It is between sixty and seventy feet high, and from two to three feet in diameter. Owing to the improvident method adopted by the natives to obtain the gutta, by cutting down the trees of full growth and wringing the bark, the Island of Singapore has been nearly stripped of its largest timber. During little more than two years from 1st January, 1815. before the practice was adopted of obtaining the sap by tapping the tree, it is estimated that sixty-nine thousans one hundred and eighty trees were sacrificed to supply the gum exported from Singapore to Europe. The average productions of a single tree is about hirteen pounds.

Gutta Percha is flexible like leather, hard and f the exact size-as though the measure had been tough, semi-transparent, and having the appearance of horn. It is highly imflammable, a strip of it burning like sealing wax. When plunged into boiling water it becomes soft and plastic and excessively decide, so that it may be rolled out into the thinnest theets and moulded to any required shape and forus which it retains without contraction after It is not elastic, nor do the oils and grease with which it comes in contact on machinery effect it; hence it is superior for driving bands to any known substance.

POETRY. SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

THURSDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 19, 1848.

BY N. F. WILLIS. I love to look upon a scene like this, Of wild and careless play, And persuade myself that I am not old And my locks are not yet gray; For it stirs the blood in an old man's heart And makes his pulses fly,

To catch the thrill of a happy voice,

And the light of a pleasant eye.

I have walked the earth for fourscore years, And they say that I am old, And my heart is ripe for the reaper, Death, And my years are well nigh told. It is very true-it is very true-I'm old, and "I bide my time;"

But my heart will leap at a scene like this, And I half renew my prime. Play on! play on! I am with you there, In the midst of your merry ring; I can feel the thrill of the daring jump, And the rush of the breathless swing. I hide with you in the fragrant bay, And I whoop the smothered call.

And my feet slip up on the reedy floor,

And I care not for the fall. I am willing to die when my time shall come, And I shall be glad to go,-For the world at best is a weary place, And my pulse is getting low; But the grave is dark, and the heart will fail In treading its lonely way ;

THRILLING AFFAIR

And it wiles my heart of its dreariness,

To see the young so gay.

THE SOUTHERN DESPERADO: A DUEL IN GEORGIA.

In the bar-room of a rude tavern and posthouse in the western part of Georgia, around a rough deal table, ornamented with two or three old newspapers, were seated nine or ten persons-overseers, book-keepers and small planters. As the weather was intensely hot. the party had cause to be thirsty; and thirsty enough they were, if one might judge from their incessant potations of mint-julip, sherry cobbler, sangaree and divers other species of American beverages, the names of which are as singular as their flavor is delicious .-The party had for some time been engaged in a loud and boisterous political conversation, when they were suddenly interrupted by-

"What are you making all this jaw about?" On hearing this gentlemanly query, the assemblage turned their eyes upon the speaker of it with a stare of astonishment and rage: which, however, was instantly converted into an expression of undisguised consternation, as soon as they fully recognised the new

In the door-way stood a man at least six feet three inches in height, and stout in proportion. His features were most essentially villainous, and his large gray eyes gleamed with an expression that was absolutely fiendish. Every thing about him had a ferocious aspect, from the dilapidated white musk-rat hat that was fiercely cocked on one side of his head, to the clumsy and muddy shoes the protected his huge feet; while the buts of two horse pistols, peeping out from the breast of his waistcoat, gave the finishing touch to the picture. As he stared savagely on the company, they forgot every thing but the formidable monster before them War the for-government surveyor) had long ago been for-gotten; but it was universally known throughout the district by the appellation we have just given it. It was a perfect Alsatia, within the magic limits of which no sheriff dare show himself. Here Gamble lorded it over a plantation of eighty or ninety slaves; and here he presided over a gang of miscreants, whose doings were the terror of the country for fifty miles round. Every one of them had in his day murdered at least one white man, counting Indians and negroes for nothing; and their chief had been outlawed a dozen times, for as many atrocious crimes.-At that very moment there was a price of $500 on his head. Several attempts had been made, both by the legal authorities and by private individuals, to take him dead or alive, but they had always failed most signally. On one of these occasions he was said to have killed or mortally wounded, five men, singlehanded. Such being his character, it was no wonder that his appearance in Major Lawson's bar-room struck terror into all its occupants. But I am wrong in saying all; for as he looked round triumphantly upon the cowering assemblage, there was one man who cast back on him a gaze as haughty as his As this person was, moreover, distinguished by being the only individual present who could by any stretch of courtesy be called a gentleman, he deserves more particular

Frederick Stuyvesant Schuyler belonged mention. to one of the oldest Dutch families in New who kept a stylish house in Broadway, and an elegant country-seat on the banks of the Hudson. At the age of fifteen he entered Columbia College, and became, in a short time, a great favorite with Professor Anthon, sedulously did he cultivate his classics and his billards, that, on taking his degree at nineteen, he clould atmost play the pony even, and was considered one of the first scholars his majority, were passed without much profit to himself or any one else. He was nominally studying for the law; but like many young men of fortune, omy did so that he might have the credit of belonging to some profession. This sort of life, however, did not last for ever. At the period of which we are speaking, the American commercial world was beginning to recover from the great explosion of was one to a gentleman in Elkton, Ohio, for 1837; or, indeed, we may say that it had recovered. But during the continuance of the great panic, Mr. Schuyler had, in common with hundreds of his brother merchants, become a bankrupt.

