THE POET'S SONG TO HIS WIFE. By Barry Cornwall.

How many summers, love, Have I been thine? How many days, thou dore, Hast thou been mine? Time, like a winged wind, When 't bends the flowers, Hath left no mark behind,

To count the hours ! Some weight of thought, the foth, On thee he leaves; lome lines of care round both, Perhaps, he wraves;

All clse is flown!

Ah! with what thankless beart I mourn and side. Suppositioning the bloom With tongues all sweet and low Like a pleasant rhyme To thee and thine !

What has Mr. Van Buren Done The enemies of Gen. HARRISON are constantly derrate his services to the country both in the for the Sub-Treasury; and of these nine, only elections of this country, as follows: field and as a statesman. But they are very careful to say nothing of the acts of their favorite. Where are the evidences of his superior statesmanship? Where the monuments of his towering genius? Where the records of his services? What measure did he ever originate, which bears the stamp of extraordinary wisdom? We call upon his friends to point to a single act formed, or measure-proposed, which places him above the fourth-rate men of the country or to d'single /service rendered, which entitles him to that country's gratitude.

In February tast, John Butler, a reputable free negro, at Harpers Ferry, called To the Constable, and to the keeper of the apon me, bearing upon his head, face, and other parts of his body, evidence that he had been cruelly and inhumanly treated. His statement was, that the assault fore me, George B. Stephenson, a Justice had been committed upon him by a man; of the Peace for the county aforesaid, by named Richard Streeks, who was in company with two or three others, without oath by John McPharland of having viocath by John McPharland of having vioed. His/statement was, that the assault of Streeks' companions, John McPhar, a free man of colour, upon his face and land, was some distance from the place of head, and the said Richard Streeks having assault, saw it all but took no part in it. now been required by me to find suffi This statement. Butler confirmed by an cient surelies as well for his personal apoath to the truth thereof, administered by pearance at the next court, to be held for me. I had no doubt of the truth of the statement, but was at a loss to determine my duty as a conservator of the peace: The law disallowed the arrest of a white man upon the testimony of a negro, and yet in the case before me, I had no doubt that an outrage had been committed upon the person of an inoffensive individual.
