POETRY. TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW.

Don't tell me of to-morrow!

Give me the man who'll say,

That, when a good deed's to be done,

Let's do the deed to-day. We may all command the present, If we act and never wait: But repentance is the phantom Of the past, that comes too late

Don't tell me of to-morrow! There's much to do to-day, That can never be accomplished, If we throw the hours away; Every moment has its duty— Who the future can foretell?

Then why put off-till to-morrow What to-day can do so well 3 Dor't tell me of to-morrow! If we look upon the past, How much that we have left to do We cannot do at last! To-lay! it is the only time

For all on this frail earth;

It takes an age to form a life, A moment gives it birth. SONG OF THE FORSAKEN.

Yes, meet me in my dying hour, When life is growing cold; And the story of thy cruel power, Upon my heart is told. Come while its strings are yet awake, And trembling still for thee; And as they quiver, ere they break, Thy soul shall feel for me. Go with them when they bear me out, And lay me down to rest, Then leave me in my loneliness,

The damp sods on my breast, Go back to him for whom you gave The life that once was mine: I shall not feel in that dark grave This perfidy of thine. SATURDAY CLEANSING.

THE USES OF POVERTY. "Give me neither poverty nor riches" was the prayer of Agur. And yet, it may be | character we cannot know. The wife assayed said, that each of these conditions has its benefits as well as its temptations. To be rich, is to have the ability if not to attain, at least to confer happiness. In this country, were willing to confide your secret joys and wealth ensures its possessor other advantages, which add to its general attractions .- ed your confidence! Why, then, my dear Ed-

Poor men have the common privilege of the lilies of the field, arrayed in that rich apparel which Solomon, in all his glory, clothed in purple and fine linen, in the midst of this countless multitude of the great | traitor. works of God. Poor men may worship without rebuke in the great temple of nature, whose blessings are dispensed, as were those of Revelation in primitive times, without money and without price. Poor men have none of the cares or perplexities of wealth. What is it to them, that " riches often take wings and fly away?" They lie down at night, fearless of robbers and conflagrations. The winter wind howls at their doors, but they have no ships upon them to shiver slightly, they can draw their covering more closely about them, and forget their want in pleasant dreams.

Poor men are not afflicted with those bodily ailments which often torment the rich .-the feast days of religion in a spiritual sense, and its fasts in a literal sense. Hence, with them the body rarely gets the mastery of the soul. Physicians tell us that occasional abstinence is an advantage to the physical system. Poor men practice upon this principle.

There are other advantages of poverty. It presents every motive to morality and good itizenship. The laws of the land were made for the benefit of the poor. They know, they feel from their cradles, that the law is no dead letter for them. If they steal, they are flogged or imprisoned; if they murder, they will inevitably be hung. Hence it becomes them to be cautious, and to abide faithfully by the requisitions of the statute-book.

Poor men have other privileges. They may work on the public roads; they may till farms of whose overflowing fruits a scanty portion comes to their humble boards; they may pavigate ships amid burning suns and and night, that they may bring home rich army which has ever unfurled its standard of their destined victim the pale but beautiful o the breeze. They may die beneath the banner's folds, their warm, brave hearts giving generously the last drop to a country which leaves them to fall "unhonored and unsung," while it lavishes its smiles and laudits upon official rank. fruitful mother of great deeds. She leads to industry, economy, perseverance, and then, at last, to wealth, so that, after all, it will be generally acknowledged that this "tord"

hath "a jewel in its head." But, if all the efforts of poor men fail, and they are unable to lay up treasures on earth. it certainly is some consolation that, in doing their duty here, they secure an inheritance hereafter, where the rags of Lazarus will be exchanged for garments more glorious than those of Dives, and the cross of earthly tribulation for a crown of immortal felicity. It may be some source of gratification, that, in despite of seeming evidences to the contrary, they are the peculiar favorites of Heaven-that He who has redeemed them, took upon him the form of Poverty; that the great Monarch of Creation disdained not to labor with his hands: that the final Judge bath said, " Blessen are

corpse of the devoted Wife .- J. G. WHITTIER

A cotemporary very sensibly remarks, that there should be some means of distinguishing Yet Poverty, barren as she seems, is a single from married men. Unmarried females are known by the prefix of Miss to their names, but all men are styled Mr .--How much unnecessary trouble and solicitude might be spared to the anxious mothers of marriageable girls, could they make their distinction. How very annoying to a mother and a bevy of girls, after laving themselves out to please some "nice young man," to hear him incidentally allude to his wife! This cubject really demands attention, and we think that the girls should suggest some plan by which such disappointments might be obviated We think there already exists a mode in which single men can easily be distinguished from married ones, by ladies of discernment. It is by paying a little attention to the conversation and manners of gentlemen. There is an case and grace in the manners of married men, a sensibleness and want of flutter in their conversation, which enable them to be readily distinguished in a mixed company. Unmarried men may be distinguished by a general "greenness," a certain frivolousness of conversation, and a peculiar flutter of deportment, that nothing but matrimony can !