He had but one cause of satisfaction—no small one, it must be confessed, to an honest man-not one creditor lost a cent by him. Having at length wound up his affairs, he found himself, as he would have expressed it, with a capital of half-nothing to begin life again. He became a clerk in a house far inferior to that of which he had been at the head; his daughters took in needle work; and his son determined to get his living as a teacher. Unwilling to remain in his native vored to obtain a tutorship in the South.—

ma, he made instant application for it; and cil-case, and thirty dollars in New York secured it over several competitors, by dint bills. See that I'm decently buried, and secured it over several competitors, by dint of Professor Anthon's testimonials. He then made his will, took leave of his friends, bought a pair of pistels and a dirk, and made such other preparations as a man usually does who is about to leave a civilized for a barbarous country. Thus far, however, he had penetrated in safety to within sixty miles of his destination; and was now waiting at Major Lawson's hotel for the mail-stage, which was expected in a few hours, or days, as the state of the roads and other contingencies might determine. As we have found him in rather dangerous company, it may not be amiss to add a word respecting his qualifications in case of a row. His height did not exceed five feet ten inches, and none of his proportions were large; but he was symmetrically built, possessed great strength and greater agility; and was, moreover, a tolerably scientific pugilist. On the whole, notwithstanding their great disparity in size, a worse antagonist might have been found for the redoubted Meriwether Gamble.

We left that gentleman standing in the door-way of the bar-room, and looking most rantancorously, as a Kentuckian would say, upon the terrified company. Having waited about two minutes, possibly in the hope of receiving an answer to his first interrogation, he thus delivered himself of his opinions on things in general: "So you're all quiet now. You were making noise enough just now, when I came in. What's the matter? P'raps you don't know me? The countenances of all expressed that they sincerely wished they did not .-"I'm Meriwether Gamble, the greatest team in the district. I'm a perfect steamboat, with a considerable sprinkling of the comet. I can knock down and drag out a whole regiment, whip my weight in Indians, swallow buffalo whole, and pick my teeth with the horns. And it's my opinion that you're all the bully ejected a torrent of tobacco juice across the room, directly upon the polished boot of the New Yorker, who involuntarily shook his foot as a man might do who had stepped into a puddle.

The rest of the company were not sorry to present, thus particularly fixed upon the cool and unimpassioned tone :

"Spit on your boot! I'll spit in your face, next time! Very possibly he might have proceeded to out his threat into execution; but if such was nis intention, Schuyler gave him no time to perform it, for on receiving the above response, he instantly planted his fist, with all he emphasis he could command, full in the Georgian's chest. So energetically and skillfully was the blow given, that the giant reeled back, and, with searcely an effort to save, himself, toppled over on the for Gamble suddenly sprung from the floor with a tigerlike bound, and, throwing himself on Schuyler, bore him down at once. Then followed oaths, and pantings, and rapidly interchanged blows, and a precipitate scatteration of the bystanders right and left, as the combatants rolled over and over on the floor in mortal

There was a pause in the conflict. Both struggle. had risen to their knees; neither endeavored to regain his feet, or overthrow the other; but Schuyler was evidently trying to draw his dirk, and Gamble as clearly endeavoring to draw his bowie-knife.

At length the Georgian having freed his right arm, raised it over his head, as if to chop down his antagonist with his clenched fist. Such, however, was not his intention. In a moment the bright blade of his weapon gleamed in the air, and muttering a fearful oath, he made a deadly stab at the other.-Schuyler caught his opponent's wrist, and turned the knife aside; its point entered the the floor, and it snapped in too. Furious at the loss of his weapon, Gamble suddenly caught his antagonist by the throat with both hands, and casting his huge weight upon him, hurled him back helplessly to the floor. It was a perilous time for Schuyler. With one hand on his breast, the savage held him down; the other was twisted in his flowing black curls, and the long thumbnail was under his eye. "He's gouged!" exclaimed the host: when suddenly the fallen man jerked up his knees, and fairly sent his bulky enemy over his head in a complete somerset. A shout of approbation broke from all present. The Major now thought proper to interfere. "Boys!" he exclaimed as the combatants regained their feet and gave signs of renewing the battle. "Part 'em! they've had rough-and-tumble enough."-Three men immediately caught hold of Schuyler, and four surrounded Gamble. The belligerents were doubtless not at all sorry to be separated; though Gamble made a show of resistance, and swore terribly at those about him. And now Major Lawson, who being on his own premises felt authorised in assuming a little authority, proceeded to explain his views on the subject, and ended a short but characteristic speech:

"Let 'em have a pair of pistols and a bowie-knife a piece, nothing else; put 'em in a dark room together, and let 'em fight it out like gentlemen.

This proposition was received with a shout. The room selected for the duel was a sort of garret, which, having no window, was re-duced to a state of total darkness by closing the door. To this the combatants were conducted, and immediately commenced their ings. preparations for the encounter, in which they were assisted by all present. After being provided with weapons, Gamble kicked off his shoes, and Schuyler pulled off his boots, rolled up his trowsers a little way, and cut off his straps, for fear the buttons should on his straps, for lear the buttons should in an equal quantity, which he was assured make a noise. The Major suggested that was likely to be in much demand before a which they accordingly did; and Schuyler, while giving his to the landlord, made this success, and appended to the letter was a big while giving his to the landlord, made this brief testamentary disposition:

"Major," said he, "it's highly probable that one of us will never go out of this room till keep the balance for your trouble." "I say, Major," growled Gamble, "just fix me a good stiff mint-julep, and have it ready for me in tifteen minutes. Don't forget 110W !" . These were the last words the combatants spoke. Almost every one had left the room except Lawson; who now stationed the parties in opposite corners, asked if they were quite ready, and, on receiving an affirmative re-

fight it out like gentlemen." The first thing which each did was to as follows: change his position five or six feet: after which they remained some time inactive .-The difficulties of their position will be readily appreciated. If one of the duelists advanced upon the other with the intention of coming to close quarters, he might by some slight noise expose himself to his antago- | ded it had ceased to breathe; whereupon he nist's fire, or run unawares upon the point of a knife or the muzzle of a pistol. If he the cave. On reaching the bottom, he found fired without being sure of his man, the flash of his pistol would guide the other in returning his shot. The most natural course was for them to wait, each in the hope of exhaust- | dead wolf into the sunlight, it was found that ing his opponent's patience, and tempting him to commit some imprudence.

