The note and paper. were folded so that the Wizard could not see either the number of the former or the sentence upon the other, and then laid upon a plate, set fire to by a taper, consumed, and the ashes blown about the stage. The "Wizard" then announced the number of the Bank note, repeated element upon which it is conducted, to you observe him staring, with a look as the sentence written on the slip of paper and a Page returned these articles to the owners in a box which the "Wizard" had not touched. MODESTY OF THE GLOBE.

The time was, when Mr. Tyler and his par among the best of Democrats! Shall the Democracy take this patronage in lieu of principle? Shall they thus subject themselves justly to the imputation of their enemies, the .Federalists, of being "spoil hunters"-the seekers of corrupt Government influence, to command political success, and of abusing the success so shamefulty obtained, in the appropriation of the spolls of the people to their own selfish and mercenary ends?—Globe.

Now this is modest-superlatively fastidious. Would a stranger, who knew nothing of the history of the country for the last fifteen years, ever "spoils" during three Presidential terms, and that a not a murmur escaped the lips of its conductors about "danger to the freedom of the country" during that whole period? The "De mocracy" took the "patronage" very kindly, and never uttered a suspicion that there was any thing corrupting about it. Now, however, as Mr. Tyler seems to be dispensing it in a way not ties are aroused, and it talks about "corrupt goverment influence" with as much sanctity as if it had always shut its own palms against the

The truth is, the modern Democrats consider the dispensation of the patronage as the whole and sole business of an Administration, and the only test of its principles. The thought of put- sales of the public lands, are the legitimate ting the offices into competent hands, for the be-nefit of the people, and not for the mere reward it will prove a severe trial of the Federal Govof the incumbents, seems to be considered an "obsolete idea," and a thing altogether incompatable with a true interpretation of the doctrines of '98.

We are glad to see Mr. Tyler striking terror into the ranks by the purchase of Van Boren's partizans. It is a part of their creed to believe in the corruptibility of the people-they swear that a hundred and forty five thousand were purchased in the last Presidential election, and be lieving this, it is no wonder they are now in a state of trepidation. They understand better ces-how many Dugald Dalgettys are to be fally alarmed for the consequences.

The Madisonian & the National Convention. The Madisonian says: "We are becoming convinced that the probability is there will be no good result produced by the Convention. If one half of the delegates should be chosen by State Conventions and the rest by Districts, we have reason to apprehend a fatal rupture will liscussions arise as to the manner of voting, dec. In such an event two or more Democratic candidates would be run and that would be ruin -Our fears on this subject may be groundless, but in all the States; and in the absence of unanimty in the mode of neminating the candidate, we have reason to anticipate great "confusion worse

The Madisonian is not blind to the fact, that. as far as the Loco Foco Convention is ulready made up, a majority of its members are for Mr. Van Buren, and thus it is brought to the belief that "no good result" will be produced by it .-We wonder if the Official would consider any result "good" that did not "enure to the benefit" of its patron. But trouble may reasonably be expected. Col. Johnson swears he "will not be cheated out of the nomination," and as soon as he finds the Convention so packed as to exclude him, he will set up for himself. Mr. Calhoun's friends have not yet unconditionally pledged themselves to submission, and there is just ground for the belief that a rebellion of no ordinary violence will break out in less than a year.

"Why is it, oir, that with a Countling so cheep and abundant, we are not how as for merly a prospecous and bappy nation—proud of our retrospect and exulting in the promise of the future? Why is it that all the great branches of our national industry are in estate of pros tration or ruin? Our soil and cliniate have unlost nothing in point of energy and skill. -Whence is it then that our prosperity has been thrown into abeyance, that the capitalist finds no outlet for his means, and the leborer remains without employment?"

HENRY CLAY.

Who speaks of Henry Clay without a word of raise? There is no intelligent locofoco in the ountry who will not, when his name is mentioned, couple it with a proud tribute to his genius and patriotism. They may, and no doubt do, conscientiously differ from him on points of National policy; but they are too generous to withhold from him the praise which is due to candor, honesty and genius. A friend told us, some time since, that in a rail-road car, a circumstance arose in his preeigner, with a strong German accept-a gentleman of great Hebrew erudition-spoke of Henv Clay as a dishonest man. A gentleman opposite, a distinguished member of the Ohio bar, the most violent lecofoco in the strongest district in Ohio, but in my section there is not a democrat who would not take off his coat to chastise the scoundrel who would dare to say that Henry Clay is dishonest. The Whig party has no exacter. It belongs to the country. His political fees, and I am among the most ardent of them, they will permit no man to say that Henry Clay, whom we glory in while we oppose him is not barked at Cadiz on the 30th ult., at four dependent.

THE advantages of this Stove have become generally known in this, as well as ther States, that the subscriber deems it up cessary to give a full and particular description it, as its merits have been fully tested (during he last eight months.) by a large number of he citizens of Jefferson County, who will, I cubt no, give the most decided testimony in favor. There have been many other Cooking toves offered to the public since the above dove has been patented, and yet, notwithstanding all the opposition that has been arrayed against it, it has proved to be the best and most economical Stove that has ever been used.— This Stove is so constructed that its plates canof give way or burn out, which is certainly an miportant consideration. The subscriber is authorized to insure all the estings in these Stoves for one year, if persons desire it. He would also say to the public, that will place one of them in any person's kitchen for one month, and if it does not give entire of business, will be thankfully received and satisfaction, it will be removed without any charge, and the person using it will not be held responsible for any damage that may happen it aring the month in which it is upon trial. By thisarrangement persons can have an opportunity of testing its advantages before purchasing -this is a sufficient inducement (to all who want a superior Cooking Stove) to give it at least a trial.

For the great saving of labor and fuel, I would espectfully refer the public to the following repectable individuals, who have this Stove in