KISSES. A kiss is said to be the sweetest pledge of tenderness and friendship, and as we have never seen it defined, we will call it a labial contaction, followed by a smack! In our country, at least, kisses are not wantonly dispensed; they are the peculiar treasure of the ladies, and are awarded by them in such a sparing manner, that the lucky one who receives them may deem himself an honored favorite. It is not here a general method of salutation or of welcome; and, unless it be upon New Year's day, it is seldom bestowed except as a pledge of affection. In Russia, however, according to Sir Robt. Kee Porter, this seal of friendship is daily appiopriated to as common and public use, as the shaking of hands "It is not sufficient that the fair sex salute each other, or touch your check; but no bearded boor meets his fellow, but forty smacks are heard, as hough each were sacking eider through a vent peg. Every man, young, old, lame, blind, or ever so disgusting, when he kisses the hand of any woman, let her delicacy be ever so nice, or her rank exalted, she must return the salute on his cheek."

This is done at every interview, although little intimacy may exist between the parties; about the conclusion of the ax weeks' fast, the custom of kissing is most generally indulged in; then society is but one scene of kissing and strife. Indeed, the custom is systematic in that country, and the various kinds of kisses are arranged into four classes.

1st. The kiss religious. This is the highest in degree, and is of widest privilege, being used only at sacred periods; but during the holy seasons, under its passport, the verlest clown may find his way to the cheek of the loveriest and most illustrious woman in the empire.

2d. The kiss of love. This is declared to be the sweetest, and it is the rarest; but it is said to have many a counterfeit, for its soft touch unites in one moment, lips, heart, and soul. It is spoken of as of Divine origin, and its delicate nature never allows it to be practiced in public. 3d. The kiss platonic, or the kiss of friendship .-

IMPROVEMENTS AT WEVERTON.

By a la ter received from Weverton, Md. (says the Boonsboro' Odd Fellow.) we learn that there are, at this time, no less than ticenty houses and row in course of construction, and will be speedily completed. It gives us pleasure to hear such gratifying intelligence from our infant manufacturing town. It affords ample evidence that Weverton is destined, at no distant day, to rank among the first manufacturing places in the United States.

[We are glad to find that our old friend, Wever, is likely to live to realize the anticipations indulged by him many years ago .-He has long struggled against adverse curreuts to get the public mind awakened to the advantages lying dormant at Weverton, and now success seems certain.] - Win. Rep.

Casses M. CLAY's Son .- In the rencountre between C. M. Clay and Mr. Turner, a brother of Mr. Turner rushed to the rescue, stabbing Mr. Clay, whereupon a son of Mr. Clay, aged about 12 years, without one moment's deliberation rushed on his father's assailant, thrusting a large knife into him, whom our readers are aware is since dead. The little fellow also procured a pistol for his father to kill Turner, the one he had stabled, but the father, who for the moment | by the name of Frame's farm, which the subscriber was speechless, heeded not his importunities. has purchased from Mathew France's Executors, ad

STREET OPERA .- ACT 1, SCENE 1. Enter Smith, meeting Jones; Jones extends his hand, which is not very warmly received. Jones - Ah, Smith, I'm very glad to meet you; So glad that I could almost eat you!

Hast got a ninepence in thy pocket?" Smith-" Yes, and fast I there shall lock it." Jones-(Persuasively)-Come, let us in and take a jorum."

Smith-(Applying his thumb to his nose)-No sir-ee, you don't get no rum Out of this ere child to-day; So you'd better stop this play." Jones- Cursed mean, I want a drink so! 'The meanest-I shall always think so.'

Exit omineus. Some nice young man in the land of sweet posatoes and turkey-buzzards, thus throws his admiration, by pailfulls, on the girl of his heart:

A comely lass is she; She every morning coffee drinks, At evening sips her tea. She's never gadding in the street; But loves to stay at home,

Her gives are parted by her nose-

Miss Mary is a charming maid,

Her ringlets by a comb. Each leisure moment she employs, Te cultivate her mind; She fies her apron on before-lier bustle on behind. Wonder whether "Miss Mary" still survives.