In this way they watched each other, or rather watched for each other, for about ten minutes; when at length Schuyler thought he detected the cat-like gleam of his antagonist's gray eyes at the opposite side of the garret. Turning his left side in that direction, and bringing his right arm across his breast, he peered more eagerly than before into the | ing-knife and assaulted the monster. The darkness. His suspicion was increased to bear tore off nearly every rag of his clothing, certainty; he fired. Instantly the fire was and in his first plunge with the knife ho returned; and his left arm which he had in- completely cut off two of his own fingers inveluntarily raised, fell shattered by his side. In the agony of the moment, he hurled the perfect frenzy of pain, and in making another a set of cowards." With which practical application of his somewhat desultory remarks, struck harmlessly on the rough logs which ed the victory. The bear weighed three formed the side walls, he heard a low taunt- hundred and fifty pounds. ing chuckle. Human nature could not bear it; he fired again, almost at random. Again blood, he fell heavily to the floor, while ansee the insult, which had been offered to all other fiendish laugh sounded in his ears.

But though sorely wounded, Schuyler was stranger, who was thus bound to take up the not yet hors du combat. But what was more revancing close to the huge ruffian, asked, in a emy would assail him before he was completely prostrated by the loss of blood. His host (who possibly had some private reasons of his own for rejoicing at Gamble's death, and feeling grateful to the man who had put him out of the way) refused to receive one cent of compensation for board, lodging or attendance. Nay, more; he virtually put five hundred dollars into his pocket, by informing him of the reward that had been offered for Gamble, dead or alive. So Schuyler took leave of the hospitable Major, and proceeded to Milledgeville, (the capital of the State.) to claim the reward. The Governor, who had already heard of the transaction, was so pleased with Schuyler's prowess, that he invited him to dinner, ex-

A MERCANTILE ANECDOTE.

An old fellow, living at Frankfort-on-the-Main, sent to a business correspondent at Frankfort-on-the-Order a large consignment of cotton stockings, and at the same time, to another correspondent, in the same place, an equally large consignment of eitton night caps, the product of his own manufactory. He wrote to each the price at which they were to sell, but the sum designated was found to be too large, of which fact they took occasion to inform him. He yielded a little in his demand, but still there were no offers for his fabries. Again he writes, in reply to other letters from his correspondents, naming a smaller amount; but weeks elapse, and sill no sale. At length he writes to each correspondent to make some disposition of his manufactures; if they can't get money for them, at least to exchange them, no matter at what reasonable sacrifice for any other goods. Under these instructions, the stocking factor calls upon the night-cap agent, both unknown to each other in connection with their principal, and "names his view;" he wishes to exchange a lot of superior cot ton stockings for some other goods, he is not particular what kind, as the transaction is for a friend, who is desirous of "closing his stock." The man at first can think of nothing which he would like to exchange for so large a supply of stockings, but at length a bright thought strikes him.

"I have," said he "a consignment of cotton night-caps from an old correspondent which I shall not object to exchange for your stock-

The bargain was soon closed. The stocking factor wrote back at once that he had been enabled to comply with the instructions of his principal. He had exchanged his stockings for "a superior article of night-cap," in an equal quantity, which he was assured great while! The next day came a letter it too." bill for commissions. A THRILLING SKETCH.

A correspondent of the National Intelligencer writing from the Alleghany Mountains in Georgia, describes an old hunter whom ho found in a log cabin, in the centre of a small valley completely hemmed in on all sides by wild and abrupt mountains and one of the most beautiful rocks imaginable. He has lived there for about thirty years, is sixty years old, and wears a long beard. He professes to have killed in his lifetime about four thousand deer, and amused the corresponsponse, wished them good bye, and locked the | dent of the Intelligencer with long stories of door upon them, leaving them together, "to his adventures with the wild beasts of the forest, some of which the writer has condensed

On one occasion he came up to a large grey welf, into whose head he discharged a ball.-The animal did not drop, but made his way into an adjoining cavern and disappeared.— Vandever waited awhile at the opening: 23 he could not see or hear his game he concluthe wolf alive, when a "clinch fight" ensued, and the hunter's knife completely severed the heart of the animal. On dragging out the its lower jaw had been broken, which was prebably the reason why he had not succeeded in destroying the hunter. At one time when he was out of ammunition, his dogs fell upon a large bear; and it so happened that the latter got one of the former in his power, and was about to squeeze it to death. This was a sight the hunter could not endure, so he unsheathed his large huntstead of injuring the bear. He was now in a

