THE YOUNG DISCIPLE. She gave her young pure heart to God, Ere it had known earth's wiles: Ere she had heard the tempter's voice, Or seen his luring smiles.

She stood before her chosen shrine, God's own most holy altar; And left the world's gay scenes behind With faith that could not falter.

She turned from the gap helds of mirth;
Its mockery and pride;
And sought from Heaven the endless rest That nought could give beside. She cast the world's bright gifts away And chose that better part, That lives beyond all earthly change, Or e'en the human heart.

Late tenants of you rural cot, Beneath the mountain's brow. Thon art too young to weep and mourn, For those who now have fied; And left thee destitute and lone To ponder o'er the dead.

Where rests thy parents now!

Thy little heart bath felt no sting. To blight its youthful joys; Now just began life's early spring, A guiltless infant boy.

The world is one bright scene to thee, Of happiness and bliss; Thou carest not, that if there be, A brighter world than this. Thou art content with nature here, All's sunshine o'er thy way; Though parted from thy parents dear ; Thy heart is light and gay. But think not that the world will be.

The same bright scene of joy; And life will glide as smooth to thee, As when thou wert a boy. Ah! now thy life's a cloudless sky,

With brilliant stars o'ercast! Oft will thy bosom heave a sigh, In memory of the past. For thou art left on this dark shore,

A remnant of thy race Who now have gone, forever more To realms of joy and peace.

And when in manhood's hardy prime, Vain pleasures should entice. Safe guard thy heart 'gainst sinful crime, And shun the reptile Vice ! MORTON.

PLAINTIFF. PERFORMANCES AND THOSE OF HIS GET. "SKYLARK is in splendid health, order and condition, and will no doubt please your country better than any horse they ever had, saw, or can see. He is a rich bay, beautiful, gay, of very superior action and power, strong enough for a dray, and is to day the next horse to Priam, if not fully his equal. Many of our best judges think Skylark's colts in this country, are the finest they have ever seen in size, Right for the County of Jefferson, of the above invaluable and simple safeguard, against the destruction of life and property, offers it to the inhabitants of the county of Jefferson, as an instant and sure preventive, against all accidents arising from runaway or unruly horses, either in single or double harness.
