A SAD YET TRUTHFUL PICTURE. THE TROPHIES OF WAR are thus described in a letter from Vara Cruz to the Auburn advertiser. The writer presents truly, without exag geration, one of those scenes in the progress of War which Gen. Taylor says is "enough to fill the whole land with mourning :"

Never have I beheld such destruction E have the pleasure of informing the of property. Scarcely a house did I pass the most splendid and general supply of fashion- almost every house at which I passed to these dreadful messengers of death, some appointed. We hardly deem it necessary to one of the family (if the house did enumerate, as our stock is so complete as to not happen to be deserted) would come La bomba!" [the bomb !] My heart ach-

During my peregrinations, I came to a ofty and noble mansion in which a teriexamine my large, handsome and cheap ble bomb had exploded, and laid the charge will be made for looking at them - and a I was examining the awful havor created, field of battle. No! no. - I don't want a beautiful girl of seventeen came to the door and invited me into the house. She pointed to the furniture of the mansion torn into fragments, and the piles of rub bish lying around, and informed me, with her beautiful eves filled with tears, that the bomb had destroyed her father, mother, brother and two little sisters, and that she was now left in the world alone! O wan! war!-who can tell thy horrors?

Who can picture thy deformities? During the afternoon I visited the hos pital. Here lay upon truckle beds the mangled creatures who had been wounded during the bombardment. In one corner was a poor, decrepit, bed ridden woman, her head white with the sorrows of seventy years. One of her withered bruised and disfigured by the falling of the houses, and bursting of the shells .-On the stone floor lay a little child in a seemed to delight in the agonies of the miserable creatures over whom they

CHARLESTOWN: THURSDAY MORNING. May 13, 1847.

The People's Candidate for President, GEN. ZACHARY TAYLOR

THE VICTORY OF CERRO GORDO.

We devote considerable space to the details of the late Battle at Cerro Gordo. They will be read with great interest, as all that relates to our gallant Army is seized with avidity.

The accounts'from Mexico are just up to the moment when the rout of the Mexicaus had been completed-and when the American army was preparing to continue its march to the War, then, is the cry of the people; war is the "Halls of the Montezumas." The next intelli- policy of the government. ed for with deep interest. Santa Anna may co, of the defeat and annihilation of their Army Gen. Ampudia, in the fortified city of Monterey. In all these cases there was the greatest disparits in the numbers of the two armies engaged, those of the Mexican far outnumbering those of the American. And a fourth time, when Gen. Santa Anna led his own chosen troops, and when his forces were as four to one of the Americans, Gen Taylor met him, and caused him to fly ignobly from the field, after a battle which opposing armies, the bravery of the troops, the exalted courage and daring of the great American captain who commanded on our side, the prolonged conflict, or the officers and men who fel in the midst of the fight.

After the great and decisive vic find heart to again encounter and oppose the march of our armies. Vera Cruz and the casafter a little more than a show of defence, and him !" other minor posts were given up. Thus driven from the scaboard and from this side of the Sierra Madre there was nothing remaining for the Mexicans to fight for, but their capital -The natural defences which were found along the road to this, gave them advantages to make their defence, which the now superior numbers of our army under Gen Scott they hoped at least, could not compensate for, and they therefore have made another stand. This was at Cerro Gordo. The fight took place on the 18th of Fpril. The result is the complete route of the Mexicans, the dight of Gen. Santa Anna. and inter dispersion, it may be supposed, of his fermy. At can scarcely be possible that he or they will venture again to encounter the force flowing resolution was proposed and adoptwe have now in the field to meet them. The ed: road to the city of Mexico must now be open to the free passage of our armies, and it may be that even now Gen. Scott is in the Halls of the Montegumas.

CAPT. SPEVENS T. MASON.