On another occasion he had fired at a large buck near the brow of a precipice some the fire was returned; the ball piercing his thirty feet high, which hangs over one of the side, and, overcome with pain and loss of pools of Tallulah river. On seeing the buck drop, he took it for granted that it was about to die, when he approached the animal for the purpose of cutting its throat. To markable, the animal succeeded in its effort, though not until Vandever had obtained a fair hold on the buck's antlers, when the twain performed a summerset into the pool below. The buck made his escape, and Vanticular. About a month subsequent to that time he killed a buck, which had a bullet wound in the lower part of his neck, whereupon he concluded he had finally triumphed over the animal which had given him the un-

But the most remarkable escape which old Vandever experienced happened in this wise: He was encamped attack a tearful loftiest make the ravine half a mile below him. As fortune would have it, the limb of an oak tree dropped over the rock; and as the rock started from its tottlish foundation, he seized the limb and thereby saved his life. The dreadful crashing of the boulder as it descended the mountain side came to the hunter's car while he was suspended in the air, and by the time it had reached the bottom he dropped himself on the very spot which had been vacated by the boulder. Vandever said that this was the only time in his life when he was really frightened; and he also added, that for one day after the escape he

"TRAIN UP A CHILD," ETC.

A contemporary says :- We do not know when we have felt the truth contained in the sentiment of the above proverb more distinctly than in listening to the conversation of a geneleman a few evenings since, who related several anecdotes of the great men of our country. Among others, he mentioned that the late John Quiver Apails stated to his minister a few months before his decease, that he had never failed before going to sleep, of repeating the little prayer taught him by his mother in infancy:

"Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep; And if I should die before I wake, I prey the Lord my soul to take."

THE AFFECTIONS.

"Were I in a desert," says the sympathet-

Sterne, "I would find something in it to all forth my affections. If I could not do better, I would fasten them upon some sweet myrtle, or seek some melancholy cypress, and repose beneath its shades; I would carve my name upon them, and declare they were the loveliest trees throughout the desert. If their leaves withered, I would teach myself to mourn, and when they renewed their verdure, I would instinctively rejoice. The heart and the affections require to be called forth; and if we are so unfortunate as to he destitute of friends, we must endeavor to place them upon something that is sensible to our attachment; for to a mind endowed with feelings and sensibility, nothing can be so dreadful as a state of indifference."

We do not know how more appropriately than by this head to introduce to our readers the following well-timed and stirring Appeal to the Whigs of the United States, by the editors of the New York Express, themselves among the most active in the front rank of our political friends:

"The Whirs of the United States are now so wel aroused, and we may add now so well united, that it seems hardly necessary to roll the drum any longer; but action and concord, though indispensably neceseary for success, are yet not half enough of what is wanted. Action must be turned to useful account. There must be energy, enthusiasm, watchfulness, and, above all, organization.

Is the Whig party everywhere organized ? That is the question. 'No' is the answer, we venture to say, in most quarters; but no must be the answer no longer, for where there is no organization there is no certainty of success. Regulars are as important in politics as in war; and discipline is as necessary for success at the ballot-box as in the field. Orations. eddresses, resolutions, speeches, &c., are all important but not much more important than the band of music in an army. The bugle inspires, the fife arouses, the drum wakes up; the band then makes even cowards brave, but it is the silent host moving shoulder, to shoulder, step by step, that does the work. Orations, &c., are thus all well enough, nay, very necessary, but the true captain, in a coming great day, must know his men, and where to find them .-Organization and discipline ensure him success, no matter what the host arrayed against him. He counts three, who adds two votes to his own. GEN. TAYLOR AND HIS WOUNDED. GEN. TAYLOR-EXTRA ALLOWANCES.

Col. JEFFERSON DAVIS, now a Senator of the United States, and formerly the brave leader of the Mississippi rifles, so distinguished at Mouterey and at Buena Vista, addressed the people of Vicksburg not long since on political matters. The Colonel belongs to the Cass party, but evidently gives no great tribute of enthusiasm to the gentleman in Michigan : while he cannot speak of Ger. Taylon without being moved into eloquence and excitement. Col. Davis served under the old chief, has been in battle with him knows him well, and considering him one of the best and soblest men in the world, loves and admires him accordingly. An account of the honorable Senator's speech, given in one of the Vicksburg papers, says:-He ran over some of the prominent measures of the public policy in which he took an interest during the late session of Congress spoke in terms of severe condemnation concerning the "detection" of Benton and Houston on the Oregon Bill-said no-thing about Polk-gave out that the Northern Democrats were no longer worthy of being called "al-lies of the South," and he should never again speak of them as such, and came at last, with evident reluctance, to the Presidential contest. He said that if any person expected him to speak evil of Gen. Taylor, he would be disappointed. He knew no evil of the old hero, and spoke of him as one of the purest and noblest men the world had ever seen.— The Colonel seemed greatly moved in speaking of Gen. Taylor, and his enlogy on the old man was beyond all question the finest we over heard. It was received with thunders of involuntary applause .-He referred to the kindness and almost paternal regard shown by Gen. Taylor to the Mississippians under his command, and was again interrupted by a storm of cheers.

He said that the old General stood god-father to the sons of Mississippi, when, amid the war and smoke of the fight, they were baptized in blood on the beights of Buena Vista-Judi was again compelled to pause by a hurricane of applause. He said that during the progress of the battle, after he (Col. Davis) was wounded, Gen. Taylor came and sat down by him-the firm determination on his brow seemed struggling with an expression of deep sorrow for the brave fellows who had fallen and hose who were yet to bite the dust-when, on being interrogated as to his purposes, he replied, while the fire of an unconquered will gleamed in his eyemy wounded are behind me, and I shall never pass them alive!" "About this time the crowd became so excited that they were almost ready to carry the

This touching and most heroic reply (says the Baltimore American.) has never before come to our knowledge. It is one of those characteristic sayings which so strongly mark Gen. Taylor's firm, yet generous nature. No wonder his soldiers had confidence in him. ' No wonder that 'victory went with him and perched upon his standard wherever it floated over a contested field.

