A SISTER'S LOVE.

There is a clear and precious gem Not brillians like the star of day, Yet clustered in that diadem. Which owns not time's relentless sway: Its radiance sparkles from above, Its earthly name—a sister's love!

Though orient pearls, by friendship strong Around thy brow are pendent And though by love's own finger hung, One diamond shines resplendent : Yet which that potent spell can prove, That test which ties a sister's love!

Blest was the spot which owned the power That consecrated spot, where He, Whom the angelic host admires, Indulged in sweet society,

And bade the stroke of death remove, To sanctify a sister's love.

Bind on your heart this jewel rare, Oh ye to whom this prize is given! Nor let rude hands your treasures tear, But hold it as the gift of heaven! Till death its shining worth improve, And angels crown a sister's love !

nate him and then go home.

It is apparent that the tide is strongly setting in for the man of the people, Gen. Zachary Taylor. The Indiana State Journal says that Isaac C. Elston, who was appointed confingent delegate to the Democratic National Convention, by the late Indiana Democratic State Convention, has come out in favor of Gen. Taylor for the Presidency. And what is true with regard to the West, is equally true in the South. The "peculiar journals" in South Carolina are generally coming out, one after the other, in favor of Gen. Taylor for next President, as the only man calculated to restore peace, unity and harmony to the democracy of the whole Union, or to give dignity and energy to the administration of the government hereafter. Even the friends of Mr. Calhoun are rapidly assuming this position; while they admit that Mr. Calhoun won't be a candidate they say that all his friends will go for Gen. Taylor.