The many warm friends of this gentleman will fearn with sorrow that he was among the very severely wounded in the storming of the battery or the tower which was in the rear of the Mexican Army, and the capture of which Gen. Scott states in an official despatch, gave us the glorious results of a victory. From the position Capt. M. occupied, we have no doubt there was "warm work," and much anxiety is felt by those in this section who have sons and brothers in this company.

Capt. Mason, it is stated, has lost his left leg, but we may hope, that in the harry incident to writing a brief detail, so soon after the battle, that his wound may not prove as severe as anticipated. The storming of the tower was one of great hazard, and those who participated in it and escaped uphurt, may have good cause to congratulate themselves on their escape. Gen. Vasquez, a Mexican General, was killed whilst defending the tower. The command was then assumed by Gen. La Vega, a man of krown courage and daring; and the reduction of the tower, and its surrender from bis hands, is an evidence that those who made the attack, exhibited heroism and gallantry worthy of old regu-

The low-postage system seems to be operating with the most decided success. A comparison of the receipts at fifty-five of the principal offices in the Union, during the quarter ending on the 31st of March, 1847, with the receipts at the same offices during the corresponding period in 1846, shows an increase of the revenue of the Department of a little over seventeen per cent. The increase was greatest at the Philadelphia office, the eccipts of the first quarter in 1847 havng exceeded those of the first three nonthe in 1846 to the amount of $3,797. which the increase was $3.118.

CELEBRATION .-- The German Reformed Church in Frederick, Md., are making arrangements to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of its establishment in that city. The celebration to take place on Whitsuntide.

THE FIGHTING PARTY .- We mentioned esterday that a fight between two blackguards from New York, is to take p'ace at Harpers-Ferry to-day, and that a number of the rowd gentry from the north, were passing through this city, en route to the place of combat. We learn that so great has been the number passing up, that it was necessary, both yesterday and Sunday morning, to put extra cars on the road Dr Chapman made a very handsome for their accommodation. Some ides of the witness the disgraceful fight contemplated, may be judged from the fact that several burglaries were committed at that place on Sunday night, whilst a number of passengers in the cars have [Balt. Sun of Tuesday. This disgraceful affair, we understand, came off on Tuesday morning last, in Londoun, near the Jefferson line, in a mountainous region of country. We are glad, for the credit of our county, that it did not take place within her limits. Our Magistrates evinced a respect Tor the laws highly commendable, and we are quite certain that our Loudoun friends would have been The Organ at Washington, after equally active in the suppression of this kind of vice, if they had suspected any such infringe. ment on the laws or on common deceney, as has

Dinn-In Smithfield, on the 20th att. Mrs. MABY ANN HARLEY, wife of Mr. Joseph Harley of that place, in the 45th year of her age.

The demise of this excellent lady may not only be Vegarded as a severe bereavement to her immediste family, but a loss to the community in which she lived. If unaffected piety, manifested in the consciencious and unwavering discharge of religious duty, in benevolence of heart, and uniform kindness of manner in social intercourse, can constitute unquestionable. Taught from early life to respect religion and the ordinances of God's house, her deportment, even prior to a profession of experiment-al christianity, was of that high moral character which commands respect wherever observed .-It was not however until a few years since, that she professed a change of heart. Aroused to a conviction of the truth that even strict morality, apart from regeneration, is not sufficient to salvation, she resolved to associate, through the blood of the atone ment, the "vital principle" with the "form of godliness." As a penitent she was humble and sincere-as a seeker, earnest, persevering and successful. Her faith brought justification, and her " acceptance with God" was clear and undoubted. Her subsequent history was consistent with her professions: An altar for prayer was forthwitherected in her own family, and here, in this peculiarly ap- of goods, necessary for the neighborhood propriate sphere for female activity and usefulness, did the wife and mother exert her influence in favor of the cause of Christ. Duty secured its crown, and at the time of her death several members of her family were "partakers of the like precious faith" with her. This is but an illustration from the many which might be given, of her sincers devotion to God. In all the departments of life she "did well her part," and died in the enjoyment of the | signed and Samuel D.
