THE LARGE BRICK HOUSE, adjoining the Public Square, and nearly opposite the Post Office. April 28, 1842.

There is a report in circulation, I have been informed, that I intend giving up my Hotel, in Charlestown, with the view of going West. I am at a loss to know how such a report originated-certainly not from any thing I have ever said-for nothing is farther from my present intention. Besides, 1 have the property I now occupy under a lease for a term of years, where I should be pleased to see my old friends and as many others as may choose to give me a call; and I shall always be thankful for their custom. CHARLESTOWN, JEFFERSON COUNTY, THURSDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 27, 1842. MRS. L. M. THURSTON.

The death of this inestimable lagy and sweet poetess, at her residence in Indiana, has been announced in the newspapers within a few days past. It is an event that will carry sadness to the hearts of many friends, and exagte in the boreceived as payment in full, if paid entirely in soms of an extended circle of comiters most poignant regret. Mrs. Thurston was young, but verses, which she wrote about thise years ago, are marked by grace, feeling and includy, that will commend them to every hear? Like the

The Green Hills of my Father Land. The green hills of my father land In dreams still greet my view ; I see once more the wave-girt stratid-

The ocean depth of blue-The sky-the glorious sky, outspread Above their calm repose— The river, o'er its rocky bed, Still singing as it flows-

The stillness of the Subbath hours. When men go up to pray-The sun-light resting on the flowers-The birds that sing among the bowers, Through all the summer-day.

Land of my birth !- mine early love! Once more thine airs I breathe I see thy proud hills tower above-Thy green vales sleep beneath-Thy groves, thy rocks, thy murmuning tills, All rise before mine eyes;

The dawn of morning on thy hills, Thy gorgeous sunset skies-Thy forests, from whose deep recess A thousand streams have birth, Glad'ning the lonely wilderness, And filling the green silentness

I wonder if my home would seem As lovely as of yore! I wonder it the mountain stream Goes singing by the door!

With meledy and mirth.

And if the flowers still bloom as fair And if the woodbines climb, As when I used to train them there, In the dear olden time! I wonder if the birds still sing

Upon the garden tree,

As sweetly as in that sweet spring Whose golden memoria, gently bring So many dreams to me! I know that there hath been a change, A change d'er hall and hearth!

Faces and footsteps new and strange, About my place of birth! The heavens above are still as bright As in the days gone by, But vanished in the beacon light

That cheered my morning sky ! And hill, and vale, and wooded glen, And rock, and murmuring Gream, That were such glorious beauty then, Would seem, should I return again;

The record of a dream! I mourn not for my childhood's hours, Since, in the far-off West,

'Neath sunnier skies, in greener bowers, My heart hath found its rest; I mourn not for the hills and streams That chained my steps so long, Yet still I see them in my dreams,

And hail them in my song; And often by the hearth-fire's blaze, When winter eves shall come, We'll sit and talk of other days;

And sing the well remembered lavs

Of my green mountain home.

He will also forward any orders, epitaphs, &c., that may be desired. Or, by addressing him, at Leitersburg, Washington county, Md., orders can be filled without No imposition need be feared, as his prices are uniform. January 21, 1841-1y. Lambaugh's Composition. HERE can be but little, if any doubt what ever, that the article sold under the name of Lambaugh's Rheumatic Composition, has proved more uniformly successful in the cure of Rheumatism, than any preparation ever before offered to the public It is composed of Medicines which stand deservedly high, for the relief of Gouty and Rheumatic Affections and from the invariable success attendant upon the administration of the Composition, many physicians of high standing, and distinguished qualifications, have been induced to recommend it to their patients Testimonials of many who have used it, have been offered without solicitation, and can at any time be procured. But these are not deemed requisite-we would prefer to see it stand or fall according to its own merit. From all that we know in regard to this Medicine, we are warranted in applying the language u-ed in regard to it, oy the Senier Editor of the Free Press, that "there is no mistake: it will cure the Rheumatism."
