GOV. WALKER ON LECOMPTON.

The rumored change of opinion in relation to the Lecompton Constitution is refuted by a long letter he addressed to the anti-Lecompton Democratic meeting held at Indianapolis on Tuesday week. It arrived too late to reach the meeting, but made its appearance in print in the Indianapolis Journal. It is long, strong and bitter, and dispels of the rumors that he had become reconciled to the President and was wavering from his defunct position that he was undertaken to occupy some weeks since. He says of the pledges to see fair play, and have the Lecompton Constitution submitted as a whole, to the whole people of Kansas, that the President and all his cabinet well knew of them at the time they were made, and that, any abandonment of them on his part, after the people had accepted them and acted upon them, would cover him with infamy and disrepute and that they shall be redeemed by him if necessary to the latest hour of his existence, even to the shedding of the last drop of his blood. He says: "Whatever may be the action of wavering, the timid or corrupt, meanness and proscriptive no terror for me! Towards the close of the letter he says:

"In this the 52d year of American Independence, or is it the first year of American Monarchy that is now dawning upon us? Let the people—let the masses compose the true Democracy, aroam from their slumbers. Let them break the chains which would fetter their free thought and opinion, and assert their blood-bought rights, and especially the great indefeasible sovereign right of self-government. We have fallen upon evil times. The liberties of the country are in danger—Let the people of every town, county and State rise in their majesty to the rescue."

DEATH OF A GOOD CITIZEN.

Our columns this week are the medium of intelligence to more than the ordinary number of readers both at home and abroad. In the death of ANDREW KENNEDY, Esq., President of the Branch of the Valley Bank of Charlestown, and, since his retirement from the bar, for several years one of our most intelligent and efficient Magistrates, the community has indeed lost an esteemed public spirited and valuable citizen; always prominent, liberal and useful in whatever promoted the welfare of society. A gentleman he truly was in all the qualities which adorn and ennoble human nature, a friend of the poor; and one who well deserved the prosperity which attended him through life. Verily, his death not only creates a void in his hitherto happy home, where he was all that husband and parents could be, but his absence from the social circle and from the society of friends to whom he was endeared by long association in business pursuits and objects of public utility, will be felt as something almost irreparable. We can truly say that we feel his death keenly, and claim to be allowed to mingle unaffectedly our own tears with those of his kindred and intimate friends, for all have cause to mourn.

NO NOMINATION.

At a Democratic meeting lately held in Clarke County, which was numerously attended at which Mr. Samuel Heddlebower presided, the object of the meeting was to consider the propriety of holding a Convention to nominate County officers."

On motion of Mr. T. P. Pendleton, it was

Resolved, that it is inexpedient to hold such convention for county nominations this Spring.

The Clark Journal says the "meeting was unusually large and full, and the prevalence of sentiment against regular nominations this Spring almost universal."

We think the people of Clarke are acting wisely in this matter. Politics should have nothing to do with the selection of County Officers. The intelligent voters of the County are fully competent to elect suitable county officers, without the dictation of convention.

GRADUATED.

The eighteenth commencement of the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery took place on Thursday evening last, according to announcement, in the New Assembly Rooms, Baltimore, on which occasion a very large audience of ladies and gentlemen crowded all the available space of the commodious hall.

At the appointed hour for the commencement of the exercises, the President and Faculty, followed by the graduating class, entered the hall. Professor Averett then announced the graduates and the subject of their thesis:—Aerobic Graduates from Virginia, we notice the following:—THOMAS WH. THORLACKIN, son of Mr. Benjamin Tomlinson of this town. Diseases of the maxillary organs.—CARVER WILLES BROWN, Inflammation.—EDWARD DANIEL HANNER, Progress of Dental Science.

The announcement was followed by the conferring of the College Degree by the President, Professor C. A. Harris.

AWARDS IN SHEPHERDSTOWN.

The 23d of February was observed in Shepherdstown by Military parade &c. A handsome flag was presented to the "Infantry" by Thomas H. Towne in behalf of the ladies, in a chaste address, which was responded to by Col. J. F. HARTRICK in behalf of the "Infantry"—after which an Oration was delivered by T. H. Towne, Esq., appropriate to the day.

At night a Concert was given by Orpheus's Cornet Band to a crowded house, giving general satisfaction.

EXTRAORDINARY SUICIDE.

From the California papers we learn that Adolph P. Branda, a native of Norfolk, Va., and employed as confidential clerk by the house of Macdonay & Co., of San Francisco, committed suicide on the 20th January. He hired a horse, went to the Lone Mountain Cemetery, wrote a letter, directed it to Mr. Macdonay, placed it together with a ten dollar piece, in a handkerchief, and tied the bundle to the horn of the saddle. Then turned the horse loose and it returned to the stable in the city, where the bundle was opened, the letter found and sent to Macdonay. In it he confessed he had wronged his employers by embezzling the funds and avowed his intention to commit suicide. His body was afterwards found in a shallow grave in the cemetery. His wife was found a young man of his years, has perhaps ever occupied a higher place in the estimation of his fellow citizens, and none have ever died more sincerely regretted."

