

VIRGINIA FREE PRESS AND FARMERS' REPOSITORY.

Virginia Free Press.
BY J. S. & H. N. GALLAHER.
THURSDAY MORNING.

OCTOBER 30, 1850.

FOR PRESIDENT,
MILLARD FILLMORE,
OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
AND J. DONEISON,
OF TENNESSEE.

ELECTORAL TICKET.

JAMES C. HOLLADAY, of Norfolk Co.,
John D. McINTOSH, of Franklin Co.,
WILLIAM MARTIN, of Henry,
T. M. HODURANCE, of Buckingham,
JOHN J. HARRIS, of Botetourt,
GEORGE T. VERVY, of Northampton,
JOHN CUTCHER, of Westmoreland,
JOHN D. INGRAM, of Augusta,
JOHN STAPLETON, of Montgomery,
ISAAC J. LEFTWICH, of Wythe,
BENJAMIN H. SMITH, of Kaaskwa,
J. W. GALLAHER, of Marshall.

POLITICAL MEETING.

The President of the Fillmore and Donelson Club has received a telegram from Mr. HENRY WINTER DAVIS, in which he states that he will certainly be at Charlottesville, October 30th, 1850, to address the Club on the subject of the present Presidential canvas. The meeting will be held about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and the public generally invited.

Order, W. W. GALLAHER, Secy.
October 30, 1850.

ELECTION DAY,
TUESDAY, 4th OF NOVEMBER.

THE FOURTH OF NOVEMBER.

AMERICANS! The day for the great battle is near at hand! On next Tuesday you will be called upon to rally to the standard of your country. Shall the appeal be made in vain? Shall the country, so far as its power lies, be suffered to be overthrown? Remember that each and every one of you, have the right to a voice in the matter. The priceless privilege of the right of suffrage should be exercised, and especially at a time like the present. Let there be no lukewarmness; come to the polls; do not be kept away because of rain or any other similar drawback. It is your duty to your country to come forward and do that, which, by every obligation of honor and self-respect, every true patriot is bound to do—vote—the decisive day is at hand. Rally, then, in solid phalanx, Americans, Whigs and Union men, and carry your votes for that man, whose well tried virtue and high sealed integrity, has won for him the title of "Model President." It matters not whether we can carry the State; that is, and should be no excuse for a want of action. There is nothing like trying—who knows what will turn up? By a united and firm effort throughout the entire State, we may even approach success, and that of itself should induce renewed energy into every supporter of Fillmore and Doneison. Let every man, then, do his duty, and go to the polls with the determination to do all in his power to reduce the majority, if nothing else. Let all the lovers of this glorious Union, rally to the support of Fillmore, who, from the avowed expression of a traitor in South Carolina would, if elected, "do well that he will throw back the prospect of division."

Let there be a full turn out of our forces, and let each and every man urge his neighbor to do the same. There is no time for delay now, the day is upon us—look well then to the full and complete exercise of your duty to your country, your party, and your self. Do not stand idly by, but up and be doing. Put your own shoulders to the wheel; and, each of you, the example to your neighbor. Be emulous of your own exertions, inspire all, over whom you exercise any influence, with your own patriotism. And then, if the God in whom we should all trust, crowns your efforts with victory, how full of consolation and joy will your hearts be, with the reflection that you have at least done your duty.

ALL THE BETTER DEMOCRAT.

Some of the Southern papers, and amongst them the New Orleans Delta, have taken exceptions to a speech made by Mr. Buchanan, the Vice Presidential candidate, at Tippecanoe, Indiana, in which he declared that he "did not belong to a slavery extension party." He is further charged with being an emancipationist when the subject was mentioned in Kentucky.

What's the use of all this? Is he not the better Democrat therfore? Did not the Hon. CHARLES JONES declare slavery to be a curse, degrading to all concerned—a curse that ought to be abated? And is he not now at the head of the Democratic Central Committee, abusing every body who ever dared to hint opposition to slavery, especially if a Whig? Does it make any difference what a man ever said or thought, if he has also had a mark from the Democracy? We are deeply indebted to Mr. C. Lewis Brent for the interest he has manifested in our safety. We will profit by his word in season, and like Major General Nigger Foot, Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy of the State of Va., we will sound the Tom Tom, blow the Fuz Guzy, and let miscellaneous things rip generally, to keep the "Plug Uglies" and "Rip Raps" from hurting anybody. It is "desirable, and consistent with the interests of the South" that we should do this, and do it well.

If Mr. Buchanan's speech to Jefferson, after his election, was not authorized, we are authorized to believe that it was. The whole nation, and the friends of Democracy, wiped out all political sins; and the face of the convert becomes bronzed with triple cast of impudence. The party that concealed with Prescrollers to elect Charles Sumner, to the United States Senate, can swallow any thing and do any thing.

AN ABLE LETTER.

We refer our readers to the able letter of Mr. C. Lewis Brent, giving his views upon the present presidential canvass. This letter was originally published in the "Tar and Feathers," and, of course, designed to advocate the interests of Mr. Buchanan. The great segnament it uses should not be kept from the eye of the people generally, and, therefore, we most cheerfully give place to it—though it may seriously injure the prospects of our candidates.

Mr. B. clearly indicates that course which it is desirable and consistent with the interests of the South, every man in the land should pursue, fearless of all consequences, and regardless of all other ties than those which bind the whole nation in the love of the

ERRORS OF THE SPIRIT.

The editor of the "Spirit" charged that, "the editor of the Organ, of Washington, French S. Evans, the author of the American Platform, is now a black republican, and stamping Pennsylvania for Fremont." Here are four errors, viz: French S. Evans was never the editor of the organ; he was not the author of the Platform; he is not a black Republican; he is not stamping it in Pennsylvania, or anywhere else, for Fremont—Cepasian Ellis is the editor of the Organ, and prior to the February Convention, advocated the change then made in the platform; Mr. Evans offered the platform, published in the "Organ," to the consideration of the convention. If the act of offering made him the author of the "sliding" organ, then James Buchanan must have been the author of some of the most outrageous abolition petitions that were ever offered to Congress. The "Spirit" admits that it proposed to the United States, approved last March, 1845, amongst the conditions proposed, "We desire to contract it more effectually, and upon the motion of Senator Mason himself!"

In the Joint Resolution for annexing Texas to the United States, approved last March, 1845, amongst the conditions proposed, "We desire to contract it more effectually, and upon the motion of Senator Mason himself!"

There is a discrepancy in the honorable Senator's views on the subject of the Missouri Compromise. In his speech of last week he announced the opinion that the Missouri Compromise line was repealed by implication, by the acts of 1850. Is this really so? Let us recur to the history of the times, and we shall find that the line, so far as being obliterated in that year, was actually re-enacted, and upon the motion of Senator Mason himself!

In the Joint Resolution for annexing

Texas to the United States, approved last March, 1845, amongst the conditions proposed, "We desire to contract it more effectually, and upon the motion of Senator Mason himself!"

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"We desire to contract it more effectually, and upon the motion of Senator Mason himself!"

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"We desire to contract it more effectually, and upon the motion of Senator Mason himself!"

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

"Great stress is laid upon the assumed fact, that Mr. Evans is the author of the Philadelphia platform, on which Mr. Fillmore was nominated." There is no word of truth in this statement, and this is the first time it has contradicted it.