AN "EXTRA" ARISTOCRAT!

When Mr. Cass was about to sail over the Mediterranean, Com. Elliot was obliged to give him such exclusive and elegant quarters on his ship, as would protect his Highness from the intrusion of the "herd of tourists," and surround him with the society of Sir Howard Payne and others' of the French and English nobility! And in this country it seems Mr. Cass won't allow plain country farmers to ride in the same stage-coach with him. The Wooster (Ohio) Democrat, gives the following statements from men whose character and veracity

"In the summer of 1844, I entered my name in the stage office at Strongville, for a passage in the When the stage arrived, all the seats in the Coach were full, except the front seat of the Coach which was alone occupied by Lewis Cass. . When I attempted to get into the Coach, I was told by Gen. Cass that I could not get inside, as all the seats were full except one upon which he sat, and that I could not sit upon the same seat with him-that he could do without my company. I was consequently compelled to ride on the outside, with the driver and the servant of Gen. Cass. Gen. Cass occupied the front

-HE FALLS. Neither fiction nor fact furnishes an incident of more thrilling interest than one which occurred last evening at the Falls, and is detailed below by our correspondeat. There is something terribly appalling, almost sublime, in the struggles for life of a strong, self-possessed man, when drawn into the torrent that, with the speed of a race horse, sweeps him onward to certain destruction. A moment scarcely clapses between entire safety and a most fearful death, yet in that moment what a wealth of life may be compressed. How like lightning must fiash through the mind all the pleasant recollections of childhood, the firm resolves of vigorous manhood, the hopes of the future, the endearments of home and friends, repentance for past errors, and prayers for forgiveness in that dread presence to which he is so awfully summoned !- Buffalo Adv. Oct. 2.

NIAGARA FALLS, Oct. 2d, 1848. At about sun-down last evening a man was carried over the Falls. Who he was is not known. From his management of the sail boat in which he came down the river, I think be was not well acquainted with the current or the rapids. His dress and appearance indi-cated respectability, and after he got into the rapids his self-possession was extraordinary. His boat was a very good one-decked over on the bow, and I should think would carry three or four tons. From what I learn of a sail boat having been seen below Black Rock, coming down, I think it is from there or Buffalo. No other than a person unacquainted with the current a-bove the rapids would venture so near them.

I was on the head of Goat Island when I first discovered the boat-ther near half a mile below the foot of Navy Island, and searly two miles above the Falls. There seemed to be two in the boat. It was directed toward the 'American shore-the wind blowing from this shore, and still the sail was standing Being well acquainted with the river. I regarded the position of the boat as extraordinary and hazardous, and watched it with integse anxiety. Soon I discovered the motion of an oar, and from the changing direction of the beat concluded it had but one. While constanty approaching nearer and nearer the rapids. I could liscover it was gaining the American shore, and by the time it had got near the first fall in the rapids, about half a mile abore Goat Island, it was directly above the island. There it was turned up the river and for some time the wind tept it nearly stationary. The only hope seemed to be tocome directly to Goat Island, and whether I should run half a mile to give alarm or remain to assist, in the event the boat attempted to make the island, was a question of painful doubt. But soon the boat was again turned toward the American shore.— Then it was certain it must go down the American ra-

I ran for the bridge-saw and informed a gentleman and lady just leaving the island, but they seemed un-able to reply or move. I railied a man at the toll gate —we ran to the main bridge in time to see the beat just before it got to the first large fall, in the rapids. Then I saw but one man—he standing at the stern with his oar, changing the course of the boat down the current, and as it plunged over, he sat down. I was astonished to see the boat rise withthe mast and sail standing, and the man, again erect, directing the beat toward shore. As he came to the next and to each succeeding fall he sat down, and then would rise and apply his oar in the intermediate current. Still there was hope that he would come near enough to the pier to jump, but in a moment it was gone. Another, that he might jump upon the rock near the bridge, but the current dashed him from it under the bridge, breaking the mast. Again he rose on the opposite side. Taking his oar and pointing his boat toward the main shore, he cried, "Had I better jump from the boat?" We could not unswer, for either seemed certain destruction. Within a few rods of the Falls, the boat struck a rock-turned over and lodged. He appeared to craw from under it, and swan with the oar in his hand till he went over the precipice. Without the power to render assistance-for half an hour watching a strong man struggling with every nerve for life, yet doomed with almost the certainty of destiny to an immediate and awful death, still hoping with every effort for his deliverance—caused an intensity of excitement I pray God never again to experi-

MR. GENERAL COMMANDER.

It will be recollected that this distinguished percoage assumed the responsibility of easting the whole nine votes of South Carolina, in the Baltimore Convention for Gen. Cass. See how his own district repudiates him and his candidate.

The Georgewan Bistrict (Gen. Commander's) has elected two Taylor and one Cars representative to the Legislature.