DEATH OF T. A. T. RILEY.

The Winchester Virginian, in noticing the death of T. A. T. Riley says "the unexpected intelligence of the death of the Rev. T. A. Riley, Clerk of our County Court, eldest son of James P. Riley Esq., etc. led amongst our citizens, on Saturday last, the greatest astonishment and the most profound regret. An event more unexpected and sudden, and more sincerely and deeply regretted, and deplored, has perhaps never occurred in our community. Mr. Riley was a native of our town, and was universally respected, esteemed and beloved. No young man of his years, has perhaps ever occupied a higher place in the estimation of his fellow citizens, and none have ever died more sincerely regretted."

ACCIDENT.

Mr. Nelson S. ANGEL, of this town, was badly burned a few nights ago in the store of Mr. Straus. The young man of the store, was impulsively filling a lamp—whilst burning, when a hand-glass, a gentleman in the store in an attempt to extinguish the flame, threw the lamp towards the door, when a portion of the burning contents fell upon Mr. Angel, burning his hand very bad, together with a portion of his clothing, hair and whiskers. Such an act of—will not call it carelessness—was too gross to deserve censure; for frequent accidents occur from the habit of filling lamps while burning.

THE GOLDEN PRIZE.

We again call attention to this valuable New York weekly. It is handsomely illustrated every week. All communications should be addressed to BECKETT & CO., 48 and 49 Moffat Building, 335 Broadway, New York

MR. MILLION OF VIRGINIA. made a speech on Katonah, in the House of Representatives, on Wednesday, in which he defended his past opposition to the Kansas-Nebraska bill. The time had now come, he said, when the correctness of his views were shown by the results, and, in the midst of predictions fulfilled and forebodings realized, he could feel that no part of the responsibility for the disturbed state of the country rested upon him. Mr. Million's fate has been fortunate, in one respect. He has been an uniform, steady opponent of the Kansas Nebraska bill—the touch stone of modern Democracy—and, yet, we believe, he has never lost rank as a good and sound Democrat. Given under my hand this 2d of March, 1859.

MR. RILEY.—The Wheeling Intelligencer of the 1st instant announces that a young woman of that town, who had been seduced under a promise of marriage and whose lover refused to keep his promise, forced him to go with her to a minister's residence, telling him in such a way that he was frightened, that if he did not marry her she would kill him. The minister was in bed when the party arrived and called for his services, but he was soon up and performed the ceremony.

MR. GEO. W. KENDALL.—The New Orleans Picayune, written by his sheep rancher MUNNY DAVIDE HOWE!

Some people live it away in old stockings, others again, like the man in New Haven, keep it twenty years on the promise to pay a bank, and lose the interest upon it while running the risk of losing the principal. The best plan is to save it, and the safest means of doing to its value is to invest $10, 5¢ of $2 in S. Swan & Co.'s regular lottery, which draws every Saturday at Augustus 6. It comprehend a magnificent capital prize of $70,000, entitling the fortunate holder to the whole amount of the prize or a half, or a quarter, as the ticket purchased may entitle him.

MR. RICHMOND ENQUIRER.—It is advised that the Advocacy of the Lecompton Constitution is to make the watchwords of Democracy now, we would like to be informed what is to be the next party test; and it says—we will not join in malcontents against those Democrats, who dissent from our own and the views of the administration on this question. We believe them to be actuated by the promptings of patriotism. And the day may not be distant when their services will be needed both by the President and the Senate.

MR. CALLOW.—The Cullom and Clay difficulty has been settled. The challenge and the subsequent notes of the parties are all published. Friends interferred, and the master was referred to Senators Toombs and Crittenden, and they called in Senator A. Kennedy. The referee decided that Gen. Calloom acted under mistaken impressions, and was in the wrong, and that the honor of both parties demanded that Gen. Calloom shall make a satisfactory apology to Mr. Clay, and they further decided that the acceptance of these terms of settlement by Gen. Calloom and the seconds of the parties should be considered a compliance therewith, and resore the former relations of the parties. The seconds of the parties to Mr. Zollicoffer for Gen. Calloom, and Mr. R. W. Johnson, for Mr. Clay, accepted the award thus made—and the whole matter is settled.

MR. HENRY A. WASHINGTON.—He met with an untimely death in Washington on Sunday afternoon by the accidental discharge of an air gun, was well known throughout Virginia and the South. He had for some time been an invalid under medical treatment in Washington, and generally avoided society by practicing a kind of quietude and seclusion. Deteriorated was a son in law of the late Judge Tucker, and has for several years past been Professor of History in William and Mary College. He was the editor of the last edition of the Jefferson Papers, was a ripe scholar and an accomplished gentle man. He leaves a wife and daughter, and had made preparations to leave with his family on Monday for Williamsburg. His age was only thirty six years.

MR. BOTT.—John M. Bott's (of Va.) book of travels, including his adventures in the Sierras, at Rome, will, it is said, soon be published. He is reported to have made a large fortune by his tour.