GALLANTRY .- We often hear of Irish gallantry, but Africa is equal to Ireland. A negro driver of a coach in Texas, stopping to get some water for the young lades in the carriage, being asked what he stopped for replied, "I am watering my flowers." A more delicate compliment could not have been paid. LFF A doien-cast editor says that "in consequence of a pressing engagement our editorial columns pre-sent rather a slim appearance." On examining the Hymenial department it was perceptible at a glance what that "pressing engagement" was. For the fellow got married that very same day. EPIGRAM. Let John, some pleasant day, hold out

Before the sun his famous snout; And sine his spacious mouth to show A dozen teeth that lie below; With such a monstrous length of nose To shadow o'er his iv'ry rows, phiz, I think, beyond denial,

DONE BROWN .- A Dutchman looking for a person by the name of Dunn, who owed him a "small account," asked a wag near Sweeney's enting house, where No. 66 Chatham street was, as he wished to find Mr. Dunn The wag fold him to go into Sweeney's and the first person he met at the table was the disposed member of the Society of Friends once gave the following friendly advice: married, said he, "I hear thou art going to be "Yes," replied John, "I am."

"Well, I have only one little piece of advice to give there, and that is, never marry a woman worth more than then art. When I married my wife, I was weigh just any cents, and she was worth sixty-two cents; and when any difference has occurred between us, she always throws up the old shilling. Important, to Farmers. Gattin's Patent Grain Brill. THE subscriber is now manufacturing this most

I valuable implement of husbardry. These machines have been most thoroughly tested in Ohio and Pennsylvania for planting Wheat, Rye, Corn, Dats, &c., and is so constructed as to drop any quantity per acre, and at any depth desired. It would almost be useless to relate the advantages of Drilling, over broadcast sowing. Experience has proved that at least 20 per cent more grain can be grown after the drill, with one-fourth less seed, than after the broadcast sowing. The subscribes nanexes some of the reasons for Drilling Wheat, given by those who have thoroughly tested the system:

1st. The seed is deposited with greater regularity, and at a proper depth.
2d. When deposited, it is covered and kept from the birds, &c. 3d. It is not so liable to winter kill. The drill raises the ridges on each side of the row. These ridges crumble down by the action of the frost, and thus cover and nourish the young plants, and pre-vent them from being thrown out by freezing and 4th. The roots being deep, it is manifestly not so liable to injury by the drouth. 5th. It is not so liable to rust. And not so liable 6th. By the admission of the sun and air between the rows, a stronger and healthier plant is produced and of course a heavier crop. 7th. By drilling, the farmer is enabled to have heavy crops on light land.

8th. It economises seed, and saves time, which is The undersigned could publish columns of testimonials of those who have tried the drill seeding; but he is willing to submit the claims of the sysleta to Mr. George Eichelberger, of this county, whose field of Wheat, sown by the drill, will compare favorably with that of any other in the county and from whom satisfactory information may be It would be well for those who may desire to procure the machines to make known their wishes as Charlestown, June 21, 1849. early as possible.

Another Miraculous Cure.

DEAD the following letter, and then, if you It are troubled with any disease of the lungs, go and get a bottle of DR. HASTINGS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF NAPTHA St. Johnsville, New York, Feb. 5, 1848. Mr. Harrison : Sir-I will trouble your rationce a few minutes by informing you of the great triumph which your Naptha Syrup has obtained in the case of my brother. He increased the dose as you directed, and the result was that he began to raise very freely, and it scented so badly that it was impossible to stay in the room where he was, on the fifth day after the increase of the dose. In a day or so after, he began to get better, and at this present time is quite revived, has a good appetite, and don't cough a quarter as much as he did previously. A severe cough and immense expectoration were the prominent symptoms of the disease. I think his case was a singular one; none of the physicians here had ever heard or seen any thing of the kind before. I mention all these particulars, as I am firm in the belief that, had it not been for the Naptha Syrup, he could have expected nothing but a speedy grave, as there was an immense number of tubercles formed on his lungs, which the medicine took immediate hold of, and in a few days he threw them up by the quantity , some of them were as large as a bean. If he improves as fast as he has done, I do not think the he will need any more than the six bottles I now send for. Enclosed are five dollars. Direct the box as before to Jonas Snell. Care of Charles Kingsland, Railroad