We find that the last "Spirit" copies an article from the Washington Union, purporting to give an account of extras received from Government by Gen. Taylor. The Upion attempts to mislead the public mind and withdraw it from the gaze which is fixed on the large sums received by Cass whilst acting as Governor of Michigan. This base atsempt to stigmatize the honest and high-minded Taylor, is fully met of what we subjoin from the National Intelligencer:

"What is the precise amount of money which Gen. TAYLOR has received for his forty years' hard serthe Treasury accounts before us. But the assertion his proper pay is designed to convey the idea (and herein is its falsehood) that he has received it filegally, gratuitously, and over and above the lawful allowances of his commission. Do they mean to say that Gen. Taylog has received one cent more. either in pay or allowances, (for quarters, forage, or subsistence,) than Gen. BUTLER received while in service? They dare not say this. Gen. Taylor has never received one dollar of extra pay or extra allowance; the concocters of this insidious libel know that he has not; ver they would impose upon the ignorant and credulous the belief that Gen. Tay-LOR-whose Cato-like honesty was never tainted by the breath of calumny before the People made him their candidate for the Presidency-has, in the shape of extras, fraudulently and illegally received this sum from the Treasury."

NOBLE SENTIMENTS.

The following ance lote in reference to Gen. Taylor. ted in one of the Congressional Districts of the City related by the Staunton Spectator, whose gallant editor, Capt. Harper, was in service under him, and had an opportunity of forming a true judgment of his The old Hero was asked on one occasion by a lady what he meant, in saying he was not an ultra Whig His reply was-" Madam-I have been called upon to pass through three ways since I joined the army. In the war of 1812, I saw both parties represented on the battle-field, and even in my little command at Fort Harrison, they stood shoulder to shoulder. I saw the Whig and the Democrat lie slown in the Swamps of Florida, and in the morning risk up to their posts of duty; and again I saw them rise not up, but together he in the embrace of death. I have seen the Whig and the De moerat again, side by side, on the banks of the Rio Grande. I saw them both stand together at the cannon's mouth at Monterey-and again on the bloody field of Buena Vista, and both looked up to the same star spangied banner. The Whig and Democrat spread the same tent upon the sand banks at Vera Cruz, and together marched to the Halls of the Montezumas at their country's call. And at last, I have seen the Whig and Democrat returning home, with constitutions broken and health impaired to die; and seeing these things, I could not find it in my heart to proscribe men for mere political differences!

Let our opponents then, (says Capt. II.) twit us as much as they please in regard to the "No-Partyism" of our candidate. We like him all the better for what they so much dislike. He is an honest man, and a good Whig, zealously devoted to the preservation of the checks and balances of the Constitution, and he will in smoke.

DESERTING IN MICHIGAN.

The Philadelphia American says-Almost every mail brings us encouraging intelligence from the State in which the Locofoco candidate resides -There is a large and growing defection among the masses of the "Democracy" in Michigan, who know Gen. Cass to have been a black cockade Federalist. to be an aristocrat in all his political practice, and to have put on the cloak which he now wears, only as an expedient of the hour, to be cast aside whenever it has served the end for which it was assumed. A meeting was held on the 29th of September, at Springwells, which was addressed by the Hon. John Norvell, formerly a Democratic U.S. Senator. and other distinguished personages, who have recanted Locofocoism, with all its destructive doctrines. An interesting incident occurred in the course of the proceedings, which we will relate in the language of the Detroit Advertiser :

A MARRIAGE OF FRIENDS.

We witnessed, on Wednesday last, the first Quaker marriage which it had ever been our good fortune to ee. It was interesting to us from its novelty as well as the decorum with which it was conducted. It cerainly requires some nerve on the part of the young folks, to get up amidst a silent and anxious crowd, and publicly and audibly interchange their vows to be oving and faithful until Death shall them part; but when the union of two loving hearts is resolved upon, all bashfulness must give way, and every body must be told in plain terms that the "twain are one."

When the parties were all assembled, and seated in the Church, profound silence was observed; and one of the venerable fathers remarked, that their method of accomplishing marriages being altogether different from being no minister employed, the only injunction given was, that quiet and good order should be observed when the parties to the contract should arise, at their own could see and hear.

After half an hour's silence, the youthful couple arose, and repeated the pledge usual on such occasions. They were then seated, and the contract given them to sign. After this, the certificate was read aloud by the same venerable Friend, who stated that silence would be again observed for a proper period, as became a people who fear d God. This being complied with, the meeting was concluded, and numerous witnesses then placed their signatures to the contract. It was a bright day in all respects. May the sunshine of the happy pair always preponderate!

THE FRATERNITY IN DANGER.

The life of an Editor is by many persons considered one of temptation and danger-one that is likefrom its constant tax upon the ingenuity of man -its incessant drafts upon his imagination-to make him sophistical and unreliable. We do not admit this in all its force.

One cannot therefore, but feel a mingled sensavice we do not pretend to state, because we have not stion of pride and regret at seeing such a pure, rightminded, and truly honest man as Joseph R. Chandthat he has received this large sum over and above . LER, of the old United States Gazette, transerred to fied body, the National House of Representatives .-The only hope is, that the influence of his fine example in all that is intellectually and personally dignified and manly will operate upon his associates, and that he will escape contamination, great as may his exposure. As one of the craft, we feel gratified in seeing the popular voice settling down upon such an intellect-and consider it an evidence of progress quite honorable to all concerned. The tribute must be deemed an honest emanation of the heart and judgment, for with all Mr. Chandler's powers, he is above the arts of the demagogueabove all the little appliances that often insure popularity to mere politicians.

sion will be fully maintained-however hazardous the service may be to the subjects of popular favor.

FACTS TO BE NOTED.

