Hon. WILLIAM SOUTHGATE."

So we see that Gen'l Harrison, when the old party names of Federalist and Democrat first arose in the country, took the side of the Democrats.

The following extract of a letter from while the latter was President, shows on which side he (Harrison) was, under his Administration:

"I have no other motive for writing this letter than to assure you that my resignation was not produced by any diminution of the interest there allows taken in the SUCCESS, OF YOUR AD-lication of the address of the Convention, alrays taken in the SUCCESS, OF YOUR AD.

The former can only take place, when I forget the Republican principles in which I I addition to this, I transmitted to you have been educated, and the latter, when I shall such documents and speeches as I supposcease to regard those feelings which must actu fate every honest man; who is conscious of favors that it is out of his power to repay."

Thus it is established that during the whole time the old distinctions of party existed. Gen. Harrison was a democrat. candidate for re-election to Congress, we have this farther declaration from him: "I deem myself a Republican of schat is commonly called the old Jeffersonian school, and believe in the correctness of that interpretation of the Constitution which has been given by the writings of

But there are those who cling to Mr. Van Buren, although opposed to all his measures, merely because they believe him to be the Democratic candidate-and it is to such especially that we address ourselves. We wish to demonstrate to them that the cry of Federalism raised against Gen. Harrison has no foundation in fact, and that on their own principle he has higher claims to their support than Mr. Van Buren. And have we not dong so? To Messrs. Henry A. Reverdy Johnson, Esq. of Baltimore, followed Gov. Pope, but had not proceeded far before the lateness of the hour gave signal for the retirement of many to their homes. Several hundreds however remained and expressed a desire to hear his remarks, flough many were far from home and would be kept upon the ground till dark. But finding he should not be able to conclude his remarks, before night-fall, upon consultation it was determined that the company should adjourn to town and hear the remarks he intended to make in the Court-Isous at eight o'clock. Whereupon the crowd dispersed. And thus closed the day; a day pregnan with interest, and one of the most remarkable over witnessed in Jefferson county-nothing when, after a powerful speech from Col. Smith of Clarksburg, Mr. Johnson resumed his remarks, and spoke for two or three hours, with great spirit and effect, as many of our Van Buren friends can testify who were present and winced so much under his dexterous lash and out any thing by which we could ascertain their progust to carry the Legislature. r readers are aware that there has been no pers, in regard to the "position" of Gen. Brown, of Michigan. This gentleman has been hither-to a supporter of Mr. Van Buren, and was recently appointed one of the visiters of the Milliary Academy at West Point. When it was asserted that he had come out for Gen. Harrison, the fact was positively denied by the Albany Argus and the Washington Globe. It was admitted that he might have attended the recent cele-bration at Fort Meigs, but any further commit ant to General Harrison was considered quite mpossible. We have now, fortunately, more atisfactory evidence of the General's views. han the mere assertions of his friends, or the Enjals of the administration press. A letter rom the General himself, which we find in the etroit Advertiser of Wednesday last, defines his rition with a distinctness which leaves no nd commend it to the especial attention of those ld friends of General Jackson, who have been lisgusted with the follies and vices of the ascendant dynasty in the folias and vices of the ascendant dynasty in the Republic. It will not lie in the mouth of Van Burenism to disparage a gentleman whom they thought worth canciliating by a highly complimentary and honorable appointment. The character of the writer, and his high standing in Michigan, give a weight and importance to the letter, independent of its intrinsic merits. Let it be read and nonlared on insic merits. Let it be read and pondered on. There are many former friends of the Adminis-tration who feel with General Brown, and who, we doubt not, will ultimately act with him.—

"TECUMSER. June 29, 1840. The time has gone by when party save the party in power. They are at was with all the great interests of the country. Mr. Van Buren has been weighed, and the people find nothing. The contrast is daily made between him and the? Farmer of North Bend, and what a contrast! The former has spent his whole fe in office; the people's money has been lavished upon him; at all times, he has been well fed and well ledged at the pubic expense. He has received honor and wealth at the people's hand, been eleva-ted by them to the highest office in the for the nation? It is a question often asked, but never answered. The only things that he can boast of, are the unenviable ones, that he 'would follow in the footsteps of his illustrious predecessor,' and that he is 'a Northern man with Southern-principles.' These high and chivalrous qualifications, great as they may be, can hardly give him a satisfactory claim to the Presidency, especially when, as a set off the nation, by his means, has been reduced from the highest state of prosperity, to bankruptcy, without even being, allowed the benefit of that alternative, and when her honor has been disgraced by his vacillating and pusillanimous course on the North Eastern Boundary. He has been Chief Magistrate for more than 3 years over the first nation on the globe, with powers practically unlimited, with a cabinet subject to his nod, a decided majority in both branches of Congress, and forty thousand office holders ready to laud all his acts, whatever they might be. And now I ask again, what has be done for the nation? I defy his most devoted partizans to point me to the first act. he die to-morrow, he would leave a blank in the page of his country's history. Such s the character of Martin Van Buren .-God forbid that he should again have in his keeping the destinies of his country.

Turn for one moment to the people's hoice. It appears like sacrilege even to write the name of Harrison with the same pen. Trace him from the time he entered the army; a boy, under Wayne, leaving all the endearments of civilized life, and willing to toil for his country in an inhospitable wilderness, deprived of every comfort, where life was in hourly danger, not only from the Indian rifle. but from the privations and hardships of an Indian war. Then follow him in after life, as commander-in-chief of the northwestern army. What language can describe his sufferings and agony, as he caw his brave companions in arms deprived of every comfort, with sickness and death on every breeze, constantly watched by a superior British and Indian foe. His noble deeds are written on the brightest page of his country's history, and in the hearts of every true American. See him at Tippecanoe, Fort Meigs, and the Thames. See him in Congress, always 5th on the side of virtue and the true interest of his country, and in every station of life the poor man's friend. This is the boys man whom the Loco-foco party would stigmatize as, a 'coward,' a 'petticoat chieftain, a supporter of the 'black cockpirit. ade' party-his battles underrated and ridiculed. How true is it that ' whom the gods wish to destroy, they first make mad. --

That man wha has been willing his life for her honor and happiand ness, has never been forgotton by a grate ful people. And to whom shall we go to learn the frue character of General Harrison? Shall we go to the men of yesh he terday, the hireling demagogues of the lo-his co-foco/party who, like their master, ne-ne ver made the first sacrifice for their counizan try? Or shall we go to the Braves of our Mr. land who fought and bled for her honor, and jeoparded their lifes for her glory?-We offer in evidence the recorded testimony of such men as Shelby, Gaines, Johnson, Case, Brady, Todd, Stockton, Fitzgerald, and a host of others.