ANNUAL REPORT.—The financial condition of the Virginia Senate have reported it expedient to legislate upon the subject of authorizing the board of public works to purchase $500,000 worth of stock held by Wheeling in the Baltimore and Ohio Rail road.

DEATHS OF OLD INHABITANTS.—The Winchester Virginian records disease of some of the oldest inhabitants of that place, viz: Mrs. Mary Wright, widow of the late James Wright, aged 97 years; Miss Jane E. L. Walker, aged 84 and Mrs. Stine, aged 80 years.

POETICAL.

"Oh, Carry Me Back"

The twilight shades now gather round
My dearest darling friend,
The voices of love and mirth resound,
From that dear mansion come.
And I, the loved, the saint one,
Must sigh and weep alone.

Oh! carry me back, oh! carry me back,
Today can my dear old home.

No, I will never return again.

Mild strangers, stern and cold,

This acting heart, it never would fail

To a mother's bosom fold.

Yes, I will seek the household band,

No more sad and lone.

Then "carry me back" from the stranger land,

To my own, my much loved home.

And help like care are on this brow,

And help like heart in this breast,

I see no brighter than this now.

Heedless, I leave the house,

And drop like leaves upon the bough.

Then "carry me back" from this lonely bough,

To my own, my dear old home.

To my own, my dear old home.

John Alcohol.

Inebriates, Jaded,

When first we were acquaint,

Memory in impure John,

Whom now I know their shift;

I kept it in treating John,

Because I loved you,

But mark how you're treated me,

John Alcohol, my Joe.

John Alcohol, my Joe.

We've been too long together,

You must take one road, John,

And I'll take the other,

For we must tumble down, John,

I'll leave the hill to foot,

And you may Joe.

VARIETY.

THE VERY LAZIEST YET!

During the summer of 1840, says the Knickerbocker, corn being scarce in the upper country, and one of the citizens being hard pressed by local wants, were therefore bare the responsibility of his gouty neighbors by his extreme laziness, they thought it an act of charity to bury him. According to legend, he was carried towards the place of interment, but being met by one of the citizens, the following conversation took place.

"Hallow! what have you there?"

"Poor old Mr. S."

"What are you going to do with him?"

"Bur-y him!"

"What is he dead? I hadn't heard of his death!"

"No, he is not dead, but might as well be, for he has no corn, and he is too lazy to work for any."

"That is for travel for civilian purposes."

"I'll give two bushels of corn myself rather than offend your kindly wife."

"My S. is the laziest and poorest in a dragging tone. It is s-h-e-l-l-e-d!"

"No, but you can still it."

"D-i-v-e-n o-n h-o-u-s-e-s!"

A Editor's ASSESSMENT.—It does a body good to have his pride flattened once in a while. We recollect the benefit of it once a year, when the assessors come round and ask how much money we have at interest; how much stock we have in the public funds or in banks; and various other questions that are supposed to be only to the "solid men." If there is anybody round, we straighten up slightly, expand our corporosity, and, as is heavy a chest tone as we can command, we answer, "About the same as last year." They know well enough what that is. So do we.

(2) Mike is a little darky of a dozen years, who was purloinedly left alone in the store one day, and watched through a door that stood ajar, to test his honesty. Finding himself alone, he began canvassing the apartment for something good, and slipping behind the counter, he soon helped himself liberally to nuts and candy. Upon being caught in the act, and reprimanded, he began to justify himself by saying— "Y-o-u h-u-ve n-o-t h-u-s t-o t-a-k-e m-e a-b-o-u-t; y-o-u a-l-w-a-y-s k-n-o-w'd d-i-s-t-r-i-c-t."

Mike's master recently wrote to Rev. H. J. Hall of Buffalo as follows:— I am a Baptist deacon, and not finding such employment as I could wish in this village, I will ask what are the chances of my profession in your great and beautiful city? The clergyman, acknowledging the receipt of the letter, replied: "I'm not so bold as to say that I have carefully looked over the outlines of the Bap-tist faith, and have as yet discovered such difficulties referred to therein."

(3) There are six sorts of people at whose hands you need not expect kindness. The most minded think mainly of themselves.

The last are too indolent to serve you. The last have not time to forget themselves.

The overgrown rich man is above minding us, and a false assistance. The poor have not uniformly the spirit, or requisite energy.

The simple good natured, however willing, has not the social influence.

(4) A tinker who had his load on fetch up, and sat on the side of a house which had been away painted. Shoving himself clear, he saw his master, he took a glimpse at his master, another at the house, a third at his hand, but exclaimed, "Well, that's a wretched trick in whatever painted that house, to leave it standing out all night for people to run against."

(5) Two of the best puns we ever heard of was perpetrated by a clergyman. He was asked if he intended to accept a Christian name when he replied, "Yes, I mean to be a Methodist."

(6) Dr. PEIRCE has removed his office over C. E. BELLER & CO., Druggists, State Street, Boston, Mass., to 10 Cornhill, Boston, where he will be accessible to his friends and the public generally, and assures them that he will accommodate them in a manner calculated to give entire satisfaction.
