A Question for Free Traders.

If the recent extraordinary advance ib he price of Breadstuffs in Great Britain resulted from the enactment of the Tariff of 1846, to what cause are we to attribute the immense decline in prices of which we are informed by the last steamer? It is worthy of note also that the reduced prices in England did not at all affect the market in New York. Why? Because of the demand for home consumption-thereby showing that the home market is not so insignificent a matter as be Free Tradets would have us to be-

To the Editors of the Free Press :

Dras bit: -- With your permission I propose to offer to the people of the Shenandoah, some re-flections on the improvement of that river, which you are aware is a subject of much interest to

The present state of the river is such that pro-duce can only be carried fown in flat bottomed boats, when the water is high; and there is se possibility, in any stage of the water, to go up the stream with any description of Same, loaded with one ton only. Notwith standing this is the case. Balearines, Lowns and Ginghams ; toll is continued to be dear miled by the New Ser- Gingham Hobes, while and figured Swiss do ; randoah Company. I do not know that there is a Fancy Fistin Mow-lin de Lains and Alpacas taxing the public as a compensation for their in- Edgings and Insertions ; providence. Are we of this Valley, in all time to Gloves, Hosiery, and Linea Cambrick Hokfs. come, to be subject to this eppressive Company. Bandanna. Domask and Pongee do. and to be deprived of the privile good improving this Superior Black Italian Cravats; valuable and beautiful river? A gentieman of tientlemen and Ladies' fancy do respectability and a large stockholder in this Com-French, Euglish and American Prints; pany, stated in his affiliavit which was used by the friends of the Little's Falls R ilroad, in the Legislature last winter, that the contractor to do the work on the Shenandoah, under the new Company, deceived the persons appointed to examine his work, by availing himself of a slight rise in the river, to take them in a boat through the locks: The work was accepted. Very shortly afterwards boats were dragging in many places.--From the day of accepting the work he gave up his stock as lost, in which he was not mistaken. as he has not to this day received one cent of div dend. It remains for the people to decide how long they will submit to this oppression. The most difficult part of the river to improve is the eight miles from Harpers-Ferry to Little's Falls ; having attained in that distance an elevation of eighty-four feet, which is ten and a half feet per mile. To canal this part of the river, it will require ten locks of eight feet lift, which at an estimate much lower than those of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal cost, would amount to the large sum of $80,000, or eight thousand dollars each lock, besides probably not less than $120,000 for eight miles of canal formation. If an aqueduct across the Potomac should be required to connect with the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, $150,000 more would not be an over estimate. These are very large sums to expend on so short a work, and certainly much more than can be raised by individual subscription-and there is not much hope of aid from the State. It is true, we have not been entirely forsaken by the Legislature. After a severe struggle of two sessions, and violent opposition from the New Shenandoali Company, a charter has been granted to construct a Railroad from Little's Falls to the Old Fornace, or to intersect the Winchester and Potomac Railread at Keves Bwitch. To this point, the expense would be comparatively trifling to the cost of the river improvement from Little's Falls to the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, and under the Little's Falis charter, the Winchester and Potomac Railroad Company are empowered to make the road from Keyes Switch to the Old Furnace, and for the privilege of making it, they are bound to be the carriers of all freight to and from Little's Falls and the Old Formace. In the event of the Winchester Com pany making that part of the road, the Little Falls Company would only have three miles of road to make, which can be made for $30,000. By this road the Shenandoah trade would enjoy a direct connection with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, at a point where there is ample room for commodious Ware-houses, sufficient for the accommodation of all the trade of the Valley. If the Alexandria market is desired, the largest sized canal boats can float from the Canal into the river and come up immediately under the Ware-houses at the termimus of the Railroad, where freight of any kind can conveniently be put on board. If the Baltimore market is preferred, there will be no handling of the flour after it leaves Little's Falls until it reaches market. The flour that now comes down the Shenhudoah has to be landed at Harpers-Ferry in the public road, and not unfrequently in the mud, more than half a mile from the Baltimore Company's Ware-house, to which it has to be draged, and if it is intended for the Alexandria market, it must be drayed a little further across the Bridge to the Canal, where the labor to get it to the boats is full as much or more, than it would be at the Old Farnace. It is evident by the Railroad from Little's Falls to either market, produce would be less exposed to the weather, less handled, and consequently lyss expense. The want of room at Harpers-Ferry, for sufficient Ware-houses to accommodate the trade, cannot be obviated. The B. & O. Railroad Company have a small Ware-house, not much larger than a County Court Lawyer's Office. and no ground to enlarge it ;- so also with the Winchester and Potomac Railroad Company,consequently large quantities of flour from Win chester and from the river had to be piled up, exposed to the weather for weeks at a time, during the past season, at much loss to the owners, in condemned barrels, &c. There are many persons of the opinion that the Shenandoah can be made navigable for steam-boats. That it can be from Little's Falls up, there is scarcely a doubt, particularly for steam wheel boats of sixteen or eighteen inches draught. That there is a sufficiency of water in the dryest sea-sons, from Port Republic to Little's Falls, to make sluices of 15 fect width and 15 or 18 inches deep. will not be questioned by persons acquainted with the river. Then the only obstacle is the fall in the river. From Port Republic to the Forks, near Front Royal, is ninety-six miles, with an average fall of about six feet per mile. From the Forks to Little's Falls is forty-six miles, with a fall averaging about two feet eight inches per mile. The question is, can this fall be overcome without his patrons and the public general-Locks? As it has been done in other rivers, it y, that he has recently received can be done in this. Is not the fall in the Ohio, A LARGE AND CAREFULLY in the Shenandoah, where steamboats drawing fifteen or eighteen inches of water are frequently used; and is it not well known that in high water large steamboats frequently go up the Louisville Falls in the Olio of twenty-two feet ascent in two miles, to avoid the toll of the Louisville & Portland Canal, of two miles length, made at great cost to overcome the fall. Rivers to the North, South, East and West of us, are navigated by steamboats over falls as great as those of the Shenandoah. Then let us believe that we can do what others have done-go to the work in earnest -lay our shoulders to it, and all pull together, and it will surely be done. It is useless to say one word of the incalculable advantages to the people of Jefferson, Clarke, Loudoun, Fauquier, Warren, Page, Shenandoah, and several other counties. higher up the river, to have Plaster, Salt and all other merchandize delivered from steamboats to the doors of some, and convenient to all, and to have theis produce taken expeditiously to market materials of the best quality, which he pledges at greatly less cost than they new have to pay.
