultimate usefulness. With these preliminary remarks, I will proceed to the consideration of my first there is any just grounds upon which its snow-capped mountains to the fertile valleys the sun of liberty diffuses its benign and cheering rays, which causes the heart of the peasant to commingle with those in power, and exclaim-"All hail Columbia, land of the brave and free!" institutions are in accordance with that sacred charter of your liberties, tramed by those who combined with the wiedom of Sages, the virtues of Statesmer, and the philosophic energies of minds intent on emancipation, not only from Colonial obligations, or corpored slavery, but shook Europe with amazement, and filled the whole world with the most profound astonishment-"That all men are created equal, and endowed by nature with certain unalienable rights, among which are life liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." Congregating in those three every blessing requisite to the enjoyment of our po-litted liberty, and religious opinions, our Society comes more specially, under of happiness. This is more or less as observer, differing polying the fatter announciation viz: the pursuit us, when with the blood of their fellow-presisted the encroachments of British typical of every child of Adam—the canatisment, they seek to pave their way to fire laws of Scotland, Scotlan tution of men being so various, inclinapursuit of different professions. But, Brethren, there is another class of the some instances men revel in the luxibiles some first proper series of the luxibiles for the luxibility for the luxibiles for the luxib Inclance; they are found standing in the sacred desk, and denominated the heralds of the cross. Let us consider this point a few moments; it has become dustomary for Ministers who profess to have been called to preach the Gospel of God, to take their stand as Watchmen upon the Walls of Zion, and leave the great com-mission given by the Eternal Son to hold out the lamp of salvation to Tallen man, and in direct opposition to the hallowed precepts of the Book of Inspiration, stoop to abuse their fellow-men for the pursuit of christian virtues, of which they nothing, and declare that which is in accordance with the standard of eternal truth, to be productive of evil. Fellow-Citizens, is this the spirit of that Re-ligion taught from the reeking cross of therhood. Gaze upon our hallowed motto, language, "false teachers," disgorging their venom, the product of bigotry, anore important character, which should gainst the promulgators of Virtue, Charity and Morality, and to give it a sem-blance of plausibility, draw around them the robe of sanctity, and screen their acts, beneath its ample folds, I am induced to they have "Stole the livery of the court of Heaven,

To serve the devil in. In virtue's guise devoured the Widow's house, And eat the orphan's bread." For, Clanemen, it is my candid opinion, that in the heart where bigotry predominates, the mild and genual influence of religion must wither, droop and die .-Bigotry is the bane of religion, and however you may quibble upon words, I give it no softer name; but if in the vocabulary of the English language, there is one more harsh, 'tis this, that intolerance is bigotry, and bigotry intolerence. Here with the French Martyr, I might approprintely exclaim, 'Oh Religion! what deeds of atrocity, are perpetrated in thy. name!" In the name of the Cross of Christ, rivers of Christian blood have been caused to overflow. Amid the horrors of sectarian strife, millions have been deask me for proof, look at the noble but oppressed sons of the Emerald Isle, and ee there two-thirds of her people, until very recently, disqualified from the right of suffrage, or of holding any office, be- damning bigotry of sectarian menials. ge of one of her distinguished in religious sentiments to those who her constitution, it was the religion of