We find, too, that another gentleman of the press, distinguished for ability, energy, and manly qualities, is in the way of preferment: JAMES BROOKS,

Esq., of the New York Express, has been nomina-

The Locofoco presses are already beginning to bunt up excuses for their defeat in Pennsylvaniaand are now raising the hue and cry that Jourson, the Whig candidate for Governor, is a Free Soil man, and that this is sufficient to alarm the South. Truly, this comes with a poor grace from presses which failed to condemn Cameron and Sturgeon-Benton and Houston-and others of the party who voted for the Wilmot Proviso-and President Polk who

These scrupulous editors, who are so much horified at the idea of Johnston being a Free Soiler, do not pretend that they would have had the slightest objection to receiving the votes of the most fanatical of the Abolitionists for their own men. Oh no! It is only when these people vote against the Democraev that contact with them is deemed contamination. We think all the fuss made on this score will end

But there is one fact worthy of especial observation:-that in the rabid Free Soil regions the vote of that party, was not for Johnston. In Wilmot's him and for Longstreth. Wilmot's own majority (as we gather from the New York Herald) was 3,400, showing a difference of over 5,000 between the vote received by him and that of Gov. Johnston. When the Free Soilers have their own ticket up for President, Taylor Whiggery will speak for itself-and that it will sweep the State, no sane man

It is idle to indulge in speculations upon the approaching Presidential canvass, for every thing ems to conspire to render the triumphant election Old Zach, a matter of almost entire certainty .-The N. Y. Tribune enters into an article of length. and reviews the chances in the several States, with an eye of impartiality. That paper presents the following calculation, but remarks that it does not expect the States will vote precisely as given, being of the opinion that Taylor will do much better, but at the same time thinks it a fair exhibit of the present state of the contest, from an impartial point of view. There may be changes both ways, but the table below will show that; conceding to Gen. Cass. Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, and the entire North-Westwhich we do not believe he can get-Gen. Taylor will still be elected. Those States marked with an asterisk (*) the Tribune considers as doubtful, either

Here we can afford to rest our case, though we are not without strong hopes of Georgia, 10; Indiana 12. Illinois 9: Wisconsin 4, and Virginia 17. We say these things in no spirit of empty boast, and with no desire of crowing over our opponents, for we shall exult in the election of Gen. ## POLITICAL DISCUSSION.

On Saturday last, a political discussion took place in Shepherdstown. The Whig champions were Lawson Botts, Esq., of this town, and HEN-RY BERRY, Esq., County Elector. On the Locofoco side there appeared Jarvis Spencer, Esq., of Hagerstown, A. J. O'BANNON, Esq., County Elector, and R. HUME BUTCHER, Esq. We can furnish but a mere report of what was done rather than a detail of the speeches. The Whigs of the Old Unterrified, through this medium, present their compliments to the Democratic champions, and hope they will find it convenient to give several more speeches, in that quarter, as they have served to stir up the blood of Taylor Whigs and Taylor Democrats, and that now, that good old precinct will roll up such a Taylor majority as will electrify the cohorts of the one-man power. The discussion alluded to was opened by Mi Spencer, who was replied to in eloquent terms by Mr. Botts, Mr. O'Bannon succeeded and read from district, there was the heavy majority of 1720 against | documents both large and small. Mr. Butcher followed, and spoke for several hours. The meeting broke up at 10 or 11 o'clock at night-the Whigs delighted with their champions, and more than ever, if possible, with their cause. Look out for the terrible dressing Mr. Cass will receive at the Shepherdstown poll in November .-Let each of the other precincts present such an ac-

TEMPERANCE PROCESSION

At Shepherdstoren Potomac Division No. 60, Sons of Temperance had a procession in Shepherdstown, on Saturday last. The number in attendance was quite large and the ceremonies of the day passed off in an agreeable manner. About 130 Sons, clad in the neat and chaste Regalia of the Order, were in procession, under the direction of Mr. John M. Jewerr and Mr. WM. G. BUTLER, as Marshals. The procession moved through the main street, and then took up the line of march for the commodious Presbyterian Church, which was soon filled. After prayer, the Rev. Mr. Monroe of Harpers Ferry delivered an Address in defence of the Institution, setting forth its principles, and calling upon all to unite in this heaven-born work. He was succould be se Mr. Guanges, of Md. (we understand)

THE TAYLOR VICTO IN PENNSYLVANIA.

We give below the latest news we have received of the late election in this State, from which it will be seen that it is confidently contended that WM. F Jounston, the Whig candidate for Governor has been elected by a majority of from one to five hundred! This result was entirely unexpected, and the triumph is one of which every Taylor man in the Union should feel proud, as it settles the question of who's to be President."

Whether Mr. Johnston be elected or not, the triumph is nearly as complete. If in one year we can break down 18,000 majority, (which Gov. Shunk received last year) who can set bounds to the vote Old Zachary will get when he steps on the turf himself! What have we gained by the Pennsylvania Elections? Every thing, and more than our fondest hopes had calculated upon. We have, in all probability, a Whig Governor, a large Whig majority of the Congressional delegation, an increased majority of the State Senate, and a decided Whig majority in the lower branch of the Legislature-with the necessary consequence of a Whig United States Senator, and of a Whig Treasurer of the State.

The Whig Central Committee in congratulating

the Taylor men of the Union remark: "Of the result of the election in November, we do not enter-Jefferson, who will be gratified to learn that his tain a doubt. es received in Baltimore, one from Philadelphia and the other from Harrisburg, the capital of the State, where the official returns are filed away in the office of the Secretary of State.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Patriot.] PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17 .- 2, P. M. The Pennsylvanian (L. F.) publishes an extra. which gives Johnston ELEVEN majority in the whole State. This majority "will do," after the boasting of the Locofocos previous to the election that they would carry the State by 10 000, and their clamorous rejoicings for the last twenty-four hours. But even if the Pennsylvanian is correct in all its reported returns, I find, on comparing the efficial accounts, that we have, that it makes an error of 100 against Johnston. I see nothing to change my opinion that he is elected. But it is too close to be certain.

