From the New Orleans Bee, Aug. 8.

In regard to the question of war, it should be distinctly understood, that although Mexico will in all human probability resolve upon hostilities with the U. nited States, the very latest and most aumade. The intelligence of the ratification of annexation by the Texan Convention had not reached Mexico, and it is highly probable that no definite action will be had, until it is formally made known to the Government. Mexico is doubiless preparing for war, but will not declare war until fully apprised of the action of the Convention.
