MY MOTHER'S GRAVE

BY S. CAMERON Long years have fled, dear mother, Since lowly o'ar thy grave, I've heard the night-winds requients And willows pensive wave; Where twines the tender cyprus vine, And blooms the violet fair.

And sweetest odour breathes around, Affection planted there. I'll know thy love, dear mother,
No more whilst time moves roune,
Within thy shroud thou sizepest now,

Beneath the cold, cold ground: A solitary branch I droop Above life's lessening stream, And all the past but seems to me A strange and mystic dream.

Oft I'll return, dear mother, To that endearing spot, So sad, and yet so southing, So far, yet unforgot: And fancy thine is mingling With the voices of the wind. A prayer for the lonely one, Left weepingly behind.

And oh! how blest when life is o'er, This life which is but breath, To sleep near thee, the tranquil sleep, Dreamless, but not of death ; With the sustained and sacred hope, That we shall meet once more, Amid the bowers and by the streams,

On Heaven's unclouded shore.

The willow that droops by the side of the river, and drinks all its life from the stream that flow And shadows the stream from the heat of the My Creator, my God, it is hou—I adore thee;
It is thou art this life-giving fountain to me;
But I am all weakness, a suppliant before thee,
I cannot return this protection to thee.

Showing a Whig majority of 2 in the Senate and 28 in the Commons-24 Whig majority on foint beliet. Last year the Locus had a majorir of 26 on joint ballot-10 in the Seaste and 16 KENTUCKY.

The majority of Owsley, the Whig candidate for Governor, by the last returns, amounts to nearly 6000. This will be diminished by the nounties yet to be heard from, but it is large emough for all practicable purposes. The majority for the Lieutenant Governor will

DIED.

In this town, on Thursday evening last, Mr. JAMES JONES, in the 68th year of his age. After a painful illness of many weeks, during which time no murmur was suffered to escape his lips, he has at last fallen asleep in death as calmly as an infant sinks into rest. Death has ended his sufferings and cares, and the grave has closed over the mortal remains of a kind father, an affectionate husband, and a good citizen. Strong in the hope of a blissful immortality beyond the grave, through the will be held for Jefferson Circuit, commencing merits and sufferings of Him who died to save, and on Thursday the 29th August, inst. on Payue's with an abiding faith in the goodness and justice of but their need to his manute gan—that now, freed from all the cares and trials, sorrows and sufferings of the the cares and trials, sorrows and sufferings of the cares and trials, sorrows and sufferings. flight to the mansions of the blest, to spend an eter-nity with the spirits of the just made perfect.

The many virtues of the deceased, the universal estimation in which he was held by all who enjoyed his acquaintance, was deeply manifested by those who had come together to pay the last tribute of respect to his earthly remains.

of Mr. David Johnson, of Kabletown, aged about 40

"Faith shines brightest in affliction's night."

This just and beautiful sentiment, embodying the peculiar and sustaining consolations and supports of religion, under the pain and anguish of bodily discreteligion, under the pain and anguish particularly ilease, has been very expressively and particularly il- Timothy Wilco fustrated in the sufferings and christian fortitude and Andrew Cage, patience of Miss MARY SNYDER, who departed this life, August the 1st, 1844. in the 16th year of her age, the eldest daughter of John and Ann Snyder, of this county, making five in number of their household that this family have consigned to the narrow house prepared for all the living, during the last sixteen months. But three weeks previous to the house prepared for all the living, during the last pected to meet on the ground on Thursday the sixteen months. But three weeks previous to the 15th instant, at 8 o'clock in the morning, to death of Mary, they followed to the tomb Ann Re-becca, their youngest daughter, a very interesting babe. Truly, the Lord has laid his chastening rod heavily upon these parents; but we still rejice to know that although sin has come into our world, and by sin death has, time after time, snatched from them their beloved ones, yet if they be but faithful them their beloved ones, yet if they be but faithful they shall meet to part no more. Mary, who was confined to her room and bed by an acute and lingering malady, almost without any intermission, and chiefly in the same posture, except when enabled to make some momentary change by the assistance of some kind friend—and that for a series of months previous to her death—was certainly one of the most striking and instructive examples of meekness and submission we have ever seen. Her protracted affliction was no doubt intended as one of parental discipline, to weaken and sever her ties to life, and to refine and fit how. to refine and fit her, by means of the sanctifying in-fluence of personal suffering, for the purer and better associations and joys of Heaven.
The writer of this brief notice will not soon forget the salutary impression made on her mind by the evidence of her humility and amiable meekness of spirit. When I have seen her attentive and pions pattor, in the holy office of prayer, kneeling beside her bed, and fervently commending her case to the fherey and protection of heaven—and have been told that she manifested the same patience to the last, and with a firm and unshaken confidence in the Redeemer, the departed hence in the pious faith of the gospei of Christ, I could not but reflect that in comparison with which, all else, as a departed to the soul, is the merest delusion—"but a shadow and a falsehood." Many have been consigned to the tomb, but her memory will long live in the bosom of many dear friends, whom she has left to meurn of many dear friends, whom she has left to meurn of many dear friends, whom she has left to meurn of many dear friends, whom she has left to meurn of many dear friends, whom she has left to meurn of many dear friends. fier early departure; yet they sorrow not as those without hope, knowing that while affection prompts the falling tear, she is secure, where tears are never shed, and where affliction and sorrow are not become

In like manner are the ingredients which compose Stainburn's Vegetable Extract Pills, stripped of impurities, and nothing enters their composition but the true medicinal properties of such plants, roots and bark as have been proved by experience to possess a curative virtue for the various maladies incident to the human frame.