By Telegraph for the Baltimore Patriot. HIRRISEURG, Oct, 17,-8 P. M. Returns have at length come in from all the counies, determining Gov. Johnston's majority to be over 500. Two-thirds of the vote is official; the rest from authenticated reports.

OHIO ELECTION.

We are still without positive intelligence as to the result of the election in this State for Governor, and it is probable that the result will not be known until the official vote has been counted. Each party at the latest dates from Columbus, Ohio, claimed the election of their candidate. The Whigs, however, have achieved triumph enough in carrying the Legislature, and will have the pleasure of ousting roaring and ranting Mr. Wm. Allen, who has misrepresented the sentiment of that State for many years in the U.S. Senate. In the Congressional delegation the Locofocos have gained Olds in the Fairfield and Sweetser in the Licking Districts, and have lost Kennon in the Belmont District. The delegation in the next Congress will, therefore, probably stand 11 Locos to 10 P. S. Since the above was in type, a dispatch has been received in Baltimore, from Wheeling, stating that the Locofocos there positively assert that Weller has been elected Governor: We will not undertake to say with certainty, who s elected in such a close contest as this appears to be, but with the Legislature Whig, giving us a U. S. Senator in place of Mr. Allen, "the roarer," we to $25,000. may well rejoice, even though Weller should be elected Governor by a few votes, brought about by a

Another Miraculous Cure.

DEAD the following letter, and then, if you are troubled with any disease of the lungs, go and get a bottle of DR. HASTINGS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF NAPTHA. ST. JOHNSVILLE, New York, Feb. 5, 1848. Mr. Harrison : Sir-I will trouble your patience a few minutes by informing you of the great triumph which your Naptha Syrup has obtained in the case of my brother. He increased the dose as you directed, and the result was that he began to raise very freely. and it scented so badly that it was impossible to stay in the room where he was, on the fifth day after the increase of the dose. In a day or so after, he began to get better, and at this present time is quite revived, has a good appetite, and don't cough a quarter as much as he did previously. A severe cough and immense expectoration were the prominent symptoms of the disease. I think his case was a singular one: none of the physicians here had ever heard or seen any thing of the kind before. I mention all these particulars, as I am firm in the belief that, had it not been for the Naptha Syrup, he could have expected nothing but a speedy grave, as there was an immense number of tubercles formed on his lungs, which the medicine took immediate hold of, and in a few days he threw them up by the quantity; some of them were as large as a bean. It he improves as fast as he has done, I do not think that he will need any more than the six bottles I now send for. Enclosed are five dollars. Direct the box as before to Jonas Snell. Care of Charles Kingshud, Railroad Depot. Yours respectfully, JONAS SNELL. After reading the above, who can doubt that Hastings' Naptha Syrup possesses all the virtue that is claims

BARGAINS, RARGAINS NEED rot tell you what I have on head, all of you, chilzens and countrymen. Here is the place obtain all kinds of merchandize. My stock is entirely too large to enumerate; come one, come all, and see before buying elsewhere, as I intend to sell to every customer who will favor me with a If I don't get my price, we will meet half way, in all cases; if that won't do, I will sell any how, if I can, so that I get the cash. I can do more than a credit store, as you all can judge for yourselves, for I am enabled to sell at one, one-half, or less profit for cash, as I expect to lose nothing by crediting goods out to pay day, six and eighteen months, and then lose it. So here goes, citizens, for a cush system, at one-half the usual profit, or else at cost. Come! come one and all, and buy, citizens, and save money to buy more goods with.— This store is found on Hotel Square, near the Po-tomac Bridge, Harpers-Ferry. I have an entire new stock, just received and opened.

EXCHANGE MOTEL, WASHINGTON CITY, D. C. THE very liberal patronage extended towards the "Exchange Hotel" since it has been in the occupancy of the undersigned, making it emphatically the "Virginia Head Quarters," has induced him to extend his apartments in order to add to the comfort of his guests. Accordingly he has leased the large and pleasant building adjoining his present establishment, which will enable him to accommodate the travelling public as comfortably as any other Hotel in the City. While the "Exchange is situated in a more quiet and retired part of the City than some of the Hotels, it is nevertheless as convenient of access from the Rail Road Depot. The undersigned cannot permit the present opportunity to pass without returning his grateful acknowledgments for the liberal encouragement extended him by his friends. Their kindness will be an additional incentive to exertion. T. M. McILHANY.

Medicine. CUDDEN changes from very hot to chilly weather, are unfavorable to health, and it is a fact universally admitted, that heat and moisture are powerful agents in producing disease, and that constant dry and constant wet weather are both favorable to its generation; it does not signify what we call it : it may be ague ; it may be bilious fever; it may be yellow fever; it may be dysintery; it may be rheumatism; it may be bronchitis; it may be cholic; it may be constipation of the bowels; it may be inflammation of the bowels; it may be inflammation of the stomach; it may be a nervous affection; but still it is disease, and a disease curable by the Brandreth Pills, because they remove all impurities from the body, all that can in any manner feed the further progress of the malady; no matter how ealled; thus these pills are not only the most proper medicine, but generally the only medicine that need or ought to be used.
