STANZA

BY WILLIAM LEGGER If yon bright stars which gem the night Be each a blissful dwelling sphere
Where kindred spirits re-unite
Whom death hath torn asunder here,
How sweet it were at once to die,

To leave this blighted orbafar,

Mixt soul in soul to cleave the sky, And soar away f.om star to start But, ah! how dark, how dream and lone Would seem the brightest would of bliss
If, wand'ring through each to
We failed to find the love.
If there no more the ties should twice

Which Death's cold hand alone could set Ab! then those stars in mockery shine, More hateful as they shine forever. It cannot be! Each hope, each fear, That lights the eve, or clouds the brow, Proclaims there is a happier sphere Than this bleak world we live in now; There is a voice which sorrow heats When heaviest weighs life's galling chain-Tis Heaven that whispers, "Dry your tears, The pure in heart shall meet again !

In the House, a motion was made to lay it upon the table, by Mr. Stephens, on the ground that kecould not believe that its passage would secure peace and quiet to the country : if he did, he should be willing to protract this session indefinitely till at was passed. But, as he read the bill, all it did was merely to postpone the question, not to settle it, or give any peace to the country. The session was already of unusual length: he thought it was time they should go home. He had no betief that the question could be settled during the present session: and, wishing to bring it to a test vote, he would move to lay the bill on the table. Parson Brownlow, one of the 'disaffected,' fights manfully, nevertheless, against Cass. From a list of strong facts which he collects for the people, we take the following, which all must agree to be a "clincher:"

"Keep it before the People, That GENE-RAL CASS'S friends say, he was one of the aid-de-camps of Harrison, in the war of 1812, and was always by his side—that these same Locofoco friends, in 1840, declared that Harrison was a coward, and not within one mile of any battle, and that, as a matter of course, his aid-de-camp was in no engagement!"

THE INDEPENDENT TAYLOR PARTY.

The Convention of delegates, which had nomi nated an independent Electoral Taylor ticket for Maryland, re-assembled in Baltimore on the 27th ult., and after debate, passed a resolution withdrawing the ticket nominated by them, and the independent party, as such, has been finally disolved. The effect of this movement is to unite in support of the regular ticket, all the friends of Gen. Taylor in Maryland. As the election of Gen. Taylor was the one purpose for which the independent provement was started, it was well said by the President of the Convention that the persistence in keeping a second electoral ticket in the field, would be inconsistent with that purpose; and therefore, was it wisely decideed by the Convention to withdraw it.

IN CHARACTER.

The " Compromise" Denounced by a Democratic County Elector !

The Union and its train of echoes are out upon Southern Whigs for voting to lay the Comcomise bill upon the table. They may find hemselves a little "too quick upon the trigger." If all Whigs who so voted are to be denounced as "recreant to the South," because they would "compromise" rights which they thought they held under the Constitution, what will be said of the Democratic County Elector of Fraderick, who declared emphatically the other night that "compromise" in such a case was a surrender!" Yes, Mr. J. RANDOLPH TUCKER asserted, with scorn and indignation clouding his usually pleasant and smooth brow, that any compromise upon such a subject would be a burning shame and disgrace—a humiliation and degradetion too deep for language to depict. For ourselves, we were in favor of the "Compromise," because we did not consider any measure that such men as Berrien and Clayton and are not yet supplied, should give him an early ful;" but we think it probable the Whigs who thought otherwise, will scarcely find their equanimity disturbed by the sound of the penny whistles that echo the old euckoo tune of Aboli-

THE VOLUNTEERS.

All efforts of the Spirit to get rid of the odium of turning the proposed welcome to the Volunteers from a general into a political, one-sided affair, will prove unavailing. That print may twist and turn matters as it pleases, yet it cannot relieve the few choice spirits of the Locofoco party who engaged at the Court House on Saturday week, from a studied effort to make political capital, and purchase up the votes of the returned Volunteers, by giving them an invitation to a Barbecue which it was designed having, at any rate, and to which the Volunteers would have been just as much invited though they had
